Dale Clausen of Hibbing, a friend of the groom, was best man. Groomsmen were Mitch and Mike Josephson of Apple Valley and Jeff Olson of Thief River Falls. The ushers were Devere Chapman, Newfolden, brother-in-law of the bride; LeRoy Johnson, Goodridge, cousin of the groom; Peter Bauer, Thief River Falls, brother-in-law of the groom; and Brent Wells, Goodridge, a friend of the groom. They wore brown tuxedos with green ruffled shirts matching the gowns worn by the bridesmaids. Their boutonnieres were red roses.

The mother of the bride was attired in a floor-length, high-waisted gown with a softly gathered bodice featuring a rounded neckline and long, fitted sleeves. Topping the gown was a matching rose coral loose-fitting vest. The mother of the groom wore a rose-plum floor-length gown with a pleated bodice and full, flowing cap sleeves.6 Thier identical corsages were of red and white roses with holly and babies' breath.

Special guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Arlie H. Peterson of Thief River Falls, Mrs. June Pickle and Mrs. Francis McCash, Grand Forks, N.D., grandparents of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Johnson, Goodridge and Mrs. Halvor Holen, Thief River Falls, grandparents of the groom; Josephine Vigness, godmother and great-aunt of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Race and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Holen of Goodridge, godparents of the groom.

A reception followed with Mr. and Mrs. Gordon J. Peterson, uncle and aunt of the bride, as host and hostess. LeAnn Holen, a sister of the groom, registered the guests as Jackie Clausen, a friend, served the punch.

Highlighting the serving table was a white, four-tiered wedding cake with flowing water fountain encircled by fresh holly. The cake, baked and decorated by Helen Holen, assisted by Betty Coan, was topped by a miniature couple, backed by a white trellis with a wedding bell. Margaret Peterson, an aunt, and Laurie Marks, a sister-in-law of the bride, cut and served the cake. Pouring coffee were Jacqueline Chapman, sister of the bride, and Linda Bauer, sister of the groom. Mrs. Denise Reison, a friend of the family, was in charge of the sweet breads.

Waitresses were Diane Holen and Susie and Sheila Johnson. Mrs. Leroy Johnson and Mrs. Doris Josephson, aunts of the groom, arranged the gifts.

The groom's parents hosted the groom's supper at Grygla for members of the immediate families and the wedding party.

For her going away attire, the bride wore a silk, black and white pants suit. Following a skiing trip, the couple is now at home in Thief River Falls, lot 17, Greendale manor park. The bride is a graduate of Lincoln high school and is employed at Oakland Park Nursing home. The groom, a graduate of Goodridge high school, is employed by Woodland Construction...Photo, Ed McCulla, Minneapolis, a friend of the groom

MN. Places Bid On Arabian Lunch Program

Minnesota is a leading contender for a pilot school lunch program in Saudi Arabia, that can return millions of U.S. dollars spent for oil imported from the Middle East, agriculture commissioner Mark W. Seetin confirmed recently.

He praised the ingenuity and cooperation of Minnesota food and packaging industries in putting together a serious bid for a unique exporting opportunity brought to the attention by two local exporting firms and generated by the marketing services division of the Minnesota department of agriculture.

"In less than a month since the opportunity surfaced Minnesota companies have designed a special color-coded container and put together five different nutritionally balanced meals that will have a minimum non-refrigerated shelf life of at least six months.

"The special carton fabricated by Hoerner-Waldorf, labeled both in Arabic and English, has already received the official acceptance of the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia," commissioner Seetin stated.

The school lunch export opportunity was called to the state agency's attention for development by Abdelwahed Mohamed Abdelwahed, president of the international trading company that bears his name in Maple Grove, and by Norman Birn of International Trade Administrators, a veteran cooperator in overseas trade missions co-sponsored by the Minnesota department of agriculture.

Cooperators in supplying the Minnesota food products for the test school lunch program in the girls' schools in Saudi Arabia, include Land O'Lakes, International Trade Administrators, Ambassador Sausage and Abdelwahed & Associates Trading company, all based in the metropolitan area, and Tony Downs Foods of St. James. Several other firms also are involved in the proposal.

Commissioner Seetin said that the packaged meals represented a challenge as well as an opportunity keeping in mind the fact that the box lunches will not be refrigerated, although containing "fresh" milk and dairy products, meats, fruits, vegetables and cereal products. Meats will include dehydrated beef and turkey, plus canned chicken, sausage.

The successful bidder will be exporting the school lunches to feed 165,000 Arabian students daily — 825,000 meals per week, in the girls' schools. If the program wins acceptance, expansion to all students in Arabia will mean supply several million school lunches per week.

Minnesota's Milk Production Looks Stable

January milk production indicated a continuing stabilization for Minnesota's important dairy farming industry, with the number of milk cows at 850,000, level with a year ago and production off only half of one per cent, agriculture commissioner Mark W. Seetin reported recently.

Minnesota's milk cow inventory this January was higher by 25,000 or three per cent above the all-time low of mid-1978.

Milk production in January is estimated by the state-federal crop and livestock reporting service at 90.48 million gallons (778 million pounds). That was down from a year ago by 465,200 gallons but represented almost eight per cent of total national milk production and still fourth highest among all states.

Average production per cow in Minnesota this January was 106.4 gallons (915 pounds), compared to 107 gallons (920 pounds) per dairy cow a year ago. Lower average is due to continued intensive dairy herd culling that has resulted in a greater number of new replacements on the production line. First year production is usually the lowest in the life cycle of the average milk cow.

In the Midwest only Michigan and Wisconsin reported higher average milk production per cow than Minnesota this January. Minnesota's average was only five pounds below the national average.

Kids deserve a special treat after a long, hard day at school. When your youngsters bring friends home for a snack, why not delight them with a chocolaty Teddy Bear Cake, made in a snap with a frozen Sara Lee Original Butter Recipe Cake.

Teddy Bear Cake

- 1 frozen Chocolate Single Layer Cake with Chocolate Icing (13 1/4 oz.)
- 2-3 round flat chocolate cookies
- 2 white gumdrops, cut horizontally
- 1 tube white decorating icing

Remove frozen chocolate cake from pan; cut 2 1/2 inch round "face" from one end of cake. Cut 2 oval "ears" about 2 1/2 x 3 inches from remainder of cake. Place on serving plate. After making this chocolate Teddy, you may want to try other combinations — Banana Cake with Banana Icing (13 3/4 oz.) decorated with sugar cookies, black gumdrops and chocolate icing, or a fuzzy bear made of Coconut Cake (10 oz.), chocolate chip cookies, red gumdrops and pink icing.

Composers To Receive Funds Through Grant

Minnesota composers forum has received a $28,470 grant from the Jerome foundation to form a composers commissioning program, for Minnesota residents. The three-year grant provides opportunity not only for new music, but also for community groups throughout the state to form their own ideas about musical composition and performance and to apply for one of the commissions.

The program will equally involve a composer, performer (or performing group) and a sponsoring community organization. All types of scores are eligible for consideration, excluding film, radio and television scores. The only performing organizations excluded from consideration in the program are church-based ensembles. Of the $28,470 grant, $12,000 will be used for the commissions themselves and $5,000 for copying costs.

Pre-application should be made to the Minnesota Composers Forum by April 30. If the initial application meets the guidelines for the program, the participating groups will be asked to submit a final application by June 15. Awards will be determined by an anonymous advisory panel and will be announced by September 15.

Dates and place for premieres will be set at the time the awards are given. Performances of the various commissioned works may extend into the second year of the program. For an informational brochure, write to the Minnesota Composers Forum, 302 Landmark Center, 75 West Fifth St., St. Paul, Minn., or call 612-225-4507.

THIEF RIVER FALLS

Marshall Co. Observed 100th Birthday Sun.

Sunday, February 25, marked the 100 birthday of Marshall county. It was organized by the Minnesota legislature in 1897 and named after William Rainey Marshall, a former governor of the state.

Bands of Chippewa Indians were the first known inhabitants of the area. First recorded settler was Michael McCullough, whose parents had set sail from the British Isles in 1816. Michael was born aboard ship enroute to America.

McCullough built a cabin near the Tamarack river in 1871, but he didn't file on his homestead until 1879. Several hundred people were inhabitants of the county at that time and by 1880 the population of the county stood at 992.

To commemorate the Centennial birthday of the county, the county historical society and fairboard are teaming up for a celebration this summer. They will dedicate two new buildings being built on the fairgrounds during the fair in July and are seeking a director for a pageant to be held the final Sunday of the fair. The pageant will detail the highlights and events of 100 years of history and will culminate in a parade showing the evolution of agricultural machinery.

Job Corps Youth Have Greater Average Income

Youth who completed the Job Corps program earned an average of $4.50 an hour, or nearly $25 a week more than their counterparts who had been early dropouts or had not experienced the program.

This is one of the major findings of a study prepared for the U.S. department of labor and which surveyed former enrollees seven months after having completed the program and a group of their counterparts.

Of the participants surveyed in the spring of 1977, 75 per cent were members of minority groups. Fifty-nine per cent were black, 11 per cent of Hispanic origin, five per cent American Indian and less than one per cent "other".

According to the study, the Job Corps residential training program provided its graduates greater job mobility and earnings advantages and had a highly favorable social and economic impact on enrollees.

Other major findings of the report show that a greater percentage (77 per cent) rated the program more favorable seven months after completing the program than they did while still in it, when 67 per cent said they were "very satisfied" or "fairly satisifed."

Ninety per cent rated the training and education services received as "good" and "OK".

Regarding placement assistance, nearly 60 per cent said they did not get this service from the Job Corps or agencies referred to by the program, and 75 per cent said they could have used more help in finding a job.

The study contractor cautioned that the findings of positive benefits for participants were from data covering only an average of the first seven months after leaving the program. A followup study — to be conducted a year later — will determine whether the early gains deteriorate, hold up, or increase further over a longer period.

The report finds the Job Corps program "economically efficient," noting that the long-term dollar benefits to society from the program are greater than its cost.

The Job Corps is currently in the process of expansion. When the study began in 1977, there were 61 centers with an annual particiaption rate of 44,000 economically disadvantaged men and women, 16 through 21. The annual average cost per trainee was $7,635 and the average stay was six months. Presently there are 66 centers with an annual participation rate of 48,000.

Nyberg Stays On Paper Staff

John Nyberg, 59, a former high school history teacher in Thief River Falls, will continue as news editor of the "Lutheran Standard" publication under new editor Rev. Lowell Almen.

Nyberg taught in Thief River Falls, was a reporter for the Seattle (Wash.) Post-Intelligencer and Minneapolis Star and later advertising and promotion director for Augsburg Publishing House.

Change Made In Photo Rules

Officials of the Marshall county historical society note that they have made an error in the rules announced for the Marshall county centennial photo contest. A prior release said that black and white or color photos must be 8x10 inches in size. The correction states that photos may be of any size but not larger than 8x10 inches. This will make it easier for amateur photographers to enter their photos of Marshall county scenes by avoiding the cost of having enlargements made.

Minnesota Is Leader In Family Farms

New federal estimates on farm numbers and land in farms continue to identify Minnesota as one of the nation's leading states in family farming enterprises and in resistance to continuing rural out-migration, agriculture commissioner Mark W. Seetin stated recently.

Minnesota has not had a measurable loss of either farming units or agricultural land resources in at least four years, under a new U.S. department of agriculture definition of farms. Minnesota has held firmly at 104,000 operating units totaling 30.3 million acres.

The new definition, counting only farms with annual gross sales of $1,000 or more for commodities produced, ranks Minnesota fifth highest among all states in farm numbers and 15th in agricultural land. Previously counted were farms of ten acres or more with sales over $50 and farms under ten acres with sales over $250.

Under the old "farm" definition used by USDA, Minnesota had ranked seventh in farm numbers at 114,000 units last year, occupying 30.6 million acres.

Comparison of the old and new estimates indicates that 10,000 of Minnesota's farms averaging 30 acres in size had gross sales of less than $1,000 during 1978, commissioner Seetin noted.

Only nine other states joined Minnesota in having resisted reduction in farm numbers, since at least January 1, 1975: Alaska, Florida, Hawaii, Maine, Nevada, New Hampshire, Oregon, Rhode Island and Virginia.

Nationally, during the past four years farm numbers have declined by nearly 161,000 or 6.5 per cent with almost 14 million acres of agricultural land being lost to other uses, a reduction rate of about 1.4 per cent.

States leading Minnesota in farm numbers under the new federal definition are, respectively: Texas, Iowa, Missouri and Illinois.

Mn/DOT Won't Use Trucks To Tow Motorists

If you skid into a snowbank this winter, don't expect one of the Minnesota department of transportation's (Mn-DOT's) orange trucks to tow you out, Robert J. McDonald, state maintenance engineer, cautions.

Although Mn-DOT maintenance forces are able to offer emergency assistance such as obtaining medical help, calling a tow truck or summoning the state patrol, Mn-DOT crews are prohibited from towing stranded vehicles, McDonald said. "We can't risk incurring liability for the state by possibly bending a bumper or otherwise damaging a car in pulling it out."

McDonald added that since the driver's physical condition is sometimes a factor in causing the predicament, it's not always advisable to put a driver back on the road. "Our employees can't be expected to make judgments more appropriately in the province of the state patrol," he said.

"Stranded motorists often become indignant when maintenance personnel won't tow them out of a snowbank, but we really have no choice in the matter."

McDonald advised motorists to heed the travel advisories issued by the department through the media and not to travel roads known to be drifted or in dangerous condition. "Motorists who ignore a barricade on a road risk their lives and the lives of our crews who must then open a lane for emergency assistance if the motorists become stranded," McDonald said.

The department's road information unit receives road condition and weather reports from all maintenance areas statewide and furnishes up-to-date road information to the news media by teletype and to the individual traveler who calls for information — (612) 296-3076 — in St. Paul.

McDonald said it's not unusual to have clear weather in one part of the state and stormy weather in another.

Show Decrease In Gonorrhea Cases Reported

Number of gonorrhea cases reported in Minnesota has declined for the third straight year, according to figures from the state department of health. There were 8,527 cases statewide during 1978, compared with 9,073 in 1977, 9,205 in 1976 and 10,042 in 1975.

Patrick McConnon, chief of the department's venereal disease control program, attributed the decrease to gonorrhea control measures begun in 1973. These included the establishment and funding of community clinics for venereal disease control and treatment, and the distribution of educational materials for use in school and community programs. McConnon also cited the effectiveness of new screening programs for the early detection of gonorrhea in women, including ivdividual case follow-up procedures for treating sexual contacts. He attributed the identification and treatment of roughly 5,000 cases during the past year to these programs.

The current three year decline in gonorrhea cases reversed a trend of nearly two decades. Number of cases increased or held steady every year between 1975 and 1957, when only 800 cases were reported.

Gonorrhea is the most commonly reported venereal disease. If left untreated it can lead to sterility, or to serious infections of the reproductive organs, abdomen, joints, or other parts of the body.

There has been no similar decline in the reported cases of syphilis, the second most common venereal disease. Number of syphilis cases has tended to fluctuate, according to McConnon, but reports of syphilis in newborns and cases of advanced, untreated syphilis declined for the sixth straight year in 1978. Total of 353 cases of syphilis was reported during the year.

MCHEA Seeks New Gas Tax, Bridge Funding

Minnesota county highway engineers association (MCHEA) at its annual meeting last month voted to adopt two resolutions proposed by Minnesota Good Roads, Inc. (MGRI). In one, the MCHEA went on record supporting a motor fuel user contribution tied to the price of motor fuel rather than the existing per gallon tax. Second resolution urges the legislature to continue funding Minnesota's bridge replacement program, a question which will be considered during this session by the Minnesota legislature.

Newly-elected MCHEA president Walter Benson, Carlton county highway engineer, said "Inflation is dealing a double blow to our road system. Money collected as motor fuel tax is going down due to reduced consumption by fuel-efficient vehicles, but construction costs are going up."

Minnesota's bridge replacement program, which is financed on a biennium-to-biennium basis, has been one of the most progressive in the nation. Said Benson, "We need legislative action to continue this important program. Without it, the replacement of 4,658 deficient bridges on all road systems in Minnesota just won't happen."

In other action, the MCHEA urged legislation to perpetuate railroad right-of-way survey notes, maps, records and monuments and supported a remonumentation program for the original government survey corners in Minnesota.

Minnesota county highway engineers association is an organization whose membership is made up of the county engineers in Minnesota. Purpose of the organization is to aid the counties of the state with professional county engineering services. Many of its members are also active in Minnesota Good Roads, an organization of 1,500 concerned citizens working together to insure adequate funding to maintain the quality of Minnesota's road system.

ETS Wins Suit Against New Jersey School

Educational Testing Service (ETS) has been awarded $20,000 in damages as a result of a consent order and judgment in a copyright suit against a New Jersey proprietary school which offers courses to prospective real estate brokers and salespersons.

Defendants in the suit were the late Albert J. Wyman Jr., his son, Albert J. Wyman III, and the Professional School of Business of Union, which they owned and operated.

Damage award stems from a copyright infringement that came to light after the statewide administration of the New Jersey real estate licensing examination last summer.

After the June 24 administration of the examination, ETS received information that some candidates who attended Professional School of Business courses had had access to copies of questions included in the examination several days before the testing date.

An ETS investigation verified the information and ETS filed suit against the Professional School of Business in Federal District Court, Newark.

New Jersey real estate commission responded quickly by cancelling the scores of those candidates who had had prior access to questions in the examination and requiring that they be retested.

Joan Haberle, secretary-director of the commission, said the action was necessary "to preserve the integrity of the New Jersey licensing process and to ensure that no license be issued to a candidate who may have had an unfair advantage on the examination.

The court found that the Wymans infringed on ETS copyrights "by reproducing, publishing, and distributing" copies of real estate licensing examination tests or parts of tests.

In addition to providing for damages, the court order enjoins the defendants from further copyright violations, and directs them to surrender all infringing materials to ETS and to supply the testing organization with the names and addresses of individuals who in the past disclosed ETS tests or questions to the Wymans, the dates of such disclosures, and the questions that were disclosed.

As a result of the injunctions, any further violations of ETS copyrights by the defendants could be punishable as contempt of court.

Developed in 1970, the real estate licensing examination program has tested more than half a million would-be brokers and salespersons and is used in the licensing process of 29 states.

Program includes a uniform test on real estate practices and principles that are common across the nation and individual state tests covering the particular laws, rules and regulations of individual jurisdictions. There are separate tests for brokers and salespersons.

In addition to New Jersey, jurisdictions using the real estate licensing examination are Alaska, Delaware, District of Columbia, Hawaii, Iowa, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana and Nebraska.

Also, Nevada, New Hampshire, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, Tennessee, Vermont, Virginia, the Virgin Islands, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

State Awards Top Minority Road Contract

Most money ever set aside in Minnesota for minority business enterprises (MBEs) is included in the single largest state highway project. Interstate 94 project in the Hawthrone interchange area of Minneapolis is scheduled to be bid on by road contractors on March 30, according to Commissioner Richard P. Braun, Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT).

Project improvements include the construction of seven bridges, grading, concrete surfacing, bituminous surfacing and noisewall construction on 1.2 miles of Interstate 94 between 575 feet south of the US 12 junction and 12th avenue north. Total project cost is expected to exceed $30 million and a goal of $900,000 of work for MBE subcontractors has been set. Next largest in total project cost apparently was on an I-35W Minneapolis project that was awarded to Johnson Bros. Corporation, Litchfield, for $12,301,242 in 1970, he said.

Condition of contract award will be the ability of the prime contractor to show effort and accomplishment toward meeting the goal for MBE subcontractor work and the goal of 5 per cent women and 7 per cent minority workers on the project construction force.

In the past, contractors have often waited until after construction work had been bid on before attempting to meet equal employment opportunity goals. This approach has not worked too well in all cases. Therefore, bidding prime contractors have been asked to show effort and progress in getting MBE subcontractor bids for work in advance of the state bid letting, commissioner Braun said.

Mn-DOT representatives will have advance meetings with contractors and MBE subcontractors to explain specific project requirements. After the bid letting, Mn-DOT representatives, the successful prime contractor and the MBE subcontractors will participate in pre-construction conference.

Work on the project is expected to extend over a four-year period.

Minnesota has the least minority population among the six states comprising region five of the federal highway administration. Other states are Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio and Wisconsin. Minnesota ranked second only to Illinois in terms of dollar amounts ($2.6 million) going to MBEs during the past fiscal year. This year the figure will increase substantially, according to Bob Elcan, Mn-DOT director, equal opportunity-contract compliance.

Area School Enrollment In Decline Period

result of declining enrollments are also dealing with the pressures of increasing costs to operate because of inflation.

Most significant cause of the change in enrollment is a reduction in the number of births in the state and a second major cause is the movement of people from one place to another. The state is presently in the period in which the most rapid decline in school age population is expected to occur, with the trend slowing down in the early 1980's.

"The state's system of funding public education was developed during a period of growth and of increasing numbers in the classrooms," Mrs. Vollan noted. "When most schools began to experience decline rather than increase in numbers, there was also a corresponding drop in the amount of money which was available to pay the costs of operating the schools.

"Many school districts also have property within their boundaries which has had rapid increases-in-valuation. This has increased financial problems when the funding formula for education, as it presently exists, is applied to these districts. Many of them have gone to the polls to vote on referendums for additional levies in order to continue the operation of their schools."

Planning legislation enacted in 1977 called for local school districts in the state to project through 1982-83 the expected enrollment of their schools and the revenue with this enrollment would produce during that time for school operation.

In order to accomplish this planning, the legislation provided for the establishment of an educational planning task force (EPTF) in each of the nine educational cooperative service unit areas of the state. Task force in each area is made up of one representative from each local school district.

First meeting of the EPTF in this northwest area was held for organizational purposes in Thief River Falls in September of 1977. In the Northwest Minnesota EPTF there are 52 school districts and each has a representative who will serve on the planning group until June 1, 1980.

Members include Charles Ruebke, Ada; Michael Kulig, Akeley; George Steinberg, Alvarado; Daniel Michalski, Argyle; Jennie Borgen, Badger; Jane Larke Reeber, Bagley; Daniel Skoog, Baudette; Frank Goodell, Bemidji; Lorenz Nelson, Blackduck; Lowell Barsness, Borup; Theodore Olson, Clearbrook; Howard Gilbertson, Climax; Charles Potter, Crookston; James Noonan, East Grand Forks; Larry Sandberg, Erskine; Gwen Vasanden, Fertile; Marvin Mathiason, Fisher; and Elmer Nord, Fosston;

Also Gordon Dobberstein, Gary; Jim Fischer, Gonvick; Norma Hanson, Goodridge; Chester Stengrim, Greenbush; Carl Barton, Grygla; William Richter, Halstad; Florence Ristad, Hallock; Carl Anderson, Hendrum; Raymond Ward, Humboldt; Lloyd H. Johnson, Karlstad; Emmet Widenborner, Kelliher; James Poissant, Kennedy; Peter Jurkovich, Lancaster; Albert Pederson, Laporte; Kenneth Bradsho, Mahnomen; and Roland Habedank, McIntosh;

Also Virgil Glass, Mentor; Nilo Rantanen, Middle River; Marlowe Halbur, Nevis; Lawrence Bjorsness, Newfolden; Lloyd Mercil, Oklee; Dale Hurni, Oslo; Dorothy Noeske, Park Rapids; Charlotte Skjerven, Plummer; Everett Johnson, Red Lake; Earl LaChance, Red Lake Falls; Oscar Almquist, Roseau; Ralph Hvidsten, Stephen; Marlys Lefrooth, Strandquist; Harry Sjulson, Thief River Falls; James Hella, Twin Valley; Susie Hevning, Warren; Margaret Marvin, Warroad; and Germaine Riegert, Waubun.

ACCUMULATIONS of snow following Thursday night's snowfall added weight to roofs throughout the community. This home owner was out early Friday scraping some of the white stuff from his roof.

Since April of 1978 monthly meetings have been held by the EPTF steering committee, made up of the following 14 representatives from the various geographic locations in the area: Daniel Michalski, Argyle; Theodore Olson, Clearbrook; Charles Potter, Crookston; Larry Sandberg, Erskine; Gordon Dobberstein, Gary; Chester Stengrim, Greenbush; Carl Barton, Grygla; Emmet Weidenborner, Kelliher; James Poissant, Kennedy; Albert Pederson, Laporte; Earl LaChance, Red Lake Falls; Ralph Hvidsten, Stephen; Margaret Marvin, Warroad; and Germaine Riegert, Waubun.

Chairman and vice chairman are Ralph Hvidsten of Stephen and Margaret Marvin of Warroad. In June of 1978 the EPTF employed Mrs. Vollan as part-time task force coordinator to assist with the planning activities. In addition, the state department of education provides technical assistance to the areas upon request.

Each local district, through its school board, was to forward its own action plan for operation of its schools (through the year 1983) to the area task force by Dec. 1, 1978. To date 51 plans have been submitted to the Northwest Minnesota EPTF.

The area task force will review and comment on local plans as well as forward to the Minnesota state department of education an area educational plan by June 1, 1979. The state department will review the plans and then transmit all plans to the state legislature by Sept. 1, 1979. During planning at the local level there was opportunity for general community input.

When pain arises it is not unusual to try to ease it by taking drugs or tranquilizers. The death of a loved one is painful to survivors, but by taking tranquilizers, we only postpone the facing of our grief and interfere with the natural expression of anguish at the loss of a loved one, thus delaying the readjustment that must be made.

Tranquilizers should be used only under a doctor's direction.

Reward Plan Aimed At Ending Bank Robberies

Minnesota Bankers association (MBA) recently announced a major state-wide reward program aimed at reducing the sudden surge in bank robberies in Minnesota.

Leslie W. Peterson, Trimont, president of MBA, said at a news conference in Minneapolis that the association will pay a reward of up to $5,000 for information leading to the arrest and indictment of suspected bank robbers. Peterson was joined by David Brumble, special agent in charge of the Minneapolis office of the FBI, and other MBA officials.

"There is nothing romantic about bank robbery," said Peterson. "It is a serious crime, and a threat to the public. Bank employees and customers both are defenseless in the face of unpredictable criminals who could turn violent at any moment."

Bank robberies have increased dramatically in Minnesota and especially in the Twin Cities in the past year. In 1977 there were 12 bank robberies in the Twin Cities metropolitan area. Last year there were 41, and already there have been 17 robberies of banks and savings and loan offices in 1979.

"We are hopeful that the new reward program will serve as an incentive for public-minded citizens to help bring these crimes to a halt," said Peterson.

In an effort to reduce and prevent bank crimes, and to assist the FBI and other law enforcement agencies in solving them, the MBA will authorize payment of up to $5,000 to anyone who provides the FBI with information leading to the arrest and indictment of anyone committing or attempting to commit a robbery, burglary, larceny or extortion of a member Minnesota commercial bank. The amount of the reward will depend on the seriousness and circumstances of the crime.

All information must be given to the Minneapolis office of the FBI. Telephone number is 612-339-7861.

Peterson said the reward program will be brought to the attention of Minnesotans through television, radio, newspapers and publicity in the 750 full-service banks.

Peterson said, "We are confident the program can work. It has in other states." Bank robberies in the Detroit area dropped 50 per cent in one year following implementation of a reward program in 1975. Similar dramatic results also were obtained in Washington state after their program was announced a year ago.

"We hope that with the help of Minnesota citizens we can announce similar statistics a year from now," said Peterson.

Airline Notes Record Year In All Areas

"North Central Airlines achieved net earnings in 1978 of $22,164,000 to set an all-time record," announced Hal N. Carr, chairman of the board. "In every area, 1978 was the most outstanding year in the history of the company."

Carr also reported that revenues soared to nearly $300 million; earnings per share rose 53 per cent to $1.70; Cash divident was increased 25 per cent; passenger miles jumped 38 per cent to 1.9 billion; system mileage doubled as 17 long-haul nonstop routes were added; and the proposed North Central-Southern airways merger is nearing reality.

The airline's growth in 1978 exceeded expectations. Revenues hit $299,053,000 for a 31 per cent gain. Net earnings of $22,164,000, or $1.70 per share and equivalent share, were 62 per cent over the $13.7 million, or $1.11 per share for 1977. This $8.5 million increase in earnings was the largest ever attained.

For the fourth quarter of 1978, earnings reached $4,123,000, compared with $3,321,000 a year earlier. "These results are also significant," Carr noted, "since many airlines are showing reduced fourth-quarter earnings and others have experienced losses. North Central's profit before taxes was $5.9 million, up from $3.6 million in 1977; and income taxes rose substantially to $1,773,000 from $297,000."

Farmers Face Serious Cash Flow Problems

If farm income increased an average 40 per cent in 1978, why are farmers again demanding higher commodity prices? Because not all farmers enjoyed higher income this past year, and because inflation of land values and machinery prices have created a serious cash flow deficit for some, an agricultural economist says.

University of Minnesota farm management specialist Paul Hasbargen suggests two reasons for the apparent paradox. "First, averages can be misleading; many farmers earn less than the average," he says. "Second, the major cause of concern is a cash flow problem rather than an income problem."

Average U.S. net farm income was up 40 per cent this year over the relatively low earnings of 1977. Hasbargen expects the average net farm income in Minnesota to be even higher.

"Early analysis of farm records from southern Minnesota shows that incomes were probably up about 50 per cent for Minnesota crop and dairy farmers," the economist reports. "Increases were even greater for beef and hog farmers."

Despite that generally bright picture, some farms show losses for 1978.

"Operators who have learned to manage the complex business of farming and have gained control of adequate resources did well in 1978," Hasbargen explains.

Those who did not do well may have had crop failures, sold their products during low price periods or did not control enough resources to be fully employed.

Many farmers face a cash flow problem despite favorable net income levels. "They have such large debt payment schedules that it is very difficult to keep up with repayments and still have enough income to pay taxes and cover ordinary family living expenses," Hasbargen says. This is especially true of the young farmers who recently purchased machinery and land. Both have inflated substantially in recent years.

Inflation raises interest rates. It also encourages people to invest in land, which tends to hold its value while the dollar loses value. This, in turn, drives land prices up further, and reduces the rate of return from the land.

Although interest rates have increased with inflation, annual net returns to farmland have stabilized at the historical 3-4 per cent levels. "Therefore, the cash deficit between the interest rate that must be paid on farm mortgages and the annual return from the farmland has been increasing," Hasbargen explains.

When principle payments are added to the interest, "it can be seen that anyone buying a farm today is going to have a severe cash flow problem, unless he or she has excess earnings from livestock, another farm, or off-farm income," he adds. Beginning cash crop farmers face especially severe cash flow problems, and those hit by drought in recent years have added debts to be paid out of after-tax earnings.

Cargill Plans Sunflower Site In West Fargo

Cargill recently announced that it had selected an industrial area of Riverside, adjacent to West Fargo, as the site for a sunflower processing facility expected to cost approximately $18 million.

"The Riverside complex, the first in the United States specifically designed to process sunflower seeds into oil, is the second step in Cargill's long-range commitment to the sunflower industry that it helped start in the Red River Valley 12 years ago," said Ward Watson, vice president and general manager of Cargill's flax and sunflower department.

In the first phase of sunflower expansion Cargill, in 1978, spent approximately $1.5 million to increase the capacity of the firm's sunflower processing plant in Minneapolis and its storage and handling facility, in Breckenridge.

"Construction at the Riverside site will begin as soon as weather permits," Watson said. "The elevator and the drying and cleaning facilities should be ready to receive sunflowers in the fall of 1979 and we are hopeful that the processing plant will begin operation in the fall of 1980."

Watson also said that expansion is currently underway at the company's Carrington, N.D., elevator to provide marketing services for sunflower producers as the "sunflower belt" expands further into north central and northwestern North Dakota. He said the company's plans also include either expansion of the present facilities or possibly construction of a sunflower seed crushing complex in the Minot area.

"This long-range plan will keep Cargill on schedule with the expansion of the crop westward and the increasing development of domestic sunflower oil markets," Watson said.

Processing plant will have the capacity to crush 1,500 tons of sunflower seeds daily and on a seven-day-week schedule could process 400,000 tons annually. Initially the plant will crush 800 tons daily, Watson said. Company will employ 40 to 50 people to staff the plant's 24-hour operations.

"We chose the West Fargo area because it provides farm producers and ourselves good access to established and developing production areas and convenient rail and truck transportation," Watson said. "The new facility will help meet rapidly increasing demands for oil and anticipated growth in that demand beyond 1980."

The 42-acre site is near the intersection of County Roads 24 and 17 in Riverside and is served by the Burlington Northern railway.

Traffic Deaths Increase By More Than 100

Traffic crashes killed 959 persons on Minnesota roads last year, according to preliminary figures, more than 100 above the total death toll of 856 killed in 1977.

"1978 fatalities show a tragic increase, about 12 per cent higher than 1977," said acting commissioner Ed Novak of the Minnesota department of public safety. 1978 figures are preliminary and could rise somewhat as late reports arrive.

For 1979, Novak urged motorists to help break the three-year string of rising traffic deaths in the state. Traffic toll has risen annually since it dipped to 777 in 1975. Fatalities jumped to 809 in 1976.

"One of the best contributions a motorist can make to saving lives is to respect the 55 mile per hour speed limit. Lower speed limit has proved very effective in reducing highway fatalities."

"Also, resolve to wear safety belts during the new year. No matter how careful a driver may be, there's always the chance he will be hit by someone else, or make just one mistake that ends in a crash," said Novak.

"Always keep a sharp watch for pedestrians. Especially in slippery winter conditions, pedestrian movements are often unpredictable. Your alertness may save the life of a person who steps inadvertently in front of your vehicle," he said.

SWCD Annual Meeting Held At Grygla

At the annual meeting of the Marshall-Beltrami soil and water conservation district held February 14 at the Grygla community center, about 70 people were in attendance. Chairman Grant Satre presided.

Floyd Hauff, district conservationist, spoke on some of the benefits and costs of an overall soil survey for Marshall county. Beltrami county has already signed a contract for a complete soil survey.

Mr. and Mrs. Gene Peterson of Gatzke were honored as conservation farmer of the year and were presented with a plaque and lapel pins.

Guest speaker was Ray Thompson, Marshall county extension agent, speaking on sunflower production. Stressed were fertilizer needs, soil moisture needs and a good crop rotation. Thompson showed slides dealing with diseases and insects that are found in sunflower crops and discussed some of the ways to identify and control these problems.

Coffee and doughnuts were served.

NCC Launches 'Merit Scholar Award' Program

Northland community college will be inaugurating a "Merit Scholars Award" scholarship program for entering full-time freshman students in the fall of 1979 who have demonstrated academic excellence and activity talents in high school. This new scholarship program will make awards available to eligible students ranging in value from $200 to $500.

Applicant eligibility is based on the following criteria: Students (1) are not required to demonstrate financial need, (2) should rank in the upper 20 per cent of their graduating class and (3) have evidenced special talents in an activity such as music, theatre, student government or athletics.

Students interested in applying for this merit scholarship may obtain an application form from their high school principal or counselor, or by contacting Northland community college. Application deadline is May 1, 1979.

Even though students apply for a "Merit Scholar Award", they may also apply for additional financial help through the financial aid office at NCC.

"Primarily responsible for the new "Merit Scholars Award" scholarship program is the Northland community college foundation through significant contributions by Lowell and Marge Swenson," said President Alex Easton.

MN Trailbound Log Building Courses Set

Minnesota Trailbound has announced log building courses for spring and summer of 1979. Five separate sessions on basic round-log construction and one course in squared-log dovetailing will be held.

Dates for nine-day sessions are April 20-29, June 1-9, and August 3-12; for two-week courses, May 4-19, July 13-28, and August 17-31. All programs are held at the Minnesota Trailbound base camps near Hinckley and in the Superior national forest near Ely.

New Volume Record Set In Farm Loans

Twelve applications totaling over $2 million recommended by the farm security advisory council and approved by agriculture commissioner Mark W. Seetin for February set a new monthly volume peak for Minnesota's national model state guaranteed equal opportunity farm purchase loan program.

February farm security loans guaranteed boosted to 109 the number of capable Minnesotans that the state guarantee program has established as independent businessmen acquiring ownership of their own farming units.

Farm security loans on which the 90 per cent state guarantee has been granted to date now total $16,656,537, financing the purchase of a total of 16,907 acres of Minnesota agricultural land by the 109 successful applicants in 47 of the state's 87 counties. The program has been in effect for 23 months.

Largest and most unique of the twelve farm security loans approved this month is a package of three individual loans to brothers, Dale, Deane, and Mr. and Mrs. Duane Neal, all of rural Murdock, for the purchase of crops farm in Chippewa county. Each of the brothers a loan of $120,666 — a total of $361,998 for the purchase of $361,998 for the purchase of equal shares of the farm real estate. The loan is sponsored by the seller.

Two Superior Oat Varieties Are Released

Two new oat varieties — one a record-breaking yielder and the other adapted to dry areas of Minnesota and South Dakota have been released by the Minnesota agricultural experiment station.

Moore exceeded all other oat varieties in yield per acre during five years of statewide trials, says Deon Stuthman, University of Minnesota oat breeder. Its average yield of 100.1 bushels from 1974-1978 was seven and one-half bushels higher than Lyon and nearly five bushels better than Noble.

Moore is the namesake of Emeritus Professor Matthew B. Moore. His work as a university plant pathologist produced the source of disease resistance used in Moore oats. Other contributors to oat development are Paul Rothman and Roy Wilcoxson, plant pathologists.

Benson, the second new variety, yielded three to four bushels per acre more than Lyon and Lodi during six years of tests (96.6 bushels). Its protein yield (pounds of protein per acre) was the highest of all varieties tested from 1973-1978.

"Benson is especially suited to western Minnesota and eastern South Dakota, where lodging is less of a problem because of lower rainfall," Stuthman says. Benson has less lodging resistance than Lyon or Lodi.

Benson is resistant to smut and moderately susceptible to crown rust. Its maturity is similar to Lyon, and it stands about four inches taller than Noble.

Moore has shown resistance to a broad spectrum of crown rust races. It is also moderately resistant to smut.

Although Moore's groat (dehulled seed) protein level of 17 per cent was lower than other popular varieties, its superior production level makes it a high protein yielder, Stuthman explains. Benson was the highest protein producer at 19 per cent groat protein and 436 pounds of protein per acre.

Moore's maturity, height and lodging resistance are similar to Lodi, but test weight and groat percentage are significantly higher.

Seeds of the new varieities are being distributed to county crop improvement members throughout the state for increase. They should be widely available for general farm use by spring of 1980.

AVTI Teacher At Symposium In Las Vegas

Patricia Swanson, R.N., adult education instructor in cardiovascular nursing for the area vocational-technical institute in Thief River Falls recently attended a critical care medicine symposium in Las Vegas, Nev.

Symposium was presented by the University of Southern California school of medicine — post graduate division, and the National Institute of Critical Care Medicine. In attendance were over 2,000 physicians and 300 registered nurses from the United States, Canada and Great Britain.

Mrs. Swanson, from Hallock, will be conducting 15-hour cardiovascular nursing classes during 1979. Classes will start in Roseau on April 5, Baudette on June 25, and in Thief River Falls on September 20 and October 25. For information concerning these classes contact Terry Lerner, 681-5424, ext. 30, AVTI, Thief River Falls.

MN Ranks 8th In Red Meat Production

Commercial livestock slaughter statistics for 1978 show that Minnesota has repeated as the nation's eighth leading state in total red meats production, agriculture commissioner Mark W. Seetin said recently.

Minnesota's 1978 contribution to consumer supplies of beef-veal, pork, lamb and mutton meats, and meat products is estimated at over 1.7 billion pounds, abut 4.5 per cent of the national total, down by 10 million pounds, or one per cent below Minnesota's 1977 red meats production; U.S. production last year totaled over 38.1 billion pounds, down nearly 1.1 billion pounds or three per cent below 1977.

Hogs slaughtered for pork production continues to be Minnesota's only area of increased contribution to national red meats supplies, and held the state in its third leading position among the nation's pork producing states.

Minnesota's 3.5 per cent increase over 1977 in 1978 commercial hog slaughter volume helped offset most of the redcutions this state experienced last year in beef cattle, sheep and lamb slaughter, which were down five per cent. Calf slaughter for veal production was down some 19 per cent.

Total of 6,704,000 livestock slaughtered in Minnesota processing plants under federal inspection last year actually was higher than in 1977 by 30,400. But gross live weight, 1.35 million tons, was lower last year by more than 17,700 tons, or slightly more than one per cent below 1977.

In addition to the eighth ranking in total red meats, third in pork production, Minnesota also repeated as the seventh ranked state in commercial slaughter of sheep and lambs, and eighth in beef cattle.

Four Accepted For Enrollment At Northland

AN INFORMATION LETTER TO:
1979 Sunflower Growers

Many seed dealers are talking of short sunflower seed stocks. This is true of certain varieties and brands. This is also true in certain local areas where dealers did not originally order enough quantity to supply their area.

In 1978 your St. Hilaire Co-op Elevator handled a total of 70,000,000 lbs. of sunflowers. Therefore they were aware of the potential 1979 sunflower business.

They put in a total of 475,000 lbs. of sunflower seed for 1979 planting. Of this amount 385,000 lbs. have been booked. This leaves a total of 90,000 lbs. of seed left to sell of which 80,000-lbs. are 894 - the most common number in sunflowers.

St. Hilaire Co-op Elevator believes they will have enough good hybrid sunflower seeds to cover your needs at very competitive prices.

Thank You,
St. Hilaire Co-op Elevator
R. E. Miller, Mgr.

P.S. "St. Hilaire Elevator is proud to have 16 of the top 21 growers in the NK Sunflower Grower Contest"

Lost In The Writing

While anyone who has had any experience in news writing knows it is extremely important to be aware of what is being written, sometimes it's the things that aren't written that lead to misunderstanding. Sometimes the unwritten words are due to lack of information; sometimes they are a result of lack of time; but often they do not appear because of oversight by the writer.

Two such instances have come to our attention in the last couple of days, and in both cases the words left unsaid detracted from the words written.

In our feature story on the Merle Lundeen family as Pennington county's honor diarymen, for instance, we neglected to mention one of the family members. Tim Lundeen, the eldest son in the family and an integral part of the farm operation for a number of years, was omitted in our story. It wasn't that we didn't have him included in our notes; it's just that we somehow overlooked him in writing the article and photo captions.

For those who wonder where Tim went, he is now married and living on a farm about five miles east of the River Valley bridge. He is employed at Arctic Enterprises and dairy farming with his father-in-law. Our regrets and apologies to Merle and Tim for that omission.

Then in the photo caption showing the collapse of the Ben Franklin store awning, we attributed the collapse to weight of accumulated snow. The wording left the impression that the snow had been building up all winter, while in reality large quantities of snow had been removed by store personnel a number of times this winter.

The awning collapse was believed triggered by water freezing in the south end fasteners of the awning with the expansion causing the end to loosen and eventually release. While weight of snow did contribute to the collapse of the entire awning, it was the stress initiated by the release of the south end which was the likely cause.

Please, Less Legislation

Following editorial by Fran Floeschle appeared in the Detroit Lakes Tribune:

One North Dakota lawmaker says that his colleagues' attitude against consumer legislation is 'scary.'

Many would take the opposite view — that much consumer legislation is 'scary.'

Rep. Roy Rued R-Minot, put his finger on the crux of the matter when he said, "There isn't a store keeper in North Dakota who wouldn't make a refund on a bad package of food."

He might have enlarged that point by saying that the great majority of merchants will cheerfully make an adjustment to a consumer with a reasonable complaint.

Particularly if the customer is shopping in his own town.

Rued further stated that the laboratories department received only about 20 complaints a year on spoiled food. It would not make sense to pass more legislation to correct such a few.

Another piece of consumer legislation that was introduced but met a quick death in the senate was one to require a written estimate for car repairs before the work is done, and that the final bill couldn't be more than 10 per cent above the estimate, and that if unexpected problems required work above the estimate, the customer would be notified.

Again, if a person takes his car for repair to a garage or service man in his town, he is dealing with a friend, and possibly neighbor. And that friend or neighbor would in nine cases out of ten, be more than willing to give a written estimate, and a phone call if unexpected problems arise.

Another consumer protection bill yet to be introduced but being prepared is one to allow utility customers to have their payments spread evenly throughout the year rather than have the customer pay high bills during seasons of heavy use and low bills during off seasons.

That is already being done by most utilities, and during these times of high utility costs, other companies would surely be willing to listen favorably to such a proposal without having it made mandatory by law."

It is not unreasonable to hope that not much time is spent on unnecessary legislation.

After all, there is very little legislation that solves more problems than it creates.

Only Coincidence?

Louisiana became the number one state in the nation this past year in industrial expansion with a total investment of $2.5 billion, according to an Associated Press story quoting Lt. Gov. James Fitzmorris of Louisiana.

Fitzmorris said the state was given the number one ranking by Industrial Development magazine, considered to be a prestigious national publication in the development field. The lieutenant governor was given the job of heading the state's industrial inducement program when the legislature reorganized the executive branch of government.

Is it only coincidence that Louisiana's industrial expansion in the last couple of years follows enactment of right to work laws in that state. Compulsory unionism was outlawed in 1976 in Louisiana. In 1977 the industrial growth totaled $2.3 billion — a 100 per cent increase over the previous five years! In 1978 the banner year of 1977 was exceeded when growth hit the $2.5 billion mark.

"We expect 1979 to be even better because we are not only going to continue our programs," Lt. Gov. Fitzmorris said, "but we are going to intensify our efforts to keep Louisiana on top."

Was Louisiana just ready to blossom in the last two years so that the rejection of compulsory unionism made no difference in the state's industrial growth. That seems unlikely. On a nationwide basis the states with right-to-work laws have far outstripped compulsory unionism states in creating new jobs.

"It puts more Louisiana people on the payrolls," Lt. Gov. Fitzmorris said about growth in his state. "You can talk all you want about giveaway programs but they don't pay the bill. Jobs do." He said that 67 new plants located in his state this past year while 442 resident industries expanded, creating a total of 8,200 new permanent jobs and 31,000 construction jobs.

We think that's pretty impressive evidence in favor of freedom in the work place. Workers are entitled to their right to organize and labor unions have a right to exist, but workers should also have the right to decide whether or not they want to join. It should be the most basic of freedoms.

Impressive Future

Following editorial is from the Henning Advocate:

The new year is starting off pretty much the same as other years — a bit colder, maybe — but still rather routine.

Billy Carter has again made a fool of himself, and embarrassed his brother and, for that matter, the whole nation with his gross behavior.

Politicians are struggling to make at least some attempt at fulfilling their campaign promises . . . with the usual hedging on the key issues.

If you find these considerations mundane, then perhaps we can find stimulation in looking beyond 1979. The McGraw-Hill department of economics has completed another survey on predictions of forthcoming scientific and technological breakthroughs which prmoise to improve the lot of man.

Just a few of the conclusions made in this survey:

A breakthrough in curing cancer will be made in 1985, and will be in widespread use by 1990.

Artificial eyesight for the blind will be accomplished in 1981 with widespread use by 2000.

Chemical control of senility will begin in 1990.

Increasing life expectancy to 100 years will be possible in 2000 and available to everyone by 2005.

The use of certain drugs will permanently raise the intelligence level and be in common use by 1929.

Effective control of overeating will be ready by 1985 and in widespread use by 1995.

Ultrasonics to detect brain tumors and medicines to hasten the healing of fractures should be announced this year.

Sounds pretty impressive, does it not? There is, however, a small hitch in these wonderful plans of progress. . . the experts also tell us that inflation will cause delays in some or all of these developments. Research and development is slowing down because of rising costs.

Government overspending and waste of funds, always a major cause of inflation, will consequently bring earlier deaths to many of its taxpayers. Just one more important reason for our leaders to seek immediate ways to control our economy for the present and future benefits to mankind.

WASHINGTON ELEMENTARY SCHOOL

SCHOOLS WERE CLOSED in Thief River Falls Friday following another heavy snowfall and some wind on Thursday night and Friday morning. Although city street department and state highway crews opened streets in the city quite early Friday, many early day travelers chose snowmobiles to help them reach their downtown destinations.

DIGGING OUT was a task faced by nearly all community residents Friday after a Thursday evening snowstorm dropped several inches of snow on the area. Rick Jensen found a scoop shovel was the quickest tool to help him get to the street.

Minnesota To Bid For Food Trade In Orient

Minnesota will be the biggest participant from the midwest and have the second largest exhibit from the United States, bidding for new and expanded sales of food and agricultural products in the world's major export markets of the Orient, next month in Japan, Hong Kong, and mainland China.

Thirty-five Minnesota companies will participate in the March 9-24 trade mission and exhibit more than 100 of this state's food and agricultural products to an estimated 50,000 food buyers daily expected to attend the international trade shows scheduled in Tokyo, Japan and in Hong Kong.

Agriculture commissioner Mark W. Seetin will head Minnesota's delegation, which also has negotiated exploratory trade talks with government and food industry officials of the People's Republic of China to take place in Canton during the March visit in the Orient.

According to the foreign agricultural service of the U.S. department of agriculture, co-sponsoring the trade mission with cooperating state departments of agriculture, only California's food industry will have a larger trade mission and agricultural exhibit than Minnesota on this tenth marketing venture in the Orient.

Minnesota will occupy 12 of the 50 exhibit spaces assigned to the entire United States delegation at the Tokyo trade show March 12-16. At least 25 other Minnesotans, including two research specialists from the University of Minnesota agricultural extension service, two marketing specialists from the Minnesota department of agriculture and executives of this state's food exporting firms will participate in the trade mission.

Commissioner Seetin, the University experts and representatives of the Minn Dak Farmers (beet sugar) Cooperative, will explore the Orient market potential for an azuki bean paste product now being developed here.

Supplementing the actual Minnesota exhibits will be a generous supply of the new edition of the "Buyers Guide to High Quality Minnesota Food and Agricultural Products." This directory compiled and distributed by the marketing services division of the Minnesota department of agriculture, makes several hundred Minnesota food companies and farm commodity associations "participants" in all domestic and overseas market development promotions, and showcases literally thousands of Minnesota food products.

Beekeepers' Short Course At University

Beekeepers' management short course will be held March 23-24 at the St. Paul campus of the University of Minnesota.

Information on the first steps in beekeeping will be presented. Other topics of discussion will include the hive and the honey bee, adult bee diseases, seasonal management and the bottling and selling of honey.

The course will be held at McNeal Hall, room 33, on the St. Paul campus. Registration fee is $25 per person and pre-registration is recommended. The fee covers course materials and meals.

Why Fight Paperwork With Paper Tigers?

President Carter's much publicized war on paperwork seems to have gotten bogged down in — I'll bet you can't guess — more paper. First it was the Cabinet Secretaries rebelling against his order to read all those regulations emanating from their departments. Takes too much of our time, they protested. We're supposed to be doing productive work. Then bureaucrats by the thousands emerged from behind their files and launched a massive counterattack assaulting the public with every kind of federal rule, form, regulation, guideline, directive and data sheet. Consider how one-sided this war has become:

The Administration claims to have reduced paperwork overall and the Environmental Protection Agency makes this same claim for its agency. But other sources contradict EPA's claim and show it actually increased paperwork for business and state and local governments by 21 per cent in the first nine months of the Carter Administration, and then by another nine percent in the next six months.

It now takes three times as long to gain the government's approval to construct just one electric power plant as it did for the entire country to mobilize and fight World War II.

There are 164 federal regulatory agencies which have jurisdiction over hospitals, of which 25 review admittance precedures, 31 regulate patient safety and 33 regulate patients' rights. It costs hospitals $35 per patient per day just to comply with paperwork.

And then there is the famous case of the now defunct Paperwork Commission. Charged with stopping the paper blitz, the Commission spent two years, $9.5 million, while holding hearings in 19 cities and conducting 36 studies to find out how. Result? The Commission left a rather staggering list of 799 recommendations, including a plan to create a big new cabinet-level bureaucracy — the Department of Administration — which would ideally coordinate all government information gathering.

Why is this problem so intractable? Two reasons. When the public demands more government spending and more programs, as it consistently has done for decades, then new regulations must be written — regulations which only lead to more paperwork and bureaucratic growth. That's why the average family must now spend $675 a year just for air and water pollution controls. This figure could go as high as $1,400 by 1985. Some estimates calculate the total cost for all regulations at $2,000 per year per family.

Second, the President cannot control independent bodies such as the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, the Consumer Products Safety Commission and the Federal Trade Commission. And now, even his influence over agencies within the Executive Department, like OSHA, has been undermined by a court suit brought on by the Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers Union. Certain members of the White House felt that an absolute adherence by industry to OSHA's cotton dust standards was both unachieveable and inflationary. This attitude angered the union which believes OSHA has authority to promulgate health and safety standards.

Obviously, people who have spent entire careers luxuriating in the power of these bureaucratic empires are not about to give it all up without a fight. If we really want to return the government to the people, then strong measures are needed. I propose four:

First, rule-making excesses of agencies and commissions must be curbed. Congress must be given veto power when it concludes a rule or regulation is contrary to the public interest.

Second, the staffs of regulatory agencies should be severely limited, and each agency should be abolished after a pre-determined period if it cannot justify its continued existence.

Third, agencies should be required to prove that "benefits" of proposed regulations merit the costs.

Consumers must currently pay approximately $600 for mandated regulations each time they purchase a new car. Do they have a choice? Is government really protecting consumers when it pushes environmental standards adding to the weight of automobiles, thereby increasing their fuel consumption, while simultaneously moving to raise taxes on automobiles that weigh too much and consume too much fuel? Either way the government wins; either way you, the motorist, lose.

Finally, it is time to start dealing with this whole problem with greater consistency. That means the President must stop denouncing regulations in one breath, while advocating increasing the budget for regulatory agencies by 11.7 per cent, backing a new Department of Education, a Department of Natural Resources, a so-called Consumer Protection Agency and expanded powers for the Department of Energy in another.

And it means the leaders of the business community must do more than defend the principles of free competition, they must also live up to them. Granted, that is more difficult, but, unless each of us learns that government can never give without first taking away, then we may all wind up with nothing. The great historian Gibbon described how this happened in ancient Greece:

"In the end, more than they wanted freedom, they wanted security. They wanted a comfortable life and they lost it all — security, comfort and freedom. When the Athenians finally wanted not to give to society, but for society to give to them, then Athens ceased to be free."

Surely, America deserves better.

State Senator Is Veterinarian Of The Year

Chosen by his peers to be 1979 Minnesota veterinarian of the year is a professional whose clients say "he always seems to know what needs to be done" and a statesman whose friends say "he will try to do what he can for anyone."

Veterinarian of the year recognition was bestowed upon Dr. A. O. H. Setzepfandt Jr. of Bird Island February 13 at a banquet during the annual meeting of the Minnesota veterinary medical association.

Dr. Setzepfandt has been a veterinarian in the Bird Island area more than 30 years. His civic service to Bird Island, Renville county and the state of Minnesota goes back to his 1951 election to the Bird Island city council.

A Minnesota senator, representing District 21, Setzepfandt's path of political progress includes 17 years as Bird Island's mayor, four years as Renville county commissioner and three years as a state representative.

"We've always thought very highly of 'Setze'," say clients Gene and Beverly Dillon who operate a 100-cow dairy farm near Olivia. "We miss him when he's in St. Paul during the legislative session. He's always been very reliable, and he still makes time to tend our dairy herd on weekends."

Mrs. Dillon and her children remember the many times that Setze has been of help in many ways. "He has always been great with our kids and other 4-H kids," Mrs. Dillon said. "For instance, there was the time he came out to our farm to treat a cow and he took the time to bring one of our kids' rabbits back to health."

Mr. and Mrs. Dillon praised the Minnesota veterinarian of the year for being "a very good veterinarian and a very good man."

Now, when the Minnesota legislature is in session, Dr. and Mrs. (Carol) Setzepfandt live in a St. Paul apartment during the week. They return to Bird Island for the weekends so he can resume his active practice for a couple of days. During the week other veterinarians in the Bird Island area handle Dr. Setzepfandt's calls.

Setze became a Minnesota state senator in 1977 in a special election resulting from a chain reaction that started with the election of Minnesota Senator Walter Mondale to the vice presidency of the United States. Minnesota's governor, Wendell Anderson, was appointed senator to replace Mondale. Rudy Perpich, lieutenant governor, became governor. Alec Olson, president of the Minnesota Senate, became lieutenant governor. And Setzepfandt resigned as a state representative and was elected to the Senate post vacated by Olson.

If a wheel on your car gets stuck, don't try to free it by racing the engine, warns the Tire Industry safety council. The free-spinning wheel on the other end of the axle will turn at twice the speed shown on the speedometer and can cause the tire to explode from centrifugal force.

Seen In Air Traffic Figures

North Central passengers boarding in Thief River Falls increased 24 per cent over last year in January. The monthly figure reached 1,171 in comparison to the previous year's figure of 942. North Central Airlines set new records overall for January as passenger miles flown and passenger boardings jumped 47 and 35 per cent, as announced by David E. Moran, vice president of traffic and sales in Minneapolis.

The airline flew 181.1 million passenger miles, compared with 123.2 million in January of 1978 and carried 560,459 passengers, up from 449,426 a year earlier. Cargo ton miles — including freight, express and mail — climbed 34 per cent to 1.9 million from 1.1 million.

"The 47 per cent gain in passenger miles was enhanced by traffic on 17 new nonstop long-haul routes added the last half of 1978, the continued popularity of discounted faires, and additional DC-9-50 fan jets. These new records were achieved," Moran noted, "despite weather problems experienced at many major airports, including three unprecedented closings of Chicago's O'Hare Field."

4-H Marketing Symposium Set In Chicago

The cynic who termed economics "the dismal science" would get an argument from some 30 4-H members chosen to attend the 28th 4-H commodity marketing symposium in Chicago February 25-28.

These enthusiastic young people, selected for their economic initiative in various 4-H projects, will attend the four-day educational event as guests of the Chicago board of trade, the nation's oldest and largest commodity exchange.

In addition to receiving expense-paid trips to Chicago, the youths will tour processing plants, attend seminars, question marketing experts and visit the trading floor of the board of trade, where they will be introduced firsthand to the intricate world of futures trading.

CBT supports the national 4-H commodity marketing program, in which girls and boys 9-19 can earn recognition for their 4-H production and marketing projects. Awards include medals of honor for four young people in each county and a trip to the annual symposium for the top state winner.

Program appeals to both rural and urban 4-H'ers. Farm youths develop a natural interest in learning the laws of supply and demand the first time they discover that a prize-winning wheat crop doesn't count for much unless they know how to ask the right price for it!

City 4-H'ers can learn commodity or product marketing through tours and studies of local businesses, such as garment centers, jewelry manufacturers, grocery wholesalers, stock and commodity exchanges, or retail stores.

Young people who attended last year's 4-H commodity marketing symposium in Chicago reflected a wide range of economic interests.

One of them, an 18-year-old from Virginia, owned stocks in nine different companies. Several of his stocks doubled in value, and before he graduated from high school he found himself a part-time job as an investment counselor.

Another 1977 winner, who raised and sold poultry, came up with an ingenious plan for cutting his feed costs. To minimize the time and expense involved in buying feed from the nearest outlet, which was many miles away, he applied for — and received — permission to form a local retail outlet for the feed wholesaler. He now buys his feed from his own store, earning the money from the profits on his sales to others.

Also among last year's winners was a college student who squeezed an extra bonus from her student exchange trip to Japan. She wanted to know what happens to American wheat after it arrives in Japan and she hunted down Tokyo marketing experts and interviewed them until all her questions were answered.

The 4-H commodity marketing program is conducted by the cooperative extension service. Awards are arranged by national 4-H council.

More information on the program is available from county extension agents.

Prowlers Challenge St. Cloud Tech

Congratulations go out to head coach Glen Peters and his Lincoln high school basketball team following their impressive Region 8AA Sub Region 4 tournament championship performance last week at Crookston. The Prowlers showed they were the best basketball team in the evenly-matched tournament that featured two three-point games which were decided in overtime, and another game with a four-point spread.

Seeded last in the gathering of athletic rivals Bemidji, Crookston, Thief River Falls and East Grand Forks, the Prowlers eliminated top-seeded Bemidji 60-56 in Tuesday's first round and then outlasted host Crookston, a team that handed Thief River Falls a pair of regular season setbacks, 72-69 in overtime in Friday's heart-pounding championship game.

It was the Prowlers' first taste of Class AA basketball success and the trophy is truly treasured by the coaching staff and players. Eyeing the trophy in the locker room after the game, Peters said, "Winning this is like going to state right now," in reference to the very tough Region 8AA competition awaiting sub region champions. Before the two-class arrangement, a post-season tournament victory over Bemidji surely would have meant a state tournament berth.

Thief River Falls will be a huge underdog when the Prowlers meet Sub Region 1 champion St. Cloud Tech Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at Bemidji State University. However, the Prowlers aren't backing down from the challenge.

"I'm sure the kids are looking forward to going to Bemidji," mentioned Peters. "We don't have anything to lose and we have everything to gain. We're looking forward to it."

Caught in the excitement of Thief River Falls' first basketball title since a Class A District 31 crown in 1975, Peters looked ahead to the Region 8AA field which also includes Brainerd and Moorhead who will play Thursday at Concordia college in Moorhead and boasted, "The way we're playing right now, we can beat anybody."

Peterson Free Throw String Extended

Remarkable string of Peterson victories continued this year in the ninth annual Lincoln high school basketball team Valentine Day free throw shooting contest when Ricky Peterson made 91 of 100 attempts to maintain possession of the traveling trophy he shared a year ago with Charlie Boyer.

Two sets of Peterson brothers have combined to win the event each of the last six years.

Jon Peterson began the streak in 1974. Dave Peterson won it in 1975 and 1976, with Brian Peterson, Jon's brother, taking the trophy in 1977. Ricky Peterson, Dave's brother, became the second two-time winner in 1978 and 1979.

Inaugurated in 1971, the pre-Peterson Valentine Day free throw shooting contest winners included Pat Hamilton in 1971, Randy Carlson in 1972 and Jerry Sandahl in 1973.

Miscellaneous

+ Marshall County Central high school in Newfolden will host the 1979 Region 8A girls high school basketball tournament March 15-16. The Region 8AA event will be played at either St. Cloud Apollo or St. Cloud Tech those same days.

+ Under Minnesota State High School League guidelines, more emphasis has been placed on sportsmanship this winter. However, the verbal assaults continue against officials. An incident in the Thief River Falls-Bemidji Region 8AA Sub Region 4 high school basketball tournament saw a group of young Bemidji fans ejected from the gymnasium for their tasteless comments directed at officials through large megaphones. And in a score sheet summary turned in for the Times' Youth Hockey column the following head-shaking comment was written at the bottom of the page: "Very terrible refereeing probably caused the loss." And finally, those disconcerting yells directed at basketball players at the free throw line during the Sub Region 4 games (something done throughout the season but heightened by the tournament atmosphere) is hardly a display of sportsmanship.

Prowlers Win Sub Region 4 Title 72-69

Overcoming foul trouble that claimed forwards Jeff Oseid and Jim Nyland, burdened center Todd Young with four personals and provided Crookston with 23 points at the free throw line, the Lincoln high school basketball team put on a stirring performance Friday that netted the Prowlers a thrilling 72-69 overtime win over the host Pirates in the championship game of the 1979 Region 8AA Sub Region 4 basketball tournament.

It was the first Thief River Falls prize in four years of Class AA competition. The Prowlers, now 11-9, will challenge Sub Region 1 winner St. Cloud Tech in a Region 8AA first round tournament game Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at Bemidji State University. Brainerd and Moorhead will tangle that same night at Concordia college in Moorhead, site of the Region 8AA championship game March 3.

Beaten twice by Crookston during the regular season, Thief River Falls appeared headed for a third loss at the hands of the rival Pirates who owned a 60-52 lead with 5:23 remaining in Friday night's match-up. But sparked by the hot hand of guard Steve Enderlein, the Prowlers rattled off eight straight points to gain a 60-60 tie with 2:45 remaining.

Young, saddled with three fouls since the midway mark of the second quarter and carrying a four-foul load since the first half-minute of the third quarter, sank a pair of three throws to start the surge. Enderlein then took charge as he sank a 10-foot jump shot vs. two defenders, scored on a fast break as Crookston turned the ball over against a Thief River Falls press, and drove the base line for a third two-pointer.

It was frantic basketball the rest of the way. A single free throw by Dan Royal gave Crookston a 61-60 edge, but Wayne Krueger, who played very little this winter, came up with a basket on an offensive rebound with 2:32 left to give the Prowlers their first lead of the second half, 62-61.

Kyle Hams, whose clutch free throw shooting carried Thief River Falls to a 60-56 tournament-opening victory over Bemidji earlier in the week, made the first of a bonus free throw situation with 59 seconds on the clock for a 63-61 edge.

There was lots of action during the final seconds, but the only points came on a pair of Brad Rasmus free throws following Oseid's fifth foul with 22 seconds left.

An Enderlein jump shot from the side and a Krueger rebound shot were both off target at the end when Mark Schmitke, like Krueger placed in a crucial situation despite limited varsity duty this season, drew a foul at the buzzer that was ruled a fraction too late to send him to the line.

First half of the three-minute overtime did little to settle the issue, still deadlocked at 67-67. Thief River Falls finally forged ahead when Hams followed a Crookston turnover with a free throw as 1:28 showed on the clock. Young, playing about as well as anyone possibly could under his foul load, then grabbed two very key rebounds that were eventually converted into four bonus free throws by Hams with 40 seconds left and Enderlein with 11 seconds remaining for a 72-67 cushion.

Rasmus wasn't given much opposition as he drove the lane for the final points with four seconds to go.

"We just blew it," said Crookston coach Marshall Olson. "We had turnovers and we missed easy shots. You just can't play that kind of basketball and expect to win. We didn't deserve to win. They (TRF) played better ball and they deserved to win."

"It was a good ball game," countered Thief River Falls coach Glen Peters. "It was a tough one for anybody to lose. It was our best tournament for a long, long time."

A near-perfect first half of basketball produced a 34-31 lead for the Prowlers whose 58 per cent shooting from the field was countered by Crookston's 11-for-12 free throw shooting.

Crookston wasted little time squaring things as silky Tim Knotek completed a three-point play that drew Young's fourth foul with just 23 seconds elapsed in the second half. Three minutes later Knotek, a 6-2 junior and the game's high scorer with 28 points, did the same thing against Nyland to break a tie and give the Pirates a 41-38 edge they held until the final three minutes of regulation time. Unlike Young, Nyland didn't last, picking up his fifth foul with 3:49 left in the third quarter.

Oseid was outstanding in the first half with 19 points, finishing with 25. Enderlein was outstanding in the second half when he scored 16 of his 24 points in the fourth quarter and overtime. Young was impressive throughout, pulling down 10 rebounds in a game where there were few caroms because of accurate shooting, and contributing eight points.

"Everybody played well," praised Peters. "Oseid had a tremendous ball game. Enderlein brought us back in the fourth quarter. Young held in there with four fouls. Krueger and Schmitke came off the bench and did a fine job. They've been playing really inspired basketball the last couple of games and we've been healthy. Those are the keys."

It helped, too, that Thief River Falls made 30 of 57 field goal attempts for 53 per cent and sank 12 of 16 free throws. Crookston was impressive on both accounts, too, as the Pirates made 23 of 45 field goal attempts for 51 per cent and captialized on 23 of 29 free throw opportunities. The Prowlers held a slight 23-20 rebound edge and Crookston topped the turnover figures 14-10.

FOURTH QUARTER star in Thief River Falls' 72-69 Region 8AA Sub Region 4 high school basketball tournament championship game victory over Crookston Friday was senior guard Steve Enderlein, shown here driving through the Pirates' Tim Knotek (42), Garry Kotts (34) and Brad Rasmus (30). Enderlein scored 16 of his 24 points in the fourth quarter and three-minute overtime session to help the Prowlers overcome an eight-point deficit.

Fosston Wins District 30

Weather Alters District Games

Last week's winter storm played havoc with the area district basketball tournament schedules, with only District 30 escaping the rash of postponements.

Fosston emerged as District 30 champion to earn a berth in the Region 8A tournament scheduled to be played Friday and Saturday at Bemidji State University. The other three spots are scheduled to be filled tonight (Monday).

District 29

Postponed from Thursday, the District 29 championship game matches Bagley and Blackduck tonight at 8:45 p.m. at Bemidji State University.

Bagley eliminated Clearbrook 68-54 and Blackduck ousted defending champion Laporte 39-32 in Wednesday's semifinals.

District 30

Fosston defeated Waubun 50-40 in a match-up of top-seeded teams in Wednesday's District 30 championship game at Crookston.

It was the Greyhounds' first district crown since 1972 and it presented District 30 with its fourth different champion in the past five years. Fosston will take an impressive 20-1 record into the Region 8A tournament, losing only a 62-52 regular season decision to Waubun.

Fertile-Beltrami beat Mahnomen 60-45 for the District 30 consolation crown.

A FIRST period tip-in try by Northland wing Doug Dallmann (16) narrowly missed its mark Saturday as the puck slipped through the crease behind Hibbing goalie Bill Nyberg in the first round of the 1979 MJCAA state hockey tournament played in the Thief River Falls sports arena. Hibbing star defenseman Mike Gager (15), who just signed a letter of intent as a pitcher for the University of Minnesota baseball team, looked on. The Cardinals beat the Northmen 10-2.

Hibbing Impressive In Winning MJCAA Hockey Tournament Title

There was a Hibbing banner hanging in the Thief River Falls sports arena during the 1979 Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA) state hockey tournament that read, "Cards Play With A Full Deck." That deck included a pair of aces in defensemen Mike Gagner and Jim Underwood and trump "Cards" in forwards Mark Baker and Kris Walters that gave the Cardinals a winning hand in the two-day, four-team event played here.

Hibbing was very impressive in beating Northland 10-2 Saturday and knocking off Crookston 8-3 in Sunday's championship game. It was the Cardinals' fourth state title in the past six years, all under the direction of veteran coach Frank Catani.

"This is the best team I've ever had," exclaimed Catani. "We've got some awful powerful hockey players out there in Underwood and Gager."

It was supposed to be the best-balanced field in the nine years of MJCAA hockey, but Crookston's 6-5 first round overtime win over Rainy River provided the only excitement as Hibbing outclassed both Northland and Crookston. In addition, Rainy River crushed Northland 15-2 in Sunday's consolation game.

Hibbing will take an 18-6 record to the 1979 national junior college athletic association (NJCAA) tournament at Canton, N.Y. March 9-10.

Hibbing 8
Crookston 3

Leading by a mere 2-1 after one period, Hibbing used four power play goals to build an 8-1 cushion midway through the third period before settling for an 8-3 championship game victory over Crookston.

Crookston matched up well at the start, but Hibbing went up 2-0 as Andy Chisel grabbed a rebound that appeared behind Crookston goalie Dean Grindahl at 11:27 and Mike Gager sent a power play slap shot through a screen at 14:49. A 2-on-1 rebound goal by Tom Noah at 17:41 pulled Crookston within 2-1, but the Trojans never really threatened to take that lead away from the Cardinals.

"I don't know if we were too tight or what, but we never got anything going," noted Crookston coach Mick Metzer. "We tightened up. Everybody was afraid of making a mistake."

Two power play goals helped Hibbing to a 5-1 lead in the second period as the Cardinals controlled play behind the end-to-end work of Gager and blueline partner Jim Underwood. They contributed five points to the Hibbing weekend total of 10. Ranked fourth and fifth, respectively, in the regular season MJCAA scoring charts, Baker finished the year with 34 goals, 28 assists and 62 points in league play and Walters ended with 28 goals, 32 assists and 60 points.

Jeff Hady also scored twice as Hibbing out-shot Crookston 59-25.

Noah scored two goals and Tom Schmitz had one, 56 seconds after Noah's goal late in the third period, for Crookston.

Crookston completed a 13-9 season.

Crookston 6
Rainy River 5

Bruce Foss corralled a loose puck in front of the net and put a backhand past Rainy River goalie Mark Pelowski just 20 seconds into a scheduled 10-minute sudden death overtime period as Crookston opened the tournament with an exciting 6-5 win.

The way in which the Trojans scored wasn't unique, according to Rainy River coach Terry Thompson. "The thing that has been hurting us all year and that hurt us in this game was inexperience on defense," he explained. "We didn't know how to handle a bouncing puck. They went for the puck instead of the man."

It was a disappointing loss for the Voyageurs whose high-powered line of Kevin Gordon, Chuck Green and Al Portinen was held to a goal apiece. They missed a bundle of scoring opportunities. "I thought we dominated the game," said Thompson. "I thought the third period was all ours."

The game's pace changed dramatically from an explosive first period, when Rainy River scored twice on the power play and once shorthanded for a 4-3 lead, into a much more conservative I-don't-dare-make-a-mistake finish. It was 5-5 after two periods and that's the way regulation play ended after a scoreless third period — an MJCAA rarity.

"Both teams had chances to win it in regulation time," reported Crookston coach Mick Metzer. "We got the one that went in."

Metzer was right. Crookston could have scored at 11:20 of the third period, but Mark Ogaard was stopped on a clean breakaway by Pelowski. And Rainy River could have scored 90 seconds later when a brilliant move by Gordon put him face-to-face with Crookston goalie Dean Grindahl. . . who made the save.

There were 11 different marksmen in the game. Both teams had three power play opportunities, with Rainy River cashing in on three chances and Crookston once.

Crookston began the scoring at 1:25 of the first period when Jeff Goos got off an uncontested backhand. That same shot worked for Rainy River's Barry Woods on a power play at the nine-minute mark.

Green got his goal on a power play at 12:44 as he slammed a point-blank shot through Grindahl's skates.

It became 3-1 on a neat passing display between Portinen and Green as they broke free for a two-on-one rush while penalty skating at 14:45.

Dean Byfuglien's wrist shot brought Crookston to within 3-2 at 15:56, but a quick 14 seconds later speedy Dennis Marchuck's long slap shot trickled through Grindahl for another two-goal edge, 4-2.

Pelowski contributed to Crookston's third goal at 18:54 when he made a save on a long slap shot that bounced away from him. While flat on the ice, Pelowski reached out with his stick and pulled the puck back in. . .to the net.

Crookston tied it 4-4 at 3:46 of the second period as Rhody Johnson tried to pass the puck in front of the net. He was unsuccessful, but got the puck back and put it in himself.

Gordon followed in his own shot for a rebound on a power play at 6:22 for a 5-4 advantage, but standing alone in front, Crookston's Todd Wilcox tied it with a backhand at 13:37.

Hibbing 10
Northland 2

After an outstanding opener, Saturday's nightcap was a dud as Hibbing overwhelmed host Northland 10-2 behind a four-goal performance by Kris Walters.

"I didn't think we'd be that awesome," smiled Hibbing coach Frank Catani. "Northland just had a hard time getting the puck out of their own end. Our kids have really been forechecking well."

It was a 1-1 hockey game through most of the first period. Hibbing's Jeff Hady was allowed to roam in front of Northland goalie Joe Klosterman with the puck and he used the opportunity for a game-opening goal at 5:12 that was matched by a Karl Chromy tip-in at 8:50.

But back-to-back breakaway goals by Walters and Mark Baker, who had a four-point night, at 18:33 and 19:26 supplied the Cardinals with a 3-1 lead at the first intermission.

It became an official rout in the second period when Hibbing built an 8-1 cushion. Greg Rudolph's deflection at 2:02 preceded a four-goal barrage in a 4½-minute span midway through the period. Walters got two of those on hard slap shots, with Hady being set up in front for his second goal and Baker getting a tip-in.

"They were ready to play hockey, and we weren't," surmised Northland coach Bob Lundbohm. "They beat us everywhere — in our end, in the neutral zone and in their end."

Mike Olson's slap shot trickled through Hibbing goalie Bill Nyberg at 15:22 of the third period, but Hibbing got that one back 16 seconds later and then completed the embarrassment on a power play at 19:34 when Walters collected his fourth goal on assists from the Cardinals' outstanding defensive tandem of Mike Gager and Jim Underwood who earned three assists apiece.

"I always thought we were just as good as Hibbing, but we weren't even in the same ball park," sighed Lundbohm.

Rainy River 15
Northland 2

Northland completed its worst weekend performance of the year by absorbing a 15-2 humiliation at the hands of Rainy River in Sunday's consolation game.

Rainy River standout Kevin Gordon led the mauling by scoring four goals and adding an assist to up his MJCAA-leading figures to 50 goals, 41 assists and 91 points. Linemates Chuck Green and Al Portinen were no less productive as Green scored three times and collected three assists while Portinen scored only once but was credited with five assists to give that line a 17-point game.

LHS Girls Lose To EGF 38-26

Scoring a mere six points in the second half, the Lincoln high school girls basketball team was a 38-26 loser at East Grand Forks Saturday. The game was postponed from Thursday because of the stormy weather.

East Grand Forks, beaten by Thief River Falls 45-43 a month ago, led 12-6 at the end of the first quarter before falling behind 20-17 at halftime. But the Thief River Falls offense disappeared after intermission as East Grand Forks went ahead 27-24 in the third quarter and held the Prowlers to just two fourth quarter points.

"We just stood around," reported disappointed Thief River Falls coach Sylvia Sjoberg. The Prowlers made just two of 23 second half field goal attempts.

Sue Thompson scored 15 points for the winners and Alice Tack added 10. Julie Easton led the Prowlers with 10 points.

Thief River Falls, now 7-10 for the year, will compete its 1978-79 regular season schedule Tuesday when the Prowlers host Bemidji in a 7:30 p.m. make-up contest.

The 1979 Region 8AA Sub Region 4 girls basketball tournament will be played Monday and Wednesday, March 5 and 7, at East Grand Forks.

Prowlers Edge Otters 2-1 For Second Place Finish

Number two seed in this week's 1979 Section 8 high school hockey tournament went to Thief River Falls Friday when the Prowlers closed out their 1978-79 regular season schedule with a 2-1 victory over Fergus Falls in a head-to-head confrontation with the Otters for that second spot opposite top-seeded Roseau.

Wade Hoppe scored twice, both times on assists from Jim Thompson and Jeff Ulrich, as Thief River Falls completed a 14-6 season — best regular season record for the Prowlers since a 15-5 mark in 1971-72. Fergus Falls, meanwhile, dropped to 13-7 and third place in the Section 8 point standings.

"I felt it was a pretty well-played game," said Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand. "It was definitely even."

Hoppe's line broke a scoreless deadlock at 4:26 of the second period, but Fergus Falls' Jody Wentler tied it 1-1 less than a minute later. The game-winner came at 5:07 of the third period.

"It was a good way to go into the tournament," reported Grand. "We played three pretty good periods. We had several good scoring chances, and defensively we played pretty well."

N.D. Badlands Are Picturesque Sight

"A plain where a round-up is taking place offers a picturesque sight. I well remember one such. It was on a level bottom, in a bend of the river, which here made an almost semicircular sweep. The bottom was in shape of a long oval, hemmed in by an unbroken line of steep bluffs so that it looked like an amphitheater. Across the faces of the dazzling white cliffs there were sharp bands of black and red drawn by the coal seams and the layers of burned clay."

So young Teddy Roosevelt described a scene along the Little Missouri river during his ranching days in the North Dakota Badlands. Theodore Roosevelt came to western North Dakota as a young man in 1883 on a hunting trip. He was so taken with the land that he purchased the Chimney Butte ranch south of present day Medora. He went back east after leaving two local ranchhands in charge and later purchased another ranch, the Elkhorn, about 40 miles north of Medora.

After the deaths of his mother and wife in a 24-hour period, Roosevelt returned to the Badlands. He ranched and hunted the area, as well as wrote his experiences in the Dakotas. After the severe winter of 1886-87, when almost 80 per cent of the cattle in the Badlands died, Roosevelt sold his acquisitions in the area. He went on to become President of the United States, but never forgot western North Dakota where he had acquired a love for the land and conceived his conservation ideas that would establish the National Park System, the first such system in the world.

Before Roosevelt left the Dakotas he encountered a man who also left his mark on western North Dakota. The Marquis de Mores, a French nobleman, came to western North Dakota to fulfill his dream of establishing a meat packing empire. The Marquis arrived on the west river bank of the Little Missouri at a town by the same name in April of 1883. He was told there was no room for him or his kind in Little Missouri, so he promptly bought land across the river, pitched his tent and vowed to wipe out the town, which he did.

His new town, Medora, named for his beautiful New York born wife, grew. In the fall of that same year his meat packing plant, built at a cost of $250,000, began operation. By January of 1884 the town of Medora contained 84 buildings.

To accommodate his wife in the manner in which she was accustomed, the Marquis built a 28-room chateau on a bluff overlooking the Little Missouri river. It contained English china, French wines, fine furniture and books of several languages, as well as the hunting trophies of the Marquis and Medora (she was known to be quite a good shot).

All this seemed almost too good to be true — and it was. A series of incidents, both local and back east, and the harsh winter of 1886-87 eventually caused the Marquis to abandon his dream and leave the Badlands of North Dakota.

The town of Medora remains today, not only as a tribute to the Marquis and his dream, but to all the people that helped establish it. The packing plant no longer stands, except for the brick chimney, but there are many reminders of the days of Theodore Roosevelt and the Marquis de Mores.

Buildings in Medora have been rebuilt to depict that colorful time, among them the Ferris General store and the Roughrider hotel. Original buildings from the 1880s include a house the Marquis built for his inlaws when they came to visit (today containing a doll collection), St. Mary's church, and nearby, the Chateau de Mores complete with all its original furnishings.

Also at Medora is the entrance to the south unit of Theodore Roosevelt national park. This 70,000 acre park is formed by three seperate units. The rugged natural beauty of the Badlands along the Little Missouri river, formed by centuries of erosion, is exemplified by Theodore Roosevelt national park. Wildlife — including buffalo, deer and prairie dogs — are frequently seen by visitors while driving in the park. View of the Painted canyon from the scenic overlook along Interstate 94 east of Medora is impressive.

Camping areas, motels and restaurants are all found in or around Medora. The Medora musical, featuring a professional cast including the Burning Hills Singers, is performed nightly in a nearby natural amphitheater from mid-June through August. Watching the last rays of the sun playing on the colorful buttes surrounding the amphitheatre will be a memorable experience.

In loving memory of husband, father and grandfather, John A. Ness, who passed away Feb. 24, 1978:

You left a beautiful memory, and a sorrow too great to be told
But, to us who loved and lost you, your memory will never grow old.
Always a silent heartache, many a silent tear,
But always a beautiful memory of one that we loved so dear.
God gave us all strength to bear it, and courage to help us through.

MSU Anthropologist Tells About Dead River Findings

Back 1,200 years ago when Charlemagne was bringing the Western world out of the Dark Ages, even before Viking Leif Ericson made his legendary discovery of North America, Indians were flourishing in the virgin forests and prairies of Minnesota.

They were just beginning to use the bow and arrow, a revolutionary advancement over the spear. Their population in Minnesota was an estimated 15,000. Although they didn't ride horses (Europeans reintroduced horses to the Americas after they disappeared from the continent following the last ice age), evidence shows these Indians traveled hundreds of miles a year, some ranging from southern Minnesota to the Canadian border.

One of their campsites, a 60-by-40 yard plot on the north shore of Lake Otter Tail, along the trickling Dead river in Otter Tail county, was excavated by a Moorhead state university archaeological team in the summer of 1977 after it was uncovered during a road building project. More than 18,000 artifacts — mostly pieces of pottery and stone tools — and 60,000 animal and fish bones were lifted from the top ten inches of soil there along with 18 spearpoints and arrowheads.

The collection, catalogued and pieced together at Moorhead state, was recently turned over to the Otter Tail county historical society museum in Fergus Falls and will be open for public display.

The Dead river site, says Dr. Mike Michlovic, an assistant professor of anthropology at Moorhead state and leader of the excavation, is far from being the oldest excavated archaeological find in Minnesota. (That title belongs to the 8,000-year-old Itasca bison kill site, excavated in the early 1960s.)

"Compared to many other archaeological expeditions," says Michlovic, "it was modest. But the Dead river project did reveal faint outlines of a complicated story, a story of heavy cultural traffic in that lakes region 1,000 years ago between northern and southern cultures."

Otter Tail county, with its rolling wooded countryside and patchwork of lakes, is a resort area today. Judging from the amount and variety of artifacts found at Dead river, Michlovic says, it was apparently just as alluring in prehistory. Besides the scenery, the Otter Tail region brims with wildlife.

Some authorities, Michlovic said, feel that the warfare between the Dakota and Chippewa Indians in the 17th and 18th centuries centered on control of the natural game refuge of the Otter Tail Lake region and in similar areas to the southeast. Game must have been just as plentiful in prehistory.

The Moorhead state archaeological crew found at the ancient Dead river fire pits the charred bones of bison, beaver, black bear, elk, otter, racoon, duck, deer, wolf and muskrat along with the bones of thousands of fish. They also dug up with broken pieces of pottery the burnt seeds from a variety of plants and berries — from acorns to hackberries — that still grow in the lakes region.

"Our stereotype of Indians eking out a scant existence from a stingy wilderness doesn't fit these prehistoric people," Michlovic said. "They apparently lived well off the land and thrived because they were skilled hunters and gatherers."

The fire pits at Dead river also gave Michlovic a firm hold on the age of the campsite. A radiocarbon date of A.D. 885 was established on one handful of charcoal dug from the prehistoric fire pit; another sample yielded a radiocarbon date of A.D. 750. These were two of maybe a half dozen radiocarbon dates ever collected in northwestern Minnesota, Michlovic said. (Carbon 14, which exists only in organic materials, decays at a known rate, allowing scientists to establish the age of organic materials by mearsuring the loss of Carbon 14, a process known as radiocarbon dating.)

Pottery, however, proved to be the most serviceable footprint and calendar for the archaeologists.

Pottery making came to Minnesota in about 500 B.C., Michlovic said, and spread quickly. It apparently made life much easier by allowing the Indians to cook a larger variety of foods with more convenience.

But pottery, before hardening in fire, is also soft and malleable and nearly every ancient culture that took up the craft began to create its own distinct pottery designs.

The Moorhead state archaeological team, tracing the distrinctive marks left on pottery pieces and the slight differences in the shapes of spearpoints and arrowheads, found evidence that at least four different prehistoric cultures visited the Dead river campsite between 700 and 900 A.D. Here is a report on those people:

Laurel Culture — Siberian Influences?

Only 10 pieces of pottery from the earliest culture group, called Laurel, were found at the Dead river lakeshore site. They all came from the same pot.

Before the Otter Tail excavation, few if any Laurel artifacts have been found this far south in Minnesota, Michlovic said. In northern Minnesota and in Ontario, Laurel culture has been dated from between 500 B.C. and 500 A.D.

Although no radiocarbon date is available for Laurel artifacts at Dead river, he said, these people were probably closely related to their northern counterparts. There, he said, Laurel people practiced a seasonally varying round of hunting, fishing and gathering and occasionally made forays into the prairie to hunt bison. Since only fragments of a single Laurel pot were Found at Otter Tail, maybe Laurel people never visited the site. Maybe, Michlovic said, the vessel was traded south, or perhaps it was the work of a single Laurel potter who wandered south from the northern Minnesota forests.

More mysterious, said Michlovic, is that Laurel pottery bears close resemblance to Siberian ceremics. "Is this coincidence? Or the last remaining evidence of some primeval contacts between the continents? We don't know," he said.

Brainerd Net Pottery — Fishing the Dead River?

More of a second kind of pottery was found at Dead river, probably contemporary with Laurel. It is known as Brainerd net pottery, after the city of Brainerd west of Mille Lacs Lake.

Pottery from this culture is covered with checkered impressions, suggesting, Michlovic said, that nets were used to form their ceramics. Most of the Brainerd artifacts were found near the center of the site along with a large number of mussel shells. These people were probably gathering shellfish and fishing at the Dead river.

The first examples of Brainerd net pottery weren't identified by archeologists until the late 1960s, Michlovic said. And few excavations in Minnesota — maybe less than a half dozen — have yielded others.

Since they are known contemporaries of the Laurel, and since Laurel pottery was found in the same part of the site as Brainerd net, Michlovic said, the two peoples may have exploited the Otter Tail region together or at different seasons.

"We do not know what these ancient potters, the makers of Laurel and Brainerd ceremics, called themselves," Michlovic said. "Or what modern tribes they were related to. There has been little speculation by archaeologists."

Some prehistorians, however, have suggested that Laurel culture may have been influenced by a society of Illinois Indians. "The Midwest seemed to be connected by networks of communication and trade," Michlovic said, "and perhaps was traveled by populations looking for a new or better living."

Blackduck — Radiocarbon Dates Of A Larger Culture

If there has been little speculation about Laurel and Brainerd peoples, the opposite is true of Blackduck, Michlovic said. The broken fragments of over 60 Blackduck pots, decorated with distinctive marks and stick impressions, were found at the Dead river site. Two of the vessels were discovered mixed with burnt animal bones and charcoal and yielded the two radiocarbon dates from the excavation.

Of all the known prehistoric cultures in Minnesota, few have generated as much controversy as Blackduck, Michlovic said.

Who were they? One guess is that they were the prehistoric ancestors of the Assiniboine Indians who now live in western Canada and Montana. The Assiniboine, according to tradition, broke away from the Dakota (Sioux) some time before the Europeans arrived. The languages of both groups, Michlovic said, are similar.

Since the Dakota lived in central Minnesota when the French and English first made contact with them, perhaps Blackduck culture represented the movement of Assiniboine away from the Mille Lacs region in prehistoric times. This, Michlovic said, would also explain why pottery from Mille Lacs is so similar to Blackduck. Both were made by peoples who were at one time the same tribe.

But many archaeologists disagree. Blackduck artifacts are distributed all over the western Great Lakes area and into the plains of Canada. No single tribe could have occupied so large an area, some argue.

Blackduck, then, could represent several tribes, perhaps speakers of the same language — Algonkian, a common language found in that area in prehistory.

Whoever the Blackduck people were, Michlovic said, they seem to have adopted different ceremic practices by the time the Europeans arrived. Ahead of the French and English traders and missionaries, European metal technology spread rapidly among the Indians and replaced such traditional craft products as clay pots and stone arrowpoints.

Southwestern People On An Expedition

For archaeologists, the fourth cultural group at Dead river is the most tantalizing, Michlovic said. The kind of pottery they used hasn't been given a name. But, it looks much like the ceremic wares found in South Dakota, Southern Minnesota and Iowa; a precursor to the ceremics of the village peoples who later lived in the Missouri river region of South and North Dakota.

Their occupation at Otter Tail may represent a hunting or fishing expedition to the game rich lakes country of western Minnesota by a group pushed or moving on their own to the Great Plains, Michlovic said. They visited Dead river around 1,100 A.D.

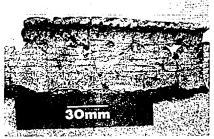
The distinctive broad trailed line pottery of these Indians was found at the site with large quantities of an agate-like rock called chalcedony, which prehistoric people used for stone tools. It was often traded from the Knife river area of western North Dakota. Some archaeologists, Michlovic said, might speculate that the makers of this pottery were already part of a broad network of trade around the Missouri river that would eventually become their home.

Although it didn't reveal any sensational secrets of antiquity, the Dead river site is now a preserved link with the past that may help future archaeologists piece together a more detailed story of these people.

"The excavation also highlighted the importance of laws that protect our ever dwindling store of antiquities," Michlovic added. "Without them, no one would have thought to look for prehistoric artifacts at the Dead river site. The bulldozers and cranes would have swept away in hours what took literally hundreds of years of cultural activity to deposit."

A slide-sound tape cassette explaining how the Dead river site was discovered, excavated and pieced together is available without charge to area schools and civic groups. To request the 15-minute cassette program, contact Mike Michlovic at Moorhead state, (218) 236-2632.

DR. MIKE MICHLOVIC, assistant professor of anthropology at Moorhead state university, examines artifacts from the Dead river site in Otter Tail county at the university anthropology lab.



PIECED TOGETHER rim of a 1,200-year-old Blackduck vessel found at the Dead river site. The rest of the pot, 500 pieces, will be put together at the Otter Tail county historical society museum in Fergus Falls.

Walter Heller Gives Views On Economy

There is about a 50-50 likelihood of an economic recession by the end of 1979, but so far there are few signs of a cooling economy, according to Walter Heller, Regents' professor of economics at the University of Minnesota.

And even a nationwide recession may leave Minnesota unscathed because we do not rely on heavy industrial goods as much as some states, and the future for farm products, particularly feed grains, is bright, Heller added.

Speaking at the dedication of the Earle Brown continuing education center on the St. Paul campus of the University, Heller said that so far most business forecasters see few warnings of a business slowdown.

"Consumers are saving at a rate lower than the average in past years, indicating their confidence in the future and their willingness to take on installment debt," Heller said. This is partly due to the age makeup of the population. Large number of young adults are in their 20s and early 30s, typically ages when they form families, buy homes and take on debts in anticipation of higher income in the future.

These young adults are also entering the labor force in record numbers "With high employment and many two-income households, consumers will continue to spend," Heller added.

Even if there is not a recession this year, Heller expects a slowing growth rate and moderating inflation rate by late 1979 or early 1980. He credits President Carter's anti-inflation program with keeping those pressures in line. "Businessmen are treating the voluntary wage-price restraints as if they were mandatory and I suspect there will be widespread conformity."

Although wage and price controls are unpopular, Heller says they often are the only way to de-escalate inflation caused by wages and prices constantly pushing each other higher.

He foresees inflation continuing at about an eight or nine per cent rate for the next six months or so, falling to about seven per cent by year's end.

Unpredictable forces could alter these forecasts, Heller warns. Unsettled Iranian situation could bring about an oil shortage that would further boost prices and trigger inflation. Similarly, unfavorable weather in the coming growing season could hike grocery prices and make inflation difficult to throttle.

Minn. Foods Expo Earns World Fame

Although it is strictly a domestic promotion for expanding markets for Minnesota food and agricultural products, the 15 year success reputation of the All Minnesota Foods Expo has traveled around the world.

Letter received from just about as far away on planet earth from Minnesota as one can visualize, Sydney, Australia, not only confirms that fact but as well has apparently opened the door for agricultural exports to that South Pacific nation that supplies the lion's share of United States' beef imports.

Minnesota Food Expos earlier won the 1978 national award for trade shows.

"We owe your name to the office of the commercial library of the U.S. consulate in Sydney," the managing director of a major Australian foodstuffs importer began the letter addressed to Walter Oftedahl of the marketing services division of the Minnesota department of agriculture.

The Australian importer advised of plans to visit the United States in mid-1979 "to investigate items which may be of interest to us. . .We would appreciate the locations and dates of Food Expos and a list of the manufacturers and the businesses with whom we may correspond."

Oftedahl, who is the planner and manager for the All Minnesota Foods Expos cooperatively sponsored by farm commodity associations, food processors, and marketers, and by the Minnesota department of agriculture, immediately expedited a warm response jointly with E. Barrett Schlenk, the department's international trade specialist.

Response included a special invitation to visit Minnesota, a copy of the 1979 Food Expo schedule, and the new edition of the state agency's "Buyers Guide to High Quality Minnesota Food and Agricultural Products."

Buyers Guides have been mailed to the agricultural attaches of all U.S. embassies throughout the world, and are personally delivered by state agriculture officials to U.S. wholesale food buyers attending the Food Expos.

To Discuss Chemicals And Crops Tillage

How to achieve bumper yields of small grain and sunflowers at minimum costs will be the toppic of discussion at a meeting scheduled by the Pennington county extension service Thursday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the courthouse meeting room.

Empahsis will be on weed control and fertilizer needs with discussion of application rates, tank mixes and timing of chemical treatments. Getting the best weed control results from tillage will also be reviewed.

Speakers for the program from the University of Minnesota will be Charles [illegible] Strand, extension agronomist; Marlin Johnson, crops and soils agent; and Terry Courneya, county extension director.

Methodist Arm Joins Coalition On Free Choice

Social action arm of the Minnesota United Methodist church voted at its February meeting to join the Minnesota Coalition for Freedom of Choice. Latter organization has a number of state religious, women's and social service groups among its members.

Speaking for the board of church and society, chairperson Roger Parks stated, "We do not like the polarization that is going on (on the issue of abortion), but we are not willing to let only one side be heard.

"Pro-choice we feel is a sound, legitimate choice arrived at theologically by the United Methodist church and by others of the Judeo-Christian heritage." Although members of the board of church and society speak only for themselves and not for the church as a whole, Parks stated the position his group has taken is consistent with legislative action of the Minnesota conference and of the general conference of the denomination.

One of the social principles of the nine million member denomination, approved by its general conference in 1976, states:

"The beginning of life and the ending of life are the God-given boundaries of human existence. While individuals have always had some degree of control over when they would die, they now have the awesome power to determine when and even whether new individuals will be born. Our belief in the sanctity of unborn human life makes us reluctant to approve abortion.

"But we are equally bound to respect the sacredness of the life and well-being of the mother, for whom devastating damage may result from an unacceptable pregnancy. In continuity with past Christian teaching, we recognize tragic conflicts of life with life that may justify abortion. We call all Christians to a searching and prayerful inquiry into the sorts of conditions that may warrant abortion.

"We support the legal option of abortion under proper medical procedures. Nevertheless, governmental laws and regulations do not necessarily provide all the guidance required by the informed Christian conscience. Therefore, a decision concerning abortion should be made after thorough and thoughtful consideration by the parties involved, with medical and pastoral counsel."

As to why the board chose to publicly announce its joining the coalition, the Aurora-Hoyt Lakes clergyman responded, "We want to give voice to those Christians who feel compelled to be pro-choice, but who to this point have not had the view publicly stated by a religious body."

AMPI Objects To Carter's Trade Package

Congressional approval of the Carter administration's proposed multilateral trade package will surely put thousands of U.S. dairy farmers out of business, the head of Associated Milk Producers, Inc., warned today.

Irvin J. Elkin, an Amery, Wisconsin dairy farmer and president of the regional dairy cooperative, said the dairy portion of the package "is bad news for consumers too."

This package results in doubling the quota for imported cheese and crippling the present safeguards against subsidized dumping.

"It is just the tip of the iceberg", he said. "If this agreement is approved by congress, the door is open for a complete reversal of a U.S. dairy policy that has served the country well."

Now the dairy farmers are being asked to be the sacrificial lambs in the name of expanded trade, he said.

Under the dairy portion of the package, cheese quotas would be increased by 128 million pounds, Elkin said. The administration is claiming only 67 million pounds would be brought in on an annual basis, he charged. But another concession would contribute to disproportionate damage to U.S. farmers and consumers. More imports would be an extra cost to the taxpayers and the long term result will be higher prices to consumers, Elkin said.

"There is no justifiable basis for granting the unfair concessions," Elkin said, "and therefore, we will wage a vigorous fight to preserve our present milk marketing system."

'U'M Receives $176,000 Grant To Study MS

University of Minnesota researcher has received a $176,000 grant from the National Multiple Sclerosis society to study bowel, bladder and sexual dysfunctions associated with multiple sclerosis (MS).

Neurologist William Bradley will direct a two-year study of about 100 persons with MS, the most common central nervous system disease among young adults.

MS, which affects about 500,000 Americans, interferes with the brain's ability to control such activities as sight, speech and mobility. It can also impair excretory and sexual functions.

Bradley's study aims at improving diagnostic procedures and treatments, such as drug therapy and prosthetic devices, available for these dysfunctions.

Although environmental and hereditary factors are suspected, the cause of MS is unknown. No cure has been found for this disease, which prinicpally affects young adults in colder climates.

Research grant was made possible by a contribution from Ray and Joan Kroc.

Council Votes Widening Of First Street Bridge

A new resolution outlining the Thief River Falls city council's position regarding the proposed widening of First street and First street bridge was passed when the council met in a regular session Tuesday. The resolution, introduced by alderman Bill Penning, states that the council is in favor of the widening of both First street and First street bridge as well as completing the signalization project — all in an effort to relieve traffic congestion in the First street area. The motion will be forwarded to the Pennington county board before that group makes its final decision on project participation March 6.

Prior to the passage of the resolution a lively discussion took place regarding the respective merits of a First street bridge project and Greenwood street bridge construction. It was pointed out that the planning commission has gone on record in support of both projects and, in the opinion of council members voting in favor of the widening of First street bridge, the projects are not mutually exclusive. The opposition, however, believes that if the First street bridge is widened, Greenwood construction will be indefinitely delayed. When the matter went to a vote, the resolution introduced by Penning passed five to two with alderman Milan Borsheim and Mayor Bob Carlson dissenting.

The Oakland Park bridge on Oakland Park road near Pennington Pioneer village was also discussed at Tuesday's meeting and the council was informed that some bridge funds might become available in the near future for small projects. In anticipation of the monies, the council instructed city engineer Doug Stewart to draw up plans and specifications for replacement of the Oakland Park bridge. Engineering cost is expected to run between $1,000 and $1,500. Then, if bridge monies become available, a swift application could be made for the estimated $80,000 project.

The city engineer was also authorized to apply for state and federal funds to complete a preliminary engineering study to determine the needs of the city's sewage treatment facility in the near future. Estimated cost of the study is $69,000 — 75 per cent of which would be paid by the environmental protection agency (EPA). Fifteen per cent of the cost of the study would be borne by the pollution control agency (PCA) and the city's participation in the study would be only 10 per cent or $6,900.

The application, which must be filed by March 15, will be made to the region five EPA. One of the areas the study would be expected to explore is the problem of rainwater inflow into the sanitary sewer system. According to the engineer, the study would be the first phase of the project with plans and specifications for any construction that is found necessary being the next step and actual construction taking place in five or 10 years' time.

An increase in parking fines was approved by the council at the recommendation of police chief Ken Froschheiser. Scheduled to go into effect as soon as tickets can be printed, the new rate for all violations except double parking will be $2. A $3 fine will be charged for double parking and the snow removal fine will remain at $5.

Proven Yield Crop Data Is Due March 5

"Farmers in Pennington county are reminded that March 5 is the final day to inform the ASCS office if they intend to prove their 1977 or 1978 yeilds of wheat, barley or corn," states Harold Kalsnes, ASC committee chairman.

"Since program deficiency payments are based on individual farm yields, any farmer who can prove his actual crop yields to be higher than the yield assigned to his farm will find it to be to his financial advantage to do so," Kalsnes said.

The March 5 deadline is the final date for a farmer-producer to indicate to the U.S. department of agriculture that he intends to prove his yield. He then has another 30 days to provide proof of yield to the ASCS county committee. Proof consists of elevator scale tickets or assembly sheets, C.C.C. loan documents, etc. If a farmer has grain stored on the farm, the ASCS office will measure it.

CHAMELEON THEATRE COMPANY, INC. will present "You Know I Can't Hear You When the Water's Running," three comic one acts written by Robert Anderson, Thursday — Saturday at the Elk's Club. The show, a dinner theatre production, requires advance reservations with tickets on sale at the Elks, Ekeren Drug and Larson Music. Company members Dave Cameron (left) and Kathy Knudson are pictured rehearsing "The Footsteps of Doves," the second of the three one-acts to be presented. They portray Harriet and George who, after 25 years of marriage, are shopping for twin beds. All three one acts deal with comic moments in marriage situations.

School Board OKs Free Use Of Gyms

Increased utilization of Thief River Falls school district gymnasiums by the area public may result from action taken Monday by the Thief River Falls board of education. The board adopted a resolution to make all school gymnasiums open to organized groups with adult leadership at no cost provided 10 days advance notice is received and the use is recommended by the principal and buildings and grounds supervisor.

Dan Olson, buildings and grounds supervisor, advised the board that there has never been maximum use of gymnasiums in elementary buildings. Under the present fee schedule of $10 per night, the school district would stand to earn a net of only $4,200 if all four elementary gymnasiums were used each of the 175 evenings of the school year.

Superintendent William Corliss suggested prior to the vote that the board weigh the maximum potential income against the opportunity for supervised organizational activity which would be afforded if the gymnasiums were open without charge.

Buildings supervisor Olson said that custodial time for cleaning is not an added cost since elementary gyms are cleaned either late in the evening or early in the morning during regular scheduling. Primary cost to the district from evening gymnasium use would be lights and heat loss from more opening of doors.

Discussion was held by the board on administrative recommendations for cutting $100,000 from the 1979-80 school district budget as Phase A of budget reduction. Supt. Corliss noted that the school district is looking toward a net budget cut of $300,000 for the 1979-80 school year. He said he expects $250,000 in new income from interest and an adjustment in foundation aid to help offset a total budget reduction of about $550,000. Phase B of the budget procedure would involve negotiated salaries, he said, while Phase C would cover cost increases of supplies and equipment.

Board action on Phase A of the budget reduction is scheduled for the March 12 meeting.

Approval was given by the board Monday evening to drop one first grade teacher and unit at Mark Twain elementary school for the 1979-80 school year and to add one fifth grade teacher and unit at St. Hilaire for the 1979-80.

"I'm Trying To Do The Community A Favor . . . ."

Councilman Explains Property Position

THIS PROPERTY is the area in question for possible location of a new Holiday stationstore in Thief River Falls. The property was purchased by Council man Dr. Donald Goodrich as an alternate site to a downtown location orginally preferred by Holiday. It has been offered to Holiday by Dr. Goodrich for his purchase price and Holiday has agreed to purchase — pending awarding of necessary permits to allow construction and operation. Public hearing on a proposed zoning change to prevent such construction and operation has been scheduled for March 19.

Times Editor

"I never thought I could get into so much trouble by trying to do the community a favor," laments Dr. Donald Goodrich, member of the Thief River Falls city council and owner of property available for sale to Holiday Stationstores, Inc., for construction of a new stationstore in this city.

"People are accusing me of profiteering, saying I have purchased property that I have absolutely no interest in, spreading all sorts of rumors," he said. "From the very beginning my intent has been to make a property exchange as a community service and not to benefit from it."

Dr. Goodrich found himself in the current predicament when he stepped into the breach between the city and an alliance of Holiday and Northwestern Hospital services. Holiday and the hospital had joined in a suit against the city over the council's refusal to grant a variance allowing Holiday to move from its present site across the street and the hospital to acquire the present Holiday property.

"My position was that negotiation should certainly precede litigation," Dr. Goodrich said. "I was encouraged by the hospital board to contact Brad Steinman of the Holiday company to see if Holiday could be interested in alternative sites for a new stationstore.

"My motive for trying to find a solution to the problem out of court was not that I felt the city would lose the case, but that if the city's position was upheld we would still have a gas station next to the hospital. That is a condition which shouldn't be conforming under any uniform building codes."

Dr. Goodrich said he did contact Steinman and found him receptive to consideration of another site. Goal was to come up with a suitable site for $100,000 or less. Up to seven sites were considered, some of which were not available, too expensive or did not offer suitable traffic to appeal to Holiday's desires.

Steinman agreed to inspect the site presently under consideration southeast of the intersection of First street and highway 59, but only if a firm dollar figure for acquisition could be provided, Dr. Goodrich said. This necessitated making option agreements with the property owners.

"I asked the council at this point to step in and buy these options but they declined," Dr. Goodrich said. "After several weeks of working on this agreement, I said I was willing to use my own money ($216) for these options. They told me to go ahead."

Meanwhile, Holiday company was in negotiations with Northwestern hospital for the hospital's purchase of the existing Holiday site. Agreement has now been reached on that purchase, pending Holiday's acquisition of necessary agreements and permits to construct and move to a new facility.

"My short term options were running out and I had to act before any final decision could be made by Holiday," Dr. Goodrich explains. "I went ahead and bought the property, feeling that it was in fact a reasonable investment and that removal of the Highway 59 Fixit Shop, a snowmobile repair business, would be welcomed by the neighborhood. When I was campaigning for office in that area, several persons mentioned the annoyance of snowmobiles crossing their property to get to the shop."

Residents of the neighborhood apparently didn't agree with Dr. Goodrich's assessment of their desires. They prepared petitions objecting to location of a Holiday stationstore at that corner and asking that zoning of the area be changed from its present C2 (highway commercial) designation. C2 zoning permits construction of service stations and other highway commercial business.

The city planning commission voted to recommend to the city council that zoning be changed to prohibit the Holiday project. At a subsequent meeting the planning commission rescinded its action, later abiding by a council request that a public hearing on the zoning be held. Date for that hearing has been set for March 19.

The suit by Holiday and the hospital against the city is still pending. Should Holiday be unable to relocate in another acceptable site, it is expected that suit will be brought to trial.

Local Attorney Speaks at BPW Dinner-Meeting

Kurt Marben, local attorney, was guest speaker at the February dinner-meeting of the Thief River Falls Business and Professional Women's club held recently at the Elks dining room. He was introduced by Phyllis Olson, program chairman for the month.

Attorney Marben spoke on the rights of cohabitants and the rights in home solicitation sales. In regard to men and women living together as husband and wife without being legally married, he stated that the states are awaiting the outcome of the Marvin vs. Marvin case in California. He said that although many states recognize the common-law marriage, the state of Minnesota does not.

In purchases made during home solicitations, he said that the purchaser has three days in which to revoke the sale. Within those three days, the purchaser must return the flier on the back of the contract, notifying the seller that the sale is being revoked. The purchaser is entitled to any money paid the company, and the company is entitled to the goods. This does not pertain to mail orders.

A lively question and answer period followed his presentation.

Vice president Carol Muckala presided at the meeting in the absence of president Clarice Galliher. Report on the Winter Board meeting at Brooklyn Park, attended by Vickie Erickson and Gen Englesrud, was given by Miss Erickson. She stated that Norma Hanson, a member of the local club, is a candidate for the National legislative board, with election to be held at the National convention at Boston, Mass.

Rosemary Voecks reported that the local club has five candidates for Young Careerist program. The theme of this year's contest is "Thresholds to New Horizons." The winner of the local contest will be selected at the March meeting and will then be eligible for district competition to be held March 24 at the Spring District I meeting in Crookston. To allow the winner more time between local and district competition, members voted to change the March meeting of the local club to the second Tuesday of the month, in place of the regular third Tuesday meeting.

The program concluded with the initiation of new members by Betty Liden, second vice-president. Initiated were Kim Blaeser, Edie Brandli and Phyllis Olson. New members unable to be present for the initiation were Mary Johnson and Amy Schroeder.

Former TRF Woman Receives PWP Top Award

Donna Rux Jorgenson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Rux of Thief River Falls, won the annual top participation award at the annual awards and installation dinner of the Grand Forks Parents Without Partners (PWP) chapter held February 17.

Mrs. Jorgenson, a sophomore at the University of North Dakota, is a single parent with two children. She is working towards a college degree in social work.

At the dinner, she was cited as the most active over-all of the chapter's 209 members for 1978.

Especially active in family activity events since joining the chapter in the fall of 1977, she served in 1978 on the chapter's board of directors as the family activities director. She was a voting delegate from the chapter at several Northern Lights regional PWP meetings, and last month was elected a director-at-large on the regional board of directors, which includes chapters from four Canadian communities, as well as those from North Dakota, South Dakota and one Minnesota chapter.

She will continue on the 1979 board as newly-elected youth activities director. During the past year, she was instrumental in launching a Buddies and Pals club as part of the Grand Forks program. This is an organization of chapter members' children, ages 6 to 11 years, who with adult leadership guidance, organize a number of their own special programs.

Major family programs which she organized, initiated, coordinated or promoted in 1978 were: weekend campouts at public campgrounds or at a given member's cottage, a weekly summer softball game between four teams that included men, women and children on each squad; and an old fashioned carnival held at the Grand Forks Armory.

Her goal this year is to strengthen and broaden the youth programs in not only her local chapter but also throughout the Northern Lights region.

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

The Real Meaning Of Compassion

As a taxpayer, do you know what ballet, street theater, pottery, information about gay people, basketball, advocacy of communism and nude body sculpting workshops all have in common? Probably not, but you should. For each one, and many others like them, have been legitimate tax-supported activities within the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act, or CETA — the federal government's largest employment program.

Congress became so incensed with these activities and other abuses that it insisted CETA begin to devote a greater share of its budget to the training of hardcore unemployed for real jobs in the private sector. Unfortunately, the President is now under pressure to keep the CETA budget for so-called public service jobs at a very high level. I believe that would be a mistake. To understand, let me explain why CETA has failed so badly.

Rather than provide the poor with temporary work and the training needed for eventual productive jobs, many local governments have used CETA money to pay for old jobs previously funded by local taxes. One city is so "hooked" that up to 30 per cent of its employees are on the CETA payroll. By some estimates, CETA subsidizes four existing jobs for each new job it creates. So it is usually the educated with political influence, rather than the truly needy, who are getting most of the jobs.

With control of CETA funding so dependent on the whims of local politicians, the program now resembles an assortment of "goodies" regularly doled out as political patronage. Abuses are commonplace, and many national publications — in particular Readers Digest in August, 1978 — have begun to expose the waste and fraud.

In Buffalo, millions of dollars are mismanaged because of sloppy auditing, payments to ineligible participants and illegal political activity. In New York, someone took a bite out of the Big Apple when $500,000 in "expenses" mysteriously disappeared from one summer youth program. In Washington, D.C., where big government is the home team, they've really learned how to play the game. The D.C. City Council amassed one of the largest staffs in the country, actually paying 56 of its 126 employees with CETA funds. Poor people were still hoping for work in Baltimore, while CETA jobs were found for the wife of a state supreme court judge, the daughter of a United States Court of Appeals judge, as well as the sons of a vice president of a large brewing company, a city public works superintendent, and a member of the Maryland House of Delegates. Had enough?

There's more, much more, but the key point is: CETA has been a cruel disappointment for the poor whose dreams of acquiring training skills, productive jobs and a better life are being frustrated; for the taxpayers whose money is being squandered, and for our economy where billions of dollars are being diverted from tax producing, growth-oriented jobs, to tax consuming activities which can only lead to higher inflation.

Congress was right when it recognized CETA must begin preparing people for the world of work, instead of paying them not to work. For that to happen, proposals like the Private Sector Initiative Program (PSIP,) to increase business involvement in CETA must be sharply upgraded. This program establishes local industry councils, composed of business and labor representatives, to coordinate the training and eventual employment of the hardcore unemployed. The councils should grant top priority to on-the-job training which results in higher rates of employment retention. CETA has almost totally neglected this approach.

The PSIP effort will be even more effective if it is properly coordinated with the work of community - based organizations, which are attuned to the needs of local areas. One such community group is OIC — Opportunities Industrialization Centers — which has combined the philosophy of self-help with acquired skills and positive work attitudes to fashion many successful training programs.

In the name of compassion, CETA's subsidized jobs program has demeaned individuals with hand out work. Businessmen and women know what real compassion is all about — helping people to help themselves. That's why I want to urge them to exercise leadership, get involved in the PSIP program, and turn CETA around. Clearly, business people are the only ones who can. And if they do, look what will have been gained. People now living without hope will have an opportunity to make it, to be somebody, to have character, dignity, and to be self-supporting and free. That's a goal worth working for.

Like most Americans, you probably consider yourself a reasonable person. So perhaps you would agree it only fair, now that Congress has received a handsome payraise, more money for office allowances, postal patron mailings, staff salaries, recreation and travel expenses, that taxpayers finally be given a break. Silly you.

You see, certain Congressmen — thankfully not all — are going after something much bigger. They are pushing for passage of H.R. 1, a bill which would mandate public financing of their own Congressional campaigns. If that bill becomes law, it will be tantamount to offering House members job insurance at taxpayers' expense — a kind of giant Incumbents Protection Bill.

Stripped of its niceties, public financing also suffers from two other fundamental flaws. Both the explanations of why it is needed and how it would work are false. Consider why.

At first glance, the argument for public financing seems as pure as newly-fallen snow. We are warned that we must pass it immediately, or witness the total contamination of our electoral process by the flood of campaign contributions which are coming from sinister and selfish special interest groups.

Sorry, but the latest official figures of financial activities through Nov. 27, 1978, from the Federal Election Commission prove precisely the opposite. During the 1978 Congressional campaigns, a total of $198.5 million was spent on all races. Of that total, more than $130 million, or about two-thirds, was donated by individual Americans, mostly in the form of small contributions of less than $100. That's a very healthy sign.

In contrast, all business and labor political action groups combined gave $32 million in contributions, or just 16 per cent. A participation of 16 per cent can hardly be called excessive or corrupting.

On paper, public financing at least seems plausible. Candidates who could certify they had raised $1,000 in private contributions could receive matching public funds of up to $60,000. In exchange for accepting taxpayers' money, each candidate would have to agree on a spending limit of $195,000. And no candidate could spend more than $25,000 of personal funds.

But, in reality, this so-called reform could quickly degenerate into a political nightmare. How? Let us count just a few of the ways.

First, because of several perfectly legal loopholes, public financing would undoubtedly lead to more, not less spending on political campaigns. For example, any time one candidate in a district wants to spend more than $25,000 of personal funds, which is his or her Constitutional right, or raise more than $75,000 from any legal source, then the spending ceiling for all other candidates accepting public funds is removed. The taxpayers could be stuck with unbelievable costs.

Second, contrary to the will of the people, public financing will result in more bureaucracy. Fifteen presidential candidates who took advantage of the presidential public financing law in the 1976 campaign generated 12 million pages of information for the Federal Election Commission. Can anyone even conceive what the legal and paperwork burden would be for approximately 870 House candidates and 200 Senate candidates?

Third, public financing would, in theory, make it easier for challengers to compete. But in reality, the law would permanently lock in the tremendous advantage already enjoyed by incumbents. In 1978, 95 per cent of all House incumbents running were re-elected.

That was no accident. Even before a campaign begins, an incumbent is busy increasing his name recognition through such tax-supported "non-political" activities as mass mailings, press releases, press conferences and newsletters, all of which are worth about $1 million over the course of a two-year term. Starting out this far ahead, an incumbent has everything to gain by locking an unknown challenger into a spending limitation when the campaign begins.

I do not believe Americans are ready to relinquish control of their elections to a federal bureaucracy, the Federal Election Commission. If that is not true, then why have only 27 per cent of all federal taxpayers agreed to support political campaigns for the presidency through the income tax checkoff system?

People intuitively understand that ultimate control of the political process must remain in their own hands at the local level. We can be thankful the wise words of Thomas Jefferson have not gone unheeded:

"That government is the strongest of which every man feels himself a part."

Guardsmen Finish Two-Week Training

Thief River Falls' army national guard unit, Company B, finished its two weeks annual training Saturday at Camp Ripley, seven miles north of Little Falls. Company B is part of the 2nd Battalion, 136th Infantry (Mechanized), headquartered in Moorhead.

Training at Camp Ripley, which is considered to be the finest army cold weather training facility in the continental United States, gave the unit an opportunity to test itself and its members under winter conditions.

The unit moved into Camp Ripley Saturday, February 10, and issued and drew cold weather equipment. On Sunday they started cold weather training which included basic ski instruction and demonstration and practice in erecting arctic tents, using Yukon type stoves. In addition, they learned how to pack an ahkio (skier-drawn sled for transporting equipment).

During the first week training included:

(1) Individual weapons firing for qualification (M16 rifle, .45 caliber pistol, M60 machine gun and the light antitank weapon (LAW).

(2) Crew-served weapons firing (.50 caliber machine gun, 81mm mortar, 4.2 inch mortar, TOW antitank missile, and Dragon wire-guided armor missile).

(3) Squad type tactical training including squad movement to contact with enemy forces and anti-armor ambush.

During the middle weekend of training, when most unit members had passes to go home, new high school members of the company and their friends visited Camp Ripley.

They lived in the company barracks, ate in the mess hall and were given introductory training in skiing. They also participated in a mock attack in armored personnel carriers. The students went home on Sunday.

Highlight of the second week's training was a four-day, three-night bivouac where guardsmen moved into the field and lived in tents.

During the bivouac they conducted tactical platoon training in which they were evaluated by a Region 5, Fifth Army team.

The tactical platoon training included platoon defense, deliberate attack, movement to contact, hasty attack, preparation of a strong point defense and disengagement under pressure.

"This was a very satisfactory period of training for us. We made a great deal of progress and the experience of operating in a winter environment was invaluable," said Lieutenant Colonel John W. Larson, battalion commander.

Infant Death Rate Drops 21% In Minn.

Death rate for infants under one year of age dropped nearly 21 per cent in Minnesota between 1976 and 1977, according to figures just released by the Minnesota department of health.

Infant deaths in the state declined from 13.9 to 11 for every thousand live births during the year, a decrease of 20.9 per cent. During the same period, infant deaths nationwide dropped 7.9 per cent from 15.2 to 14 per thousand.

Dr. Paul Gunderson of the Minnesota center for health Statistics said the drop in infant mortality here "overshadowed" the national decrease, which he still called "significant." He believes the improved figures here may be due to earlier and more thorough prenatal care, and to a statewide program which refers infants facing special health risks for medical attention.

Sentence Hills On Fraud And Records Counts

Sentences for Lloyd Hill, 67, and his son Gary, 42, former owners of Warren Grain & Seed company which went bankrupt in 1977, were handed down in district court in Bemidji Monday by Judge James Preece.

Lloyd Hill was sentenced to five years in prison but his sentence was stayed and he was ordered to do one year of public service work in the next three years. Gary Hill received five sentences of five years each but Judge Preece allowed them to be served concurrently. Lloyd Hill was put on probation for five years and each was fined $10,000.

The Hills had negotiated pleas of guilty to four counts of felony tax fraud and one count each of falsifying corporate records in exchange for having charges of diverting corporate funds for personal use deferred.

Earlier indictments said the Hills used about $500,000 in corporate funds for personal use, didn't report the money on their tax returns and kept two sets of books to conceal the company's true financial condition from its creditors.

Civil suits brought by Cargill, Inc., against the Hills for recovery of $3.8 million and by area farmers against the Hills and Cargill for $2.2 million were delayed while the criminal suits were being completed. A hearing on the farmers' suit is expected later this year.

Name Sen. Moe To National Committee

State Senator Roger Moe of Ada has been appointed to serve on a special committee of the national conference on state legislatures. Sen. Moe's appointment is to the fiscal affairs and oversight committee which will study various aspects of state budgeting and control of public funds.

"I am proud to be appointed to this oversight committee," Moe said from his Capitol office last week. "The national conference on state legislatures is the major organization that coordinates the activities of the nation's state legislatures, and its purpose is to facilitate more efficient government at the state level. My appointment to the oversight committee will help our state to use the best methods of overseeing how our state tax dollars are spent."

Moe serves as chairman of the senate finance committee which is responsible by law for approving all appropriations of state tax dollars. He said that tax dollars often are wasted because there is insufficient oversight by the legislature in controlling how that money is spent, and he noted that it is time for the legislature to begin reviewing inadequate and unnecessary state regulations.

Two Pole Barn Roofs Collapse Due To Snow

Weight of the winter's accumulation of snow has caused the collapse of roofs on at least two pole barns in the Times area, according to reports received at the Times office.

Last week the entire roof of a 26x50 pole barn on the Odin Hanson farm east of Thief River Falls collapsed and will have to be replaced. The barn was open on the south side and no cattle were injured or lost in the mishap.

Friday morning the entire roof of a 36x80 pole barn on the farm of Mrs. Clara Bjerklie in Hickory township in eastern Pennington county collapsed. The barn was enclosed on all sides but a door was left open for cattle to use the building when they chose to do so.

Mrs. Bjerklie said that four cattle were trapped in the barn but were rescued while one other animal was badly injured and had to be destroyed. A number of neighbors spent two days helping clean up the area and plans are to have a new roof completed before the cattle begin calving in a couple of weeks. Roof metal and part of the rafters are expected to be salvaged.

Mrs. Bjerklie said her son Richard, who lives in a mobile home on the farm, had been in the barn to check on the cattle a short time before the roof collapsed.

The change was necessary for compliance with the federal child nutrition act.

Administration was also authorized to advertise for bids on a group lease or purchase of copier equipment for Lincoln high school, Franklin middle school and the school district service center.

Legal counsel was authorized by the board in support of bus drivers when they are requested to appear in court to support their reports of citizen traffic violations.

Bus drivers were authorized to use their eight-way lights in 10 areas of the community designated in a request from the supervisor of transportation, and a copy of the resolution is to be forwarded to law enforcement agencies.

getting the bid at the recommendation of Chief Froschheiser. Although the price of the 1979 Ford LTD bid by Tunberg was $6,779, or $580 higher than the $6,199 price of a Ford Fairmont, Froschheiser indicated that after checking repair bills it was estimated that there would be about a 15 per cent savings with the Ford LTD. Other vehicles bid were a 1979 Chevrolet Malibu at $6,500 and a 1979 Buick Le Sabre at $6,916.

Bids were also awarded on three transformers with Border States Electric in Grand Forks being the successful bidder. Utilities committee members recommended that the bids be interpreted with a "present worth" formula. Therefore the transformers chosen are not those with the lowest purchase price but those that would be the most economical over a period of years. Authorization was given for purchase of a transformer for use at Hardee's at $4,601, a transformer for use at the AVTI at $7,512, and one for use at the junior college, $4,277.

The council also authorized the city clerk to call for bids on the city scale with bids to be accepted until March 31, and to call fir bids on a dredge and a crawler tractor with bids on those two items to be accepted until May 1.

Authorization was given for the transfer of $52,788 into a trust fund for benefits to be paid to persons formerly covered by the Policeman's Relief association. When the council chose to transfer active relief members to the PERA it was stipulated that funds would be placed in trust to cover beneficiaries with the city to levy each year for the monies.

Selected to replace Dave Praska as a volunteer fireman was Jim Smidt who is employed as a police officer for the city. The city council also appointed Dr. Ed Nelson to fill the vacancy on the Northwest regional library board. Dr. Nelson, who was appointed for a two year term, will replace Melvine Dagg whose final term expired in December.

A $50 a month raise was approved for officer Tim Miller who is in charge of the dog pound. Miller has received $175 a week but indicated that, as of January 1 when he became the sole manager of the pound, he has been putting in more hours for the same pay.

A resolution was also passed by the council establishing a mayor's commission on pedestrian safety. The commission was formed at the recommendation of the Pennington county safety council.

Proposed joint use agreement between the city and the school district regarding facilities was referred back to the finance committee for final approval; a resolution was passed by the city indicating that it would bear any overrun costs in transferring radio control and lighting control panels at the airport to the crash-fire-rescue building; and the finance committee authorized the purchase of a Miller Welder from Dow Equipment to be used in thawing out water pipes in the city.

"THE FOOTSTEPS OF DOVES," one of three one act plays on the dinner theatre program of the Chameleon Theatre Company, Inc., tells the story of Jill, George and Harriet. George and Harriet, who have been married for 25 years, are toying with the idea of purchasing twin beds and George is trying to change his wife's cool attitude concerning the crisis in their marriage. Then George encounters Jill, a young divorcee, while looking at mattresses in a furniture store and his attitude is jostled. HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS, some of whom are new Minnesota army national guard recruits, participated in a weekend of learning what it's like to be in the national guard in the winter. The recruits and their friends learned cross country and downhill ski techniques, participated in a simulated attack in armored personnel carriers and lived a weekend the military way, eating in a mess hall and sleeping in a barracks. These activities were held at Camp Ripley, seven miles north of Little Falls, where other Minnesota guard units as well as active army troops are participating in winter operations training. The event was sponsored by each hometown guard unit in an effort to recruit students into the many programs available to them in the guard. Students who participated from this area were sponsored by Crookston's and Thief River Falls' Company B, 2nd Battalion, 136th Infantry (Mechanized). Left to right are Staff Sergeant John Dove, instructor; Eric Allen, Thief River Falls; Pat Phelps, Grand Forks, N.D.; Scott Charboneau, Scott Donarski and Stuart Lund, Warren.

North Central Merges With Another Airline

Stockholders of North Central airlines recently approved the merger of North Central and Southern airways at a special meeting. Hal N. Carr, North Central chairman of the board, announced that 10,064,709 shares of the 12,368,256 shares outstanding voted in favor of the merger. The company has 35,000 stockholders.

Carr indicated that Southern stockholders met earlier in the day and also endorsed the merger plan.

Approval by the Civil Aeronautics board has been requested, and the CAB law judge issued a favorable initial decision on February 9. Final decisions are expected this spring from the board and the Prsident of the United States.

North Central's revenues for 1978 were nearly $300 million. Net earning of $22.2 million, or $1.70 per share, were up 62 per cent compared with $13.7 million or $1.11 per share, in 1977. Southern announced net earnings of over $2 million for 1978 on revenues of $189 million. Accordingly, the exchange ration will be 2.1 shares of North Central stock for each share of Southern.

"Following the merger, a new carrier, Republic Airlines, will be formed," Carr commented. "It will provide stronger competition, greatly improved service and fare savings to over 150 communities and 12 million passengers. Republic will serve air travelers from New England to Southern California and from Canada to the Carribbean."

Milk Market Hearings Are Set March 6-8

Agriculture commissioner Mark W. Seetin has issued a reminder that all interested citizens will have an opportunity to participate in three public hearings next week on proposed state rules to permit farm milk to be marketed on the basis of protein content.

All three hearings are scheduled for evening hours, opening at 7:30 p.m., to permit maximum participation by dairy farmers, milk processors and consumers in this fourth leading milk producing state.

The hearings will be held: Tuesday, March 6, in the east meeting hall of the city hall, 405 Sinclair Lewis ave., in Sauk Center; Wednesday, March 7, at the Scott county court house, 428 South Holmes, in Shakopee and Thursday, March 8, at the Houston county court house, 304 South Marshall street in Caledonia.

Minnesotans unable to personally testify at the public hearings may submit written comments on the proposal by mail addressed to: Hearing Officer, in care of Minnesota Department of Agriculture, 420 State Office Building, St. Paul, MN 55155. Written testimony will be accepted for a minimum of ten days following the March 8 hearing and this period may be extended to as much as 20 days after the hearing at the discretion of and announcement by the hearing officer.

These hearings have been twice rescheduled this winter in order to provide for fullest consideration of all facts involved in the proposed modification of the traditional "butterfat content and volume" marketing of farm milk produced in Minnesota.

Rules under consideration were proposed by the commissioner of agriculture to resolve a legal dispute that resulted from an Iowa dairy processor offering Minnesota milk producers a premium for the protein content of the milk. Minnesota's present laws and rules recognize only the traditional marketing of milk by volume and butterfat content, and unless modified, a premium for protein content is technically a violation of the Minnesota Dairy Products law.

Northern Tier Hearing Set At Crookston

A draft environmental statement on the crude oil transportation system proposed by the Northern Tier Pipeline company will be the subject of a series of 15 public hearings scheduled next month by the bureau of land management (BLM), U.S. department of the interior.

Minnesota hearing will be held at 1:30 p.m. on March 13 at the agriculture research center of the University of Minnesota technical college at Crookston.

BLM issued the draft January 11 to cover the system which would include an oil tanker unloading and storage facility at Port Angeles, Wash., and a 1,557-mile buried pipeline crossing the states of Washington, Idaho, Montana, and North Dakota, and connecting to existing pipelines in Clearbrook.

BLM's state director Murl Storms said the hearings will provide the public with an opportunity to comment on the adequacy of the draft environmental statement so that omissions or errors can be corrected before the final statement is issued.

Storms invited those wishing to testify to register by writing Bureau of Land Management, Northern Tier Project, Room 1250, Lloyd Building, 700 NE Multnomah, Portland, Ore. 97232. An 82-page statement summary is available from the same address.

He said testimony would be limited to 10 minutes, if necessary, to ensure everyone an opportunity to speak.

Storms said written comments can be mailed to the Portland address or presented during the hearings. The comment period has been extended to April 2, 1979. Responses to each pertinent comment will be included in the final statement.

Four applications have been filed under Title V of the public utility regulatory policies act of Nov. 9, 1978 which provided for the submission of competing applications for transporting Alaskan and other crude oil to northern tier and inland states. The act provided a system for the President to choose among applications as well as providing fast application processing.

The applicants are Northern Tier Pipeline company, Northwest Energy company, Kitimat Pipe Line Ltd., and Trans Mountain Oil Pipe Line corporation. All of the proposed systems are discussed in the draft environmental statement.

Copies of the draft statement are available for review at BLM's state and district offices as well as local, state and university libraries in the states that would be crossed by the pipeline. Information on these locations is available by calling toll-free (800) 547-5532.

Winter Recreation Grows In Minnesota

Minnesota's reputation for record setting cold temperatures and snow does not seem to have daunted enthusiasm for winter recreation, according to a January informal random survey of 50 winter lodging facilities in Minnesota. Winter recreational activity is increasing and has the potential for substantial growth in the future.

Total of 50 winter lodging operators were interviewed by telephone by the research division of the Minnesota department of economic development. Those interviewed were asked for their perceptions of early winter business activity. They were also asked to identify trends or changes developing over the past four or five years and problems or major issues in the future of winter business in Minnesota. Survey was undertaken at the request of the state's tourism division.

Resorts with five to 10 winterized units and capacities of 25 to 60 represented 85 per cent of the sample. Balance of the sample was composed of larger resort and downhill ski operators and commercial establishments offering more than 100-room capacities.

Of the lodging facilities reporting sales through January, 22.5 per cent showed good to substantial increases in receipts over the same period last year. Another 15 per cent reported slight gains during this period, while 22.5 per cent reported no change in receipts from last season. Thirty-five per cent report moderate or substantial decreases for this early season report. Many of the lodging establishments reporting decreased sales or unchanged sales cited the extremely cold weather experienced in December and January, as well as snow conditions, as a cause. Weather within a 500 mile radius impacts on Minnesota tourism. Heavy snowfall in Chicago reduced some travel to this state.

For example, most lodging operators expect their season to extend through the latter weeks of March, and some even into the latter weeks of April, depending on location. Many who report a slowdown of business activity this year, as compared with last year at the same time, remark that prospects for February look good; and, if weather conditions hold, their seasons will definitely extend longer and be more profitable than last year.

The survey revealed that 30 per cent have been in winter business for more than five years and 70 per cent of the lodging owners interviewed had entered the winter business within the last four years. According to tourism director Hank Todd, this is a very encouraging sign for increased winter business. "We have seen that those areas around the state experiencing the greatest success in winter business are those areas where an increasing number of lodging and entertainment facilities are remaining open. It provides a great deal of variety for vacationers in the area and the facilities tend to support each other."

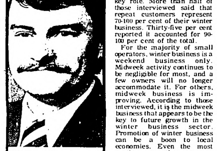
Besides the obvious importance of good weather and snow cover to winter business, repeat customers also play a key role. More than half of those interviewed said that repeat customers represent 70-100 per cent of their winter business. Thirty-five per cent reported it accounted for 90-100 per cent of the total.

For the majority of small operators, winter business is a weekend business only. Midweek activity continues to be negligible for most, and a few owners will no longer accommodate it. For others, midweek business is improving. According to those interviewed, it is the midweek business that appears to be the key to future growth in the winter business sector. Promotion of winter business can be a boon to local economies. Even the most cautious say they are optimistic about the future, and nearly all plan to open for winter next year.

Winter lodging facilities cater to a variety of recreational interests. Several operators reported that the snowmobile market is no longer increasing in size and may be declining, while the cross country skiing market is growing. Ice fishing interests appear to remain stable as the sport is unaffected generally by colder weather and snow conditions. Snowmobilers continue to be the most lucrative market for lodging establishments with the highest per capita expenditure rate of all of the recreational activities.

Nearly 80 per cent of the lodging operators surveyed indicated that they had increased prices over last year's rates. Increases were brought about by escalating fuel and maintenance costs.

According to Kirk Watson, research division director, it is far too early to gauge the total season on the basis of those early reports. "This survey enables us to report a general feeling of how the present season is going," he said, "rather than waiting for information that takes months to collect. It gives us the opportunity to talk with people involved in the business to acquaint ourselves with the issues facing the industry in its efforts to promote the growth of winter business."



We're on your side.

NEW FURNACE BURNER Save 20%

If you are that one out of about every sixth householder in the United States who heats his home with fuel oil, there's a good chance that you can cut your fuel bill in half—especially if you are using an oil-fired furnace. Moreover, according to oil-heating experts, that savings can be realized within a short payback period at an impressive rate of return on your investment.

The key to greater oil and energy savings, Joe Incrocci, Blueray Systems, Inc. president explains, is the furnace's capability of operating at, and sustaining, high combustion efficiency year-after-year, not just during the first few months of its operation. "When new, most of the furnaces now in service probably started off with a combustion efficiency rating of at least 75%," Incrocci says, "but soot build-up has caused efficiency to decline at least 6% to 12% during the start-up period, immediately after the seasonal tune-up."

Because of the clean, soot-free, blue-flame burning process and the lower firing rates utilized in the Blueray furnaces, he stated, the efficiency drop-off problem has been virtually eliminated. The Blueray units continue to operate at record-high efficiency levels averaging 83.3%, according to field tests performed by Brookhaven National Laboratory for the U. S. Department of Energy, in randomly selected homes, Incrocci said. This exceptional performance, he indicated, explains the claims of Blueray dealers who report customer fuel bill savings ranging from 28% to 53%. By averaging these extremes, he says, the typical Blueray user should expect at least a 20% cut in his fuel bill, or about one year of free oil every five years.

A two-year study, unrelated to the Blueray findings, sponsored by Chevron USA and Chevron Research also bears out the need for improved combustion efficiency. Significant improvement can be achieved, the study indicates, by a yearly furnace tune up. A tune up consisting of the replacement of air filters; the lowering of the fan shut-off temperature, and the replacement of an 0.75 gph nozzle with an 0.65 gph nozzle, for example, can increase efficiency 5%. The $38 tune-up cost was paid back in about one year at a 96% rate of return.

A more dramatic example cited by the Chevron study involved new burner replacement which cut oil costs 36%, with a pay-back time of two years, at 44% rate of return.

But according to Joe Incrocci, the best solution to the wasteful furnace that can't be significantly improved by heating plant tune up is a new Blueray blue flame unit, rather than replacement of the old burner with a conventional yellow flame burner. "That, at best," he says, "just forestalls the problem which will have to be corrected again, and probably long before the lifetime expectancy of the furnace."

Blueray also urged the homeowner to make sure to ask his oil dealer or serviceman to thoroughly check his furnace on a routine seasonal basis. Especially, have it checked for substandard combustion performance and for excessive firing (97% of oil burners have been found to overfire). Be savings conscious as well as cost conscious. If your furnace is one of the 3,338,701 in-service units over 20 years old, your best bet may well be a new furnace rather than continuing to make patchup repairs.

To Reappoint Farm Security Councilmen

Intention to reappoint three members to Minnesota's farm security advisory council was announced recently by agriculture commissioner Mark W. Seetin.

"The seven-member farm security advisory council has been and continues to be an important, experienced resource in administering the nation's first "equal opportunity" state guaranteed farm ownership program. Thus far it has established 109 new farm owners with 90 per cent state guarantees on loans totaling nearly $17 million.

"During the first two years of implementation of Minnesota's model program, the farm security advisory council members have given generously of their time and experience, not only to our administering agency, but to hundreds of farmers and lenders. Council members serve without salary, recovering only actual expenses," commissioner Seetin stated.

Scheduled for reappointment to full three-year terms effective on Friday, March 2, are Michael J. Leonard, St. Cloud banker, for the position representing commercial lending institutions; Robert A. Falk, rural Tenstrike, Beltrami county, for the position representing cash grain farmers; and Donald Solberg, route 2, Lanesboro, Fillmore county, for the position representing dairy farmers.

Minnesota's farm security advisory council meets monthly at the commissioner's office in St. Paul to review and recommend disposition of pending applications for the 90 per cent state guaranteed farm security loans. The increased volume of applications during the past year has required two-day meetings of the council.

$500 Grand Prize Offered To Inventor

Inventors from Minnesota and surrounding states will be competing for a grand prize of $500 at the annual Minnesota inventors congress to be held June 8-10 in Redwood Falls.

Prize money was donated by an anonymous business and will be awarded for the invention or new product judged to be the most marketable. Presentation of the contribution was made by Glen Matson of the U.S. department of commerce to Sharon Gordon, president of the Minnesota inventors congress at their annual kickoff dinner on January 27.

In addition to the top award prizes will be awarded to inventors in the following categories: electronics, chemistry, agriculture, household and industrial.

Minnesota inventors congress is the largest and longest running annual event of it's type in the country. Thousands of people each year visit to view the many interesting exhibits and displays.

Headquarters for the congress is the Redwood Falls chamber of commerce.

AAA Opinion Survey Results Are Released

Motorcyclists should be required to wear a helmet while operating a motorcycle, said 66 per cent of the first 500 respondents to a legislative opinion survey recently conducted by the Minnesota state automobile association (AAA). Results of the survey were printed in the February, 1979, issue of the "Minnesota AAA Motorist" magazine, a monthly publication read by the more than 436,000 AAA members in Minnesota.

Fifty-eight per cent of those responding said they would support a mandatory annual vehicle inspection and maintenance program in Minnesota only if it extended to all vehicle owners in the state. However, 73 per cent said they were opposed to an emissions inspection law if it applied only to people living in areas of the state not meeting federal pollution control standards. (The Rochester, St. Cloud, Duluth and Twin Cities areas have at times been found to be in violation of the environmental protection agency's minimum air quality standards.)

Asked whether inspections should be conducted by the state or by private contractors, 54 per cent favored tests operated by the state and 34 per cent favored private contractors. Only 29 per cent said they would be willing to pay a $10 annual inspection fee.

"The strongest opinion of all, shared by 84 per cent of the respondents, favored a law requiring trucks hauling sand, gravel and other non-agricultural products to be covered by a tarpaulin," according to the "Minnesota Motorist."

A strong majority, 65 per cent, opposed an increase in motor vehicle registration fees for automobiles that get poor gas mileage.

Only 31 per cent favored an increase in the gasoline tax to pay for bridge construction and raod maintenance, according to "Motorist." One respondent to the survey suggested that there should be a state lottery to help pay for road maintenance.

On the matter of car and van pools as alternatives to the private passenger automobile for work-related travel, 74 per cent said they would participate in such a pool if one were available. Fifty-eight per cent said tax incentives should be allowed to people participating in car or van pools. However, one respondent commented that "a tax incentive to those participating in car or van pools discrimiates against those who cannot find a pool."

Many of the survey forms returned to Minnesota AAA also included comments on other topics. The three most frequently mentioned areas of dissatisfaction were: too much salt used on highways in winter causing damage to vehicles; lax enforcement of laws concerning uncovered trucks and overweight trucks; and the lack of affordable and convenient mass transit. Many people advocated safety (mechanical) inspections, either instead of, or in addition to, emissions inspections.

Results of this survey were used to help Minnesota AAA formulate its current legislative program. AAA actively lobbies for the rights of motorists both in the state legislature and in Congress.

Principals Like Quie Emphasis On Education

Members of the Minnesota elementary school principals' association (MESPA) concluded their two and one-half day convention on February 9 with a strong endorsement of Governor Quie's emphasis on education funding for the primary grades.

The position statement, delivered to the governor on February 12, urged legislative funding that would provide for substantial reduction in class size, with such funding specifically directed to the primary grades (K-3).

The elementary principals also emphasized in their position the importance of having principals, through staff development programs (in-service) work with teachers in refining methods of instruction different from those used when working with larger classes.

Special topics featured at the session included "Child Abuse and Neglect," "Teacher Evaluation," "Minimal Competencies," "Nutrition in the schools," "Middle School Programs," "Computer Education," "Special Education," "Career Change in a Period of Declining Enrollment" and "School Public Relations."

Sen. Boschwitz To Co-Sponsor Bill On Sugar

Senator Rudy Boschwitz has announced that he will co-sponsor sugar legislation calling for a price of 17 cents per pound paid to domestic growers.

"The bill pending in the Senate," Boschwitz explained, "calls for no direct price support payments to sugar beet and cane farmers.

"Instead — and this is an approach I strongly prefer — under our legislation the price would be obtained by limiting sugar imports from other countries through a system of fees and quotas," he noted.

"In the short run, the legislation would mean a slight increase per pound for consumers," Boschwitz admitted. "More importantly for consumers, however, in the long run the legislation would help to insure a stable domestic supply of sugar, keep growers producing and avoid the wild fluctuations in the market which once saw housewives paying the horrendously high price of $3 per five pounds.

"Right now, our farmers have to compete against imported sugar which is often subsidized by foreign governments. That's not a fair market. This legislation would at least put our farmers on an equal footing, and that's all they're looking for.

"This legislation is essential to Minnesota, now the nation's first or second largest sugar producer. We've seen five plants in the United States close in the past year because sugar growers couldn't get the price they need to stay in business. Then, when farmers find it unprofitable to grow sugar beets, they tend to switch to planting potatoes. And the potato market certainly doesn't need any more of that product flooding onto it right now," Boschwitz concluded.

COMIC SISTER roles in the Northland community college production "Damn Yankees" are played by Deb Praska (left) and Jeri Lundin. Plot of the play centers around one season of a baseball team (Minnesota Twins in the NCC adaptation) and the two sister characters are both avid baseball fans. The musical is under the direction of Roger Vaughan and Les Torgerson and Northland community band members make up the orchestra for the production. The show opens tonight in Northland community theatre and runs through Sunday.

MEA Conclave Scheduled In Bloomington

More than 700 teachers from throughout the state are expected to attend the 56th annual representative assembly of the Minnesota Education association (MEA) March 15-17 at the Radisson South hotel in Bloomington.

The record-setting 749 delegates have been selected to represent nearly 500 local associations and affiliated and associated organizations.

High on the agenda for the assembly, MEA's policy-making body, will be strategies for teacher-school board negotiations (bargaining of most 1979-81 contracts will begin before spring) and development of responses to needs of schools as well as assessment of response to MEA's proposal of a 15:1 pupil-teacher ratio in kindergarten through third grade.

Delegates also will elect a National education association director (Minnesota has three).

Donald C. Hill, president, says that delegates will address themselves primarily to teacher concerns, and adds, "Those concerns have a tendency to become public concerns, because we do the public's business."

"MEA is committed," Hill concludes, "to improving the status of teachers — personally, professionally, economically; because, as far as teachers are concerned, the most important factor in education, along with the students, is teachers, not bricks, building and books."

Law Requires Complete Stop In Emergencies

You are driving home through heavy traffic. From somewhere, you hear the wail of a siren. Suddenly, in the rearview mirror, you see the flashing red light of an emergency vehicle rushing toward an accident scene.

You should immediately pull over to the curb or farthest right hand side of the highway, clear of any intersection, and stop until the emergency vehicle has passed, according to state law.

"To simply slow down or to pull into another lane and then continue on your way not only violates the law, but creates dangers for the emergency vehicle and other drivers," said Ed Novak, acting commissioner of the Minnesota department of public safety.

"Stay alert at all times for emergency vehicles and be prepared to react correctly," advised Novak. "Keep calm and signal your move, then pull over and stop, and allow the emergency vehicle to pass as quickly as possible."

Too often, motorists may hesitate or freeze momentarily when they see a fast-approaching emergency vehicle, he said.

This hesitation is hazardous to all vehicles nearby because the police car, ambulance or fire engine is usually travelling faster than other traffic and there is little margin for error, he said.

Also, any delay caused by traffic tieups can have tragic results because lives may depend on the emergency vehicle's speedy arrival at its destination, said Novak.

Energy Design Contest Open To The Public

Competition will open in May for Minnesota Energy Design '79, a contest sponsored by the University of Minnesota, with the Mid-American solar energy center, the Minnesota energy agency, and the Minnesota society, American institute of architects. It is open to all Minnesotans, both professionals and members of the general public.

"We encourage architects, farmers, engineers, homemakers, neighborhood associations, contractors, office workers, salesmen, vice presidents, students, backyard tinkerers and dreamers to participate in the competition," project director Huldah Curl said.

Entries may be projects already constructed and operating, or ideas for projects. Content may cover renovation and new construction, alternative energy sources, transportation and distribution, planning, recycling or any idea to conserve energy and material resources. Judges will choose winning entries on the basis of innovation, the potential for widespread application in Minnesota, and economic and environmental practicality.

Cash prizes of $2,000 and $500 from the Minnesota Energy acency will be awarded to the best entries which include calculations of labor, cost and energy performance. A $500 prize from Northwestern Bell Telephone company and two $250 prizes from Ellerbe, Inc., and Land O'Lakes, Inc., are unrestricted. Ideas for which no technical calculations have been provided are also eligible to win these prizes. Competition sponsors will be soliciting more prize money until judging begins in May.

The eight judges will include representatives from the five sponsors, as well as independent advocates of alternative energy systems. Descriptions of winning and accepted entries will be published in a book in the fall of 1979.

There is no entry fee for the contest. Entries should be limited to written descriptions and illustrations and should not include models or objects. Entry forms are available from Continuing Education in the Arts, 322 Wesbrook Hall, University of Minnesota, 77 Pleasant St. S.E., Minneapolis, MN 55455, (612) 373-4947.

The competition is funded in part by the Minnesota state arts board with funds appropriated by the Minnesota state legislature, Minnesota energy agency, General Mills foundation and the McQuay group.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

Previously, I wrote a letter to the editor that was directed mainly to the pastors and priests of Kittson county expressing my concern about the anti-communist blackout that is taking place in America, especially in our churches, schools, liberal press, radio and TV.

I am very much concerned about the silence and would like to hear from some pastors and priests in our area, why it is so uncommon to hear anything said about godless communism, atheism, the anti-Christ, the 10 Commandments, hell and sin. Years ago it was a common message in all of our local churches.

In less than 50 years the Communists have swallowed up more than two-thirds of the land in Europe and Asia, representing a population of more than 1 billion souls. Remember that the communist conspiracy is not only in Europe and Asia — right here in America, there are dedicated Communists and their dupes who are feverishly working to bring us closer to the day when the bloody hands of the communist leaders might well encircle and finally strangle all that are left of the free people of the world.

Yet in spite of this danger, there exists an anti-Communist blackout. 'Why? I think it's a shame! In my opinion communism is the greatest enemy that the churches and America are facing today. Am I right or am I wrong? I would like to hear from some clergymen. May God save America!

CPAs Explain What Income Is Taxable

In 1978, internal revenue service was restrained by Congress from imposing stiff new rules that would have taxed most of the fringe benefits people receive from their employers, according to the Minnesota society of certified public accountants.

But, while we can safely assume we won't be taxed on our free parking privileges in a company lot, at least not for 1978, there seem to be questions in the minds of many regarding the tax treatment of other non-salary renumeration.

When declaring taxable income, should you include gifts received, prize winnings, insurance proceeds, or tax refunds from earlier years?

How about employer-paid health and life insurance, pension benefits, the summer-job earnings of your children?

Those are just a few of the types of income that worry some taxpayers at filing time.

Let's take up employees' fringe benefits first. The existing law, together with IRS policies, provide that the following "perks" go untaxed:

—Company-paid health insurance;

—Company-paid group-term life insurance up to $50,000;

—Company-provided meals and lodging if on company's premises and for company's convenience. (For lodging to go untaxed it must be a condition of employment, as in the case of firemen who sleep in so they will be available if needed);

—Medical exams by company doctor;

—Discounts in buying the company's products or services.

The employer-provided benefits that were and still are taxable include:

—Premiums attributable to group-term life insurance coverage over $50,000;

—Personal use of company car, airplane or vacation facilities;

—Personal financial counseling.

Fringe-benefit rules may soon be changed drastically, but these still apply to tax returns being prepared now.

What about non-perks — cash or non-cash benefits received from sources other than an employer? Following are some that are not taxable:

—Benefits from social security and railroad retirement and pension plans funded by the employee's own contributions. (Employer-funded pension benefits are taxable);

—Most "windfalls," or gifts and awards that come to the recipient without his having performed some service or having paid some consideration. This can include legacies, merit awards, scholarships, or prizes, but not gambling winnings or the proceeds of a lottery or raffle.

—The proceeds of lawsuits in certain circumstances;

—Welfare payments.

Your children's earnings are not taxable income to you. If their income was high enough they should file tax returns of their own, but you can still take the youngsters as dependents if they qualify. And if you claim the children as an exemption on your return, care must be exercised on their return to get the correct standard deduction.

Refunds of federal taxes paid in previous years are not taxed, but any interest they earned is. State and local tax refunds are taxable if previously taken as deductions on federal returns.

If you collect money owed after having taken a bad-debt deduction for it in previous years, there is no need to amend the earlier returns; treat the money as income in the year received.

Alimony is taxable to the recipient if it is required by the divorce settlement and is paid regularly over an extended period.

Snow And Cold To Affect Beef Prices

Severe winter weather across much of the beef-producing region of the U.S. will bring higher beef prices to consumers sooner than had been expected, the national livestock and meat board said recently.

Near-record snowfall and sub-zero could have disrupted both the marketing of beef and the growth rate of cattle in feedlots, explained Jay H. Wardell, manager of the meat board's beef industry council.

"Cattlemen throughout the midwest and high plains states are finding it difficult if not impossible to get their cattle to market because of the recent storms," Wardell said. "Likewise, beef packers and processors can't get the product to food stores with their usual efficiency. This has the short-term effect of limiting availability and bringing prices higher."

On the long-term, however, the greatest impact on supply will come from the fact that cattle put on weight much slower in cold weather Wardell said.

"When the thermometer drops to 10 or 20 degrees below zero, cattle burn up more feed energy just keeping warm. That means less feed is converted to beef and less beef is available for the market."

Beef prices are expected to increase about 15 per cent in 1979, Wardell said. But higher prices that had previously been predicted for this spring will reach the supermarket much sooner due to the inclement weather.

"We had been predicting somewhat stable prices for the first part of 1979," Wardell said, "but the present situation has changed all that. It looks like higher prices are starting now."

Even though prices are rising, there is no possibility of a beef "shortage," Wardell stressed. "There will be good supplies of all beef cuts in the meat case all year long," he noted.

Beef industry is entering a cyclical period of somewhat lower beef supplies than the previous four years, Wardell said.

"This is due to a decrease in the size of the U.S. beef herd, which was caused by extremely low prices for cattle from 1974 through 1977. During this time, cattlemen were forced by a severe cost-price squeeze to decrease the number of cattle in their herds. Now, we are seeing the result of that decrease.

"But the higher prices of 1979 will encourage producers to increase the size of the herds, setting the stage for more beef and stable prices in the future. But it will take time, perhaps as long as three years, before this can be completed."

Despite the beef price picture, Wardell said there are some bright spots on the horizon for consumers. Pork producers have indicated they plan to increase production by 10 per cent in 1979, most of which will reach food stores in the fall and winter. Chicken growers, likewise, are planning a 10 per cent increase and turkey producers will be bringing about 20-25 per cent more birds to market.

"The smart shopper, by looking for specials and buying when the time is right, can still find ways to stretch the meat dollar," Wardell pointed out.

Brainerd Is Region 8AA Favorite

Brainerd, led by North Dakota State University-bound 6-10½ Ron Falenschek, is considered the favorite in the 1979 Region 8AA high school basketball tournament scheduled to be played this week at Bemidji State University and Concordia college in Moorhead. If the Warriors get beat, it'll probably be at the hands of St. Cloud Tech.

Tech and Brainerd will be first round favorites Thursday when the Tigers play Thief River Falls at Bemidji and the Warriors face Moorhead at Concordia. Championship game will be played Saturday at Concordia. All three Region 8AA games have 7:30 p.m. starting times.

Both Brainerd and St. Cloud Tech belong to the Central Lakes Conference which also includes St. Cloud Apollo, Willmar, Little Falls, Alexandria, Cambridge and Elk River. The Warriors edged the Tigers 61-59 on a last second shot in the final week of the 1978-79 regular season.

St. Cloud Tech coach Al Andreotti, in confirming Brainerd's status as pre-tournament favorite, said, "They're very good. But we're not worried about them. We just want to find Bemidji," he quipped.

Tech is making its third Region 8AA appearance in the past four years, but this is the Tigers' first tournament away from home after St. Cloud State University served as host for the event for several years, including 1978 when Bemidji beat Tech 53-49 in the championship game.

Andreotti is concerned about the long trip, but says he is even more worried about the lack of information he has on Thief River Falls. "We're really in the dark," he said. "Not so much about the long trip, I think we can adjust to that, but we don't know a thing about Thief River Falls."

While Andreotti and the Tigers try to cope with an unusually long trip for them, Thief River Falls coach Glen Peters and the Prowlers anxiously await the 100-mile ride. I'm sure the kids are looking forward to going to Bemidji," said Peters. "We always play well there."

All-Tournament Selections

After taking in last week's Region 8AA Sub Region 4 high school basketball tournament at Crookston and the Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA) state hockey tournament in Thief River Falls, we've decided to select an all-tournament team for both events.

The Sub Region 4 all-tournament team features three forwards, one guard and a center. The forwards are Tim Knotek, Crookston; Jeff Oseid, Thief River Falls; and Tom Campbell, Bemidji. Guard Steve Enderlein and center Todd Young of the Prowlers round out the squad.

Knotek was sensational with 27- and 28-point games to earn our most valuable player award.

The MJCAA all-tournament hockey team features goalie Mark Pelowski, Rainy River; defensemen Jim Underwood and Mike Gager of Hibbing; and forwards Kris Walters and Mark Baker of Hibbing and Kevin Gordon of Rainy River.

Gager and Underwood were outstanding for the champion Cardinals, sharing the MVP honor.

Miscellaneous

+ Thief River Falls' Steve Enderlein, who scored 16 of his 24 points in the fourth quarter and overtime session of the Prowlers' 72-69 Region 8AA Sub Region 4 high school basketball tournament championship game win over Crookston, brought the following response from coach Marshall Olson of the Pirates: "Steve is a really explosive player. He has one quarter where he really goes to town. When you get to the fourth quarter and he hasn't hit yet, you begin to get worried."

Section 8 Hockey Tournament Starts Friday

Iron Range teams Grand Rapids and International Falls proved it can be done, now it's up to northwestern Minnesota rivals to beat defending champion Roseau as the 1979 Section 8 high school hockey tournament gets underway Friday at East Grand Forks. It won't be easy, though, since Roseau hasn't lost to a Section 8 foe since a 5-3 setback to Bemidji in the 1976 Section 8 tournament championship game.

Crookston will have the first shot at the Rams in the Section 8 tournament opener Friday at 7 p.m. Warroad plays Detroit Lakes at 9 that night. On Saturday, Thief River Falls takes on Bemidji at 7 p.m. and Fergus Falls plays Lake of the Woods at 9.

The Roseau-Crookston winner will meet the Warroad-Detroit Lakes winner in Monday's 7:30 p.m. semifinal while the Thief River Falls-Bemidji winner is paired with the Fergus Falls-Lake of the Woods winner at 7:30 Tuesday.

Section 8 championship game will be played Fri., March 9, at 7:30 p.m.

Roseau carried an unblemished record into the final stages of the 1978-79 season but lost its unbeaten status at Grand Rapids 5-1 and International Falls 3-2. However, it still remains to be seen if a Section 8 team can handle the Rams.

Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand, whose team is seeded second behind Roseau in this year's tournament, didn't hesitate to put the Rams in the favorite's role, but added, "I don't think they're as big a favorite this year as they were the last couple of years. They can be had this year. Roseau has showed that it can be scored upon."

And Roseau coach Gary Hokanson, after the loss to Grand Rapids, admitted the Rams are "as capable of a bad game as any other team."

Last year Roseau's awesome talent was such that the Rams could have an off night and still win easily. That won't happen this time around, according to Grand who said there are several teams capable of beating Roseau, but qualified that statement by saying it would still take an "outstanding performance out of your kids."

However, the Rams aren't Grand's immediate concern. "It's not going to be easy to get into the championship game," he warned. It's going to require two good games on our part to get there. I certainly expect the bracket we're in to provide us with some super games."

Thief River Falls finished the regular season with a 14-6 record, avoiding Section 8-qualifying sub section play for the first time since 1974. "We feel that we can move the puck well," mentioned Grand, "And during different portions of the season we've had good to exceptional goaltending."

That goaltending, provided by junior Bill Jury, could carry the Prowlers. A "hot goaltender," according to Grand, can raise havoc at tournament time. With that in mind, the Prowlers will have to be wary of Bemidji in Saturday's opening round.

Heavily favored in an early season meeting with Bemidji, Thief River Falls ran into senior goalie Tim Port who had a 17-save first period that carried the Lumberjacks to a surprising 3-2 victory despite being out-shot 33-19. Last Friday the Lumberjacks used sophomore Jim Wizner in the nets at Grand Rapids and he came up with a brilliant 54-save game as the number one-rated Indians struggled for a 3-1 victory.

Bemidji will bring a 7-14 record to East Grand Forks that includes a 4-1 loss a month ago to the Prowlers.

Sub Region Starts Monday . .

Bemidji Drills LHS Girls 61-31

Bemidji administered Thief River Falls its worst loss of the 1978-79 season Tuesday as the Lumberjills outclassed the Prowlers 61-31 in girls high school basketball.

And believe it or not, it could have been worse. Thief River Falls saved some face by making 13 of 19 free throws to nearly match the Prowlers' 18 points from the field on an anemic 9-for-52 shooting night.

Bemidji never trailed, building an 8-0 lead before the host Prowlers got on the board with a long set shot by Kathy Beito with 4:03 remaining in the first quarter.

It became 14-2 two minutes later. A three-point play by Pam Kotschevar on a base line drive and a free throw with 1:10 left represented nearly half of the Prowlers' points in the first quarter that ended 16-7.

Bemidji built a 34-21 halftime advantage and then surrendered just 10 second half points to surpass its 57-32 pasting of the Prowlers in mid-January. The Lumberjills led 45-24 at the end of the third quarter.

The winners' balanced attack included Cathy Kirkvold with 14 points, Ellen Prigge and Linda Iverson 12 each and Michelle Gamble 10. Iverson, a 5-10 sophomore center who missed most of the season because of illness, dropped in several nice turn-around jump shots from about 10 feet.

While the Prowlers were strugging at 17 per cent, the Lumberjills shot 45 per cent on a 28-for-58 showing. Bemidji reserves dropped the winner's shooting figure that stood at a nifty 51 per cent through three quarters. Bemidji made nine of 13 free throws and dominated the rebounding charts 37-19. Thirty-five turnovers included 19 by the Prowlers and 16 by the Lumberjills.

Thief River Falls ended the regular season with a 7-11 record. Bemidji is 13-4. The two teams enter the 1979 Region 8AA Sub Region 4 tournament Monday at East Grand Forks.

First night Sub Region 4 pairings will find Bemidji playing East Grand Forks at 7 p.m. and Thief River Falls meeting Crookston at 8:45. Championship game will be played Wed., March 7, at 7:30 p.m. at East Grand Forks.

Tall St. Cloud Tech Tigers Are Prowlers' First Round 8AA Foe

Making its first ever appearance in the Region 8AA tournament, the Sub Region 4 champion Lincoln high school basketball team faces a monumental task Thursday when the Prowlers tackle a tall St. Cloud Tech team at 7:30 p.m. at Bemidji State University.

Tech, the Sub Region 1 winner with a 13-7 record, will present a formidable front line that includes 6-7 Mark Gross, 6-6 Dave Stangler and 6-4 John Schwanberg. On the bench are 6-5 Ross Pener and 6-4 Chris Biggins.

Trying to battle that big front wall will be Thief River Falls' 6-2 Todd Young, 6-0 Jim Nyland and 5-11 Jeff Oseid. It's an obvious mis-match.

"Our kids have got to be more aggressive to combat the rebounding situation," warned Thief River Falls coach Glen Peters. "We do have some good jumpers, but we've got to box our men out."

Stangler leads the Tigers with a 17-point scoring average. Schwanberg averages 11 points per game and 6-0 guard Paul Muller carries a 10-point average. Karl Thomas, an exceptionally quick 5-10 guard, rounds out the all-senior Tech starting line-up.

With guards Steve Enderlein and Kyle Hams leading the way, Thief River Falls' best bet against St. Cloud Tech would be its running game — if the Prowlers can get some rebounds.

"We're not a good running team," pointed out St. Cloud Tech coach Al Andreotti. "Usually we play pretty good defense, and usually, because of our height, we do a pretty good job on the boards."

Enderlein paces the Prowerls offensively, averaging 19 points per game during the regular season when Oseid carried an 11.8 scoring figure, Hams 11.3, Nyland 7.4 and Young 6.5. Young was the leading rebounder in the Northwest Athletic Conference this winter with an average of 10.1 rebounds per game.

Thief River Falls finished the 1978-79 regular season with a 9-9 record and then played its best basketball of the year in beating rivals Bemidji 60-56 and Crookston 72-69 last week to win its first Region 8AA Sub Region 4 tournament. The current 11-9 record includes four wins in the Prowlers' last five ball games. Their only loss over the last three weeks was a 59-53 setback to a strong Warren team that is a favorite in this week's Region 8A tournament.

"We're not going to change anything," explained Peters. "If we play the way we have been playing the last couple of weeks we'll be all right."

Sub Region 2 champion Brainerd (16-4) will play Sub Region 3 winner Moorhead (13-7) at Concordia college in Moorhead Thursday on the other half of the Region 8AA semifinals. Thursday's winners will tangle in Saturday's Region 8AA championship game at 7:30 p.m. at Concordia.

This is the fourth year for the Region 8AA alignment and none of this year's four participants have ever won the event. Little Falls won it in 1976 and 1977, with Bemidji beating St. Cloud Tech 53-49 in last year's title game after Tech had eliminated Moorhead 69-55 in the first round. Tech was also a four-point, 50-46, championship game loser in 1976, the first year of the expanded Class AA format.

The Region 8AA winner advances to the 1979 Class AA state basketball tournament March 8-10 at the St. Paul Civic Center.

Sub Section Hockey Play Is Completed

For the first time since 1971 when the tournament became a fixture at either Thief River Falls or East Grand Forks, the Section 8 high school hockey tournament won't have a host team in the eight-team field when the 1979 event opens Friday at East Grand Forks.

That was taken care of Tuesday when East Grand Forks lost a 3-2 sub section decision at Bemidji.

First round sub section play began Monday when Red Lake Falls eliminated Indus 6-1, Moorhead ousted Mount St. Benedict 7-4, East Grand Forks got by Brainerd 7-5 and Hallock stopped Alexandria 7-5.

But each of those Monday winners lost in Tuesday's second stage of Section 8 tournament-qualifying as Crookston out-scored Red Lake Falls 13-7, Detroit Lakes sidelined Moorhead 8-3, Lake of the Woods blanked Hallock 4-0 and Bemidji shaded East Grand Forks 3-2.

Tuesday's winners will join seeded Roseau, Thief River Falls, Fergus Falls and Warroad in the Section 8 tournament that features two quarterfinal games Friday and Saturday, single semifinal games Monday and Tuesday and the championship game Fri., March 9.

Alexandria was the only sub section participant to lose at home. Tuesday's Lake of the Woods-Hallock game scheduled to be played at Baudette was moved to Warroad because of structural damage to the Baudette arena due to ice and snow.

The Section 8 champion will move on to the 1979 Minnesota state high school hockey tournament March 15-17 at the St. Paul Civic Center.

19th Annual Mixed Bonspiel Set This Week

Thirty-two rinks will participate in the event, including 20 Canadian entries and 12 rinks from around the area.

Curling will start at 2 p.m. Friday. Finals will be held Sunday afternoon at 2. Spectators are welcome.

Lincoln Swimmers Edge Rival Lumberjacks 87-84

Dave Beito and Bruce Storhaug both won two races Tuesday to lead the Lincoln high school swimming team to an 87-84 win over rival Bemidji in the Franklin middle school pool.

Beito won the distance races as he swam his fastest time ever in the 200-yard freestyle with a 1:56.0 and covered the 500-yard freestyle in 5:21.5. Storhaug took the 200-yard individual medley in 2:18.3 and won the 100-yard butterfly in 59.5.

"The kids did very well," praised Thief River Falls coach John Kopari. "It was a good meet for us because now we can see what we have to do for region."

The victory closed out Thief River Falls' dual meet season with a 5-4 record. It was the final home appearance for the Prowlers who will participate in the Fosston quadrangular Friday. The 1979 Section 3 meet will be held March 9-10 at Bemidji State University.

Keith Grochow picked up a fifth Thief River Falls win with a 1:10.5 effort — his best ever — in the 100-yard breaststroke.

The meet began in impressive fashion for the Prowlers when Dan Schoonhoven, Grochow, Dan Winjum and Jon Pinkerton turned in a season-best 1:49.7 in winning the 200-yard medley relay. "That kind of set the stage for the rest of the meet," explained Kopari.

Bemidji had a double winner in Rick Fitzgerald who swam the 50-yard freestyle in 23.6 and swam the 100-yard freestyle in 52.4 to edge Thief River Falls sprinters Jon Pinkerton and Kevin Murphy. "Our sprinters did very well," pointed out Kopari.

The Lumberjacks, who like the Prowlers absorbed a recent disappointing loss at the hands of northwestern Minnesota swimming rival Fosston, also had winners in Dave Smith who collected 197.50 points in the diving competition, Lou Marchand who won the 100-yard backstroke in 1:02.8 and the 400-yard freestyle relay team of Rick Fitzgerald, Russ Fitzgerald, Chris Johnson and Jerry Will who won with a 3:34.4.

However, Bemidji needed a 1-3 finish in the 400-yard freestyle relay finale to overtake an 81-76 Thief River Falls lead. The Lumberjacks netted that first, but surrendered second and third place to the Prowlers.

"Bemidji swam very well, too, so they were satisfied," reported Kopari.

Area Squads End Regular Season Play

Area girls high school basketball teams completed regular season play earlier this week before entering post-season district tournament competition.

Karlstad — Grygla

Karlstad rolled over Grygla in surprisingly easy fashion, 45-25, Monday as the Eagles suffered only their second loss of the year.

"We had a real poor game," reported Grygla coach Bill Radeunz. "We couldn't do anything right." Jackie Helling scored 12 points for the Rabbits who out-shot the Eagles 43 per cent to 22 per cent and out-rebounded the visitors 38-19.

Karlstad led 12-7 at the end of the first quarter, enlarged that to 21-9 at halftime and maintained a 28-18 third quarter advantage.

Greenbush — MCC

Pam and Paula Novacek combined for 34 points as Greenbush beat Marshall County Central 48-42. Pam finished with 19 points and Paula had 15 as the Tigers left the Nordics with a 9-9 regular season record.

Greenbush led 11-7 at the end of the first quarter, fell behind 21-20 at halftime and regained a 32-31 edge in the third quarter.

Denise Stokke and Sue Olson scored 10 points apiece for the Nordics.

"We're starting to play better basketball," noted Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde. "We're looking forward to the tournaments."

Plummer — Clearbrook

Diane Fisher and Rebecca Sorenson combined for 32 of 42 Plummer rebounds Monday as the Cardinals won 44-37 at Clearbrook.

Fisher scored 15 points and pulled down 17 rebounds while Sorenson grabbed 15 rebounds. Sandy Zimpel contributed 11 points for the winners who led at the quarter stops 14-8, 26-24 and 34-26.

Fisher-Plummer

Once-beaten Fisher sank 22 of 24 free throw attempts Tuesday in a 56-38 victory over visiting Plummer.

The winners built quarter leads of 8-5, 27-16 and 39-26 behind Brenda Wimpfheimer's 27 points and Linda Christansen's 13 points. Wimpfheimer was 14-for-15 at the free throw line.

Diane Fisher scored 20 points for the Cardinals who ended their regular season schedule with a 13-5 record.

Region 8A Tournament Teams Have 77-7 Record

Three once-beaten teams are included in the 1979 Region 8A high school basketball tournament, scheduled to be played Friday and Saturday at Bemidji State University.

First round games Friday will match District 29 winner Bagley (19-1) against District 31 champion Warren (20-1) at 7 p.m., with District 30 titlist Fosston (20-1) facing District 32 representative Lake of the Woods (18-4) at 8:45.

Consolation and championship games will be played Saturday at 7 and 8:45 p.m., respectively.

Bagley, Warren and Lake of the Woods were crowned district champions Monday after weather delayed their tournament games. Fosston won its title last week.

District 29

Bagley handled Blackduck 77-57 in the District 29 championship game at Bemidji State University. It was the Flyers' first ever District 29 crown. They last reached the region level as a District 30 winner in 1967.

Defending District 29 champion Laporte beat Clearbrook 70-57 in Monday's consolation game.

District 31

Warren ended Argyle's two-year reign as District 31 champion with a convincing 53-34 title game victory at Crookston. The two teams split narrow regular season decisions (the only loss for either team), but the Ponies dominated the Eagles Monday behind the 32-point scoring of Steve Brekke.

Last District 31 title for the Ponies came in 1976.

Stephen defeated Climax 64-54 in the consolation contest.

District 32

Lake of the Woods emerged with its first District 32 championship trophy since 1967 with a 41-31 victory over Hallock at Roseau.

Roseau out-scored Badger 78-69 in Monday's consolation game.

Wrestling . . .

Ponies, Spuds In State Meet

Forty-second annual Minnesota State High School League state Class AA and Class A wrestling tournament will begin Thursday and run through Saturday at the St. Paul Civic Center arena.

The event, which attracted a record 46,751 fans last year, will open with individual competition in Class A at noon on Thursday with Class AA team quarterfinal matches scheduled to start at 2 o'clock. The individual portion of Class AA will commence at 6:30 p.m. with Class A team quarterfinal action on tap for 8:30.

Friday's championship series in individual and team competition resumes at 6:30 p.m. The afternoon session is devoted to consolation activity.

Saturday's final day schedule in the championship series will begin at 6:30 p.m. with individual championship matches followed by team championship competition. Saturday afternoon action will involve consolation dual team matches and wrestleback action among individuals to determine third place.

More than 550 wrestlers representing nearly 200 high schools will be entered. There will be a total of 840 matches conducted during the three-day period.

The individual tournament in each class will feature 192 boys competing for top honors in 12 weight categories. The region champions and runners-up advance to the state tournament from throughout eight geographic Class AA and Class A areas in Minnesota.

Defending state team champion Anoka in Class AA and Staples in Class A are back to defend their titles. They are among 11 teams back from last year's field of 16. Only Fridley is a new entry among the eight Class AA team entrants while four of the eight Class A teams are new to this year's field: Chatfield, Bird Island-Lake Lillian, Deer River and Foley. Foley, 17-0, is the lone undefeated team entered from Class A while Bloomington Kennedy 20-0, Fridley 16-0 and Albert Lea 19-0-1 are the unbeaten Class AA entrants.

There will be 43 wrestlers on hand who are undefeated among the 384 individuals competing in the individual tournament. Twenty-two are unbeaten in Class AA and 21 in Class A.

Most notable among the unbeatens is three-time defending state champion Steve Carr, a senior from Moorhead who won his previous state titles while wrestling at Battle Lake. Carr has won 27 straight matches this season and has a string of 122 consecutive wins. Carr, who transferred to Moorhead last November, is a 132 pounder. He could become the first wrestler ever to record four state titles.

In addition to Carr, seven other individual defending champions from last year's tourney have won their way back to this year's event. There are five returning in Class AA and two in Class A.

Robert Redmann of Anoka, who this year interestingly enough is entered at 132 pounds and thus would eventually meet Carr in semifinal action. Redmann, a senior, has won 51 consecutive matches over a two-year span. Other Class AA 1978 titlists back are Lyle Clem, a 105 pound senior from St. Francis; Jim Mead, a 145 pound senior from Blaine; Pat Faber, a 187 pound senior from Minneapolis Edison, and Bruce Arvold, a 145 pound junior from Alexandria.

Class A defending champs include Steve Werner, a senior from Perham who has won 62 straight matches extending over two seasons will wrestle this year at 105 pounds after last year winning at 98, and Staples' Dave Sikora, a 139 pound senior.

First round Class A team matches Thursday at 8:30 p.m. are Warren (17-1) vs. Canby (14-1-1), Chatfield (19-3) vs. Sherburn (14-2-1), Bird Island - Lake Lillian (14-1-1) vs. Deer River (14-3) and Foley (17-0) vs. Staples (11-2).

In Class AA Thursday at 2 p.m. it's Moorhead (14-3) vs. Anoka (15-3), Albert Lea (19-0-1) vs. Kellogg (13-2), Worthington (18-4) vs. Bloomington Kennedy (20-0) and Fridley (16-0) vs. Cambridge (10-4).

Minnesota Outdoors

by Stu and Dee Mann

Pheasants

Val Kill, publisher of the Arlington Enterprise, has some good advice for all us us:

"Have you noticed the large number of pheasants along roads and highways this winter? The long period of heavy snow cover has made it difficult for the ringnecks to find food. Now they are up on the roads looking for feed.

We seem to have the best crop of these beautiful game birds that we have had in a long time. It would be a shame if a great many are run over by cars. We urge area residents to put out feed for pheasants if you know where there are some nesting."

A severe winter always generates an interest in feeding pheasants. A lack of food close to good cover can increase other forms of death for the birds. Many pheasants are killed on the highways when they are forced to leave good cover in search of food. The food should not be placed close to roads.

Walleye Season

Walleye, northern, muskie and bass season ended on Feb. 15 on inland waters. However, you still may take the walleye and northern until April 14 on the Canada-Minnesota boundary waters. The deadline on the Wisconsin-Minnesota boundary waters is March 1. On the Iowa-Minnesota boundary waters the deadline is February 15, the same as on inland waters. The South Dakota-Minnesota boundary has a February 28 closing.

Fish House

All dark houses, fish houses, shelters or similar structures must be removed from lakes and rivers after February 28 except on the Canadian border (March 31) South Dakota border (March 5) and Wisconsin border (March 1). After February 28 such structures may be placed on the ice and used between 7 a.m. and 12 midnight if the season is open on any species of fish in the lake.

Crappie Time

From now until the walleye season opens on May 12 fishermen will concentrate on the crappie and fishing will get even better as spring approaches. The crappie is a member of the sunfish family along with the blue gill, large mouth bass and small mouthed bass. Unlike other members of the sunfish family, the crappie often co-exists with rough fish populations of carp and bull heads. There are two species of crappies in Minnesota the black crappie and the white crappie.

Liars Contest

Laurene Cozad of Owatonna will receive a rod and reel for her winning entry in the Minnesota Outdoors liars contest:

"While fishing this summer I caught a northern so big I couldn't get him in the boat so we headed for shore and dragged him out of the water.

Once beached I had to hire a flat bed truck to transport him to our home. I proceeded to hire a taxidermist to preserve him. We then made the most unique play house you ever saw by hollowing and reinforcing the inside. The children enjoy the playhouse but it could also be a fish house for ice fishing."

This story, earning a selection of lures and a filet knife, comes from Dave Natwick of Twin Valley:

"I was casting for black bass using a frog for bait when I got a good strike. The bass looked to be at least 25 pounds. When he jumped out of the water he jumped so high he knocked down a wood duck that was flying over and the duck died.

The game warden happened to witness this event and arrested me for hunting ducks out of season. He also helped me land the large bass which took us nine exhausting hours. The fish lost so much weight during that tiring ordeal that he weighed only 2½ pounds when we finally got him in the boat. Needless to say, the frog croaked."

Frankie Wethern of Shevlin will also receive a selection of lures and a fillet knife for this story:

"I have a pet half-breed snowsnake named Zero whose mother was an African night crawler that fell in love and married a blizzard lizzard after a wild all night party in a compost bin.

I adopted him after his mother went off with a group of friends on a fishing party. She must have gotton hooked as she never came back.

I trained "Little Zero" to skid out my pulpwood and to tow in broken down snowmobiles from remote places, as he has a steel belted stomach.

He helps in the house by drying the dishes. Lightening flashes of his porous little tongue absorbes the excess moisture.

I keep him in the deep freeze during the summer, where his uncanny psychic ability is phenomenal. I open the door and he hands me exactly what I want for dinner. Unfortunately, last summer the electricity was off for four hours and he died of a heat stroke.

I called him Zero, not because he loved cold weather, but because he was about as close to nothing as you can get and still have something."

Basketball Week Is Proclaimed In North Dakota

North Dakota Governor Arthur A. Link recently proclaimed the week of March 19 as "National Women's Basketball Week" in North Dakota. The proclamation was issued in recognition of the AIAW national small college basketball championship to be held in Fargo on the campus of North Dakota State University March 20-24.

In the official proclamation signed at the state executive offices in Bismarck, Link urged sporting enthusiasts to take the opportunity to attend the tournament to watch "the finest women's basketball in the United States."

Governor Link's letter of greeting accompanying the proclamation noted that the tournament will be the first national women's collegiate championship to be held in North Dakota. He further stated that basketball, a nationally favorite sport, is "a vital component of our cultural sports pattern," and that it is "our purpose to recognize excellence through tournaments such as this. . ."

North Dakota State's women's athletic director, Lynn Dorn, a Thief River Falls native, after receiving the governor's proclamation last week, expressed appreciation of the state's acknowledgment of the national championship. "Governor Link's action certainly reflects the prestige of this tournament," said Dorn. "Not only is it a significant event for NDSU, but for the state of North Dakota."

The tournament begins at 1 p.m. on Tues., March 20, with championship finals being held at 7:30 p.m., Sat., March 24.

Hospice Offers New Comfort For Dying

by Paul Schurke
University News

A middle-aged man lies dying in a hospital, his body ravaged by cancer. For months he has received chemicals to halt the spread of the disease. But now, his body can no longer tolerate the powerful drugs. Everyone knows the chemotherapy is not working. The cancer has spread. The treatment is to be stopped and a place found for him to die.

Until recently, there have been few options for those needing a warm and understanding atmosphere in which to spend the dying phases of an incurable disease.

To make way for the curable, hospitals have generally discharged them. And friends and family are reluctant to assume the responsibility of caring for them, the once-strong tradition of dying at home existing mostly as a memory. Mainly it has been nursing homes — often costly and unpleasant — that have been ready to shoulder this inevitable human burden.

But that is changing, and a new concept in caring for the terminally ill has captured the attention of a great many people. "Hospice" advocates maintain that the greatest needs of the dying are relief from pain and closer contact with loved ones; they want to get the dying back into their homes or, if that is not possible, into homelike settings.

Interest in the hospice concept is gaining momentum, and a good share of it is coming from the Twin Cities. "I wouldn't say we are on the front line, but we are definitely on the second line," said Howard Bell, a Lutheran minister who is director of the coalition for terminal care.

The coalition, an adjunct of the University YMCA, concentrates on the care and services available to the terminally ill and serves as the nerve center for hospice-organizing activities in Minnesota. At last count, there were 15 hospice-forming groups in the state, Bell said.

Bethesda Lutheran hospital in St. Paul already has an inpatient hospice unit, and others are about to open at St. Mary's in Minneapolis and St. Joseph's in St. Paul. Many hospitals are integrating hospice concepts into their home care programs.

"Present popularity of the hospice idea is due in part to the growing interest in death and dying issues inspired by Elisabeth Kubler-Ross," Bell said. Her book, "On Death and Dying," has moved the subject of death out of the shadows of cultural taboo and onto the agendas of educators, medical professionals and policymakers.

"Questions are being raised about the advances in medical technology that enable life to be maintained by machine and about the quality of that life," Bell said.

Hospice advocates are concerned about the "cure at any cost" syndrome that they say pervades established medicine. They hold that valiant lifesaving efforts make sense for heart attack and accident victims, but not for persons with advanced cancer. In hospice care, back rubs and baths are common; X-rays and transfusions are not.

Although hospice is primarily a concept — humanizing care of terminally ill patients — many specific methods are associated with it, Bell said.

Most importantly, the goal of hospice care is to be available 24 hours a day and to meet the physical, social and spiritual needs of both patients and their families. To this end, an interdisciplinary team of physicians, nurses, therapists, nutrionists, psychologists and clergymen are involved, he said.

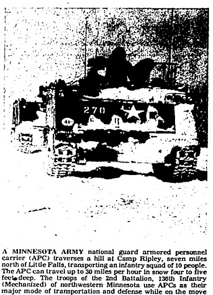
Followup concern for bereaved families and a strong support program for staff members involved in this emotionally draining work also are important elements in the concept.

Another is the highly sophisticated control of chronic pain with analgesics and anxiety-relieving drugs like morphine and methadone.

This kind of care can be provided in a hospital, "but the real crux of hospice is the integration of home care with the necessary professional services," Bell said.

Whatever the setting, hospice care primarily involves cancer patients, for whom chronic pain and fear are particularly severe.

Minnesota's largest cancer center is the University of Minnesota Masonic Memorial hospital. Each year nearly 2,000 cancer patients visit its clinics or are treated there. Staff members there are taking a hard look at what hospice offers.



A MINNESOTA ARMY national guard armored personnel carrier (APC) traverses a hill at Camp Ripley, seven miles north of Little Falls, transporting an infantry squad of 10 people. The APC can travel up to 30 miles per hour in snow four to five feet deep. The troops of the 2nd Battalion, 136th Infantry (Mechanized) of northwestern Minnesota use APCs as their major mode of transportation and defense while on the move during their two weeks annual training with the 47th "Viking" Infantry Division.

Some changes already have been made. "They seem like little things" — like putting clocks and calendars in the rooms and making dining and visiting hours more flexible — "but they are really big accomplishments," said nurse Sue Edstrom.

But the nature of the University's center, which is a high-technology research institution, poses special challenges for the implementation of hospice care.

One is the definition of a hospice patient. At a research institution, where experimental therapies abound, it is difficult to determine when the possibilities for cure-oriented care have been exhausted.

"As chemotherapy improves, there is always one more possibility and one more decision to be made," said social worker Edith Johnson, who heads a University subcommittee that is exploring the hospice concept. "Basic thing is a commitment to the patient all the way through not only the physical needs but also the psychological ones. I think we've had that all along."

The hospital has a cancer information and support group coordinated by Johnson and her colleague Doretta Stark. Three times a week, cancer patients, members of their families, and staff members meet to discuss the nature of the disease and various ways of coping with it.

Masonic does not have a separate hospice unit for the terminally ill, Johnson said, and she is not certain that it should have one. Most of its patients are referred from community hospitals from a wide geographic area for short-term specialized care.

A hospice-related area in which the University of Minnesota is emerging as a leader is home care for dying children. Nursing researcher Ida Martinson recently reported the success of the first large-scale feasibility study on home care for dying children.

A home care program for dying adults is also available, through the University's home health services department. Coordinator Katie Humphrey said the department is increasingly employing the concepts of hospice care.

Discussion continues on whether University hospitals should have a hospice unit. Some staff members contend the best setting for a hospice is a family hospital, not a research institution. They point to the hospice at Bethesda Lutheran Hospital in St. Paul as an example.

Bethesda's inpatient hospice unit, the first of its kind in Minnesota, opened last March. In the unit there isn't much fancy medical equipment — intravenous tubes and such. But there are a lot of nurses. Each hospice nurse handles two or three patients, about half the case load of nurses in other units.

The atmosphere is relaxed and quiet and patients are encouraged to bring their own wall hangings, stereos, and even furniture.

"We try to establish the rituals of community," said hospice coordinator Bob Ryndes, a soft-spoken young man who weighs each statement carefully before speaking. "We begin each morning by singing to the patients."

Qualified and sensitive staff members are hard to come by, he said. "It takes a special kind of person to deliver this care."

The approach of death signals the most trying — and most touching — moments for the staff. Family members and the chaplain are summoned and, often, staff members whisper hymns, prayers, or simple comfort in the dying person's ear, Ryndes said. "It may be that this is not important for anybody but us. After all, people have been dying for years and years without advice."

QUESTIONS Answered for VETERANS

Q — I receive Veterans Administration disability compensation at the 40 per cent rate. I recently married. Can I get any additional money for my wife?

A — Effective October 1, 1978, veterans rated 30 per cent or more disabled for service-connected causes can receive additional amounts for dependents. Contact your nearest VA regional office.

Q — I want to buy a home that costs $30,000. How much would my monthly payments be?

A — Generally, depending upon the amount of real estate taxes, the monthly payments equal about one per cent of the amount financed. If you finance $30,000 your monthly payments should be approximately $300.

Q — My 10-year eligibility period for educational assistance under the GI Bill will end before I complete my training. Is there any way I can get an extension?

A — Extension can be granted only when a veteran can show that a physical or mental disability, not willfully incurred, prevented starting or completing a training program.

Strandquist

Mrs. Irene Larson, Strandquist
436-2690

Congratulations, Marshall county, on your 100th anniversary!

Pastor and Mrs. Ralph Rokke and Jennifer of McIntosh and Mrs. Selma Fisher of Newfolden were Sunday supper and overnight guests at the Ingvold Rokke home. They left for their homes Monday afternoon.

Amanda Johnson, Ida Bruce, Anna Brekke, Ruth Harper, Mabel Borsvold, Mildred Nelson, Ella Thun and Dolly Larson, regular senior citizen members at Strandquist center, were visitors and lunch guests at the Irene Larson home Thursday, February 22, in observance of the tenth anniversary of the Strandquist senior citizens club. Gust Johnson came for coffee.

In February 1969 the senior citizens center was organized here and the first meeting was held in the village hall. At that time there were over 30 members. Many of these have passed away and eligible new members don't seem to be interested.

Florence Stennes and Dolly Larson were the first leaders. We meet every Thursday except these last two or three winters when we have closed for a few months. Some of our older members go to warmer climates for the winter and that leaves a smaller group to meet; therefore, the closing during the coldest months.

After a few years meeting at the village hall, we were invited to use the American Legion building, which was modern and had kitchen facilities. We have enjoyed having this as our meeting place. Here we also can have our craft items displayed and do business most every Thursday when we have the center open for a meeting.

We generally have a sale at our center at least once a year. Some work is involved getting articles ready for a sale, but it's interesting to see how people come to see what we have made and are always good buyers, too. We have a very good business in making and selling bed pillows, as well as quilts and many other items. We are self-supporting and pay for the fuel and lights in the building we occupy.

When we first started two members were hostesses for each meeting. Now, since we are so few, one member serves when his or her turn comes. That is the only restriction in being a member: you take your turn at serving the lunch when your turn comes around.

In our bicentennial year 1976 we made a state flower and bird quilt that we raffled off. We have raffled off other lovely quilts, also, and this year we are going to work on a bird quilt that we will raffle off during our village's 75th anniversary in June.

Our present leaders are Mildred Nelson and Polly Stallock.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our mother and grandmother, Mrs. Clara Quam, who passed away one year ago this month, 1978:

When a face that was dear no longer is here
And a voice that was loved is hushed
It seems as if time went too quickly, it seems as if things were too rushed.
But then, one by one, we remember, and one by one, clearly recall
Many quiet and wonderful hours and the joys that were shared in them all.
And there's a great feeling of comfort
When a heart is grieving and sad
Can remember again and be thankful
For all the sweet hours it had.

Sadly missed by her family. 1t18p

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our beloved one, Harry Dahl, who passed away four years ago Feb. 28, 1975:

He will never be forgotten
No one knows how much we miss him.
But in heaven, I'm sure my mother and father are together again.

Sadly missed by his daughter, Dolly and his six grandchildren.

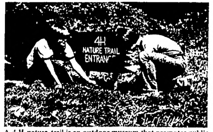
Conservation Is Everyone's Business



A 4-H nature trail is an outdoor museum that promotes public awareness and understanding of our precious resources. Young people 9-19 take the lead in conservation education and action projects through the national 4-H conservation of natural resources program, supported by John Deere.

Conservation of natural resources is everyone's business. And education is the key to broad public interest and participation in meaningful conservation programs.

Developing a 4-H nature trail is a good first step toward promoting public awareness of conservation concerns. The trail serves as an outdoor museum where participants can observe natural resource features firsthand, often with the aid of self-guide materials or the assistance of a trail leader.

4-H projects and activities encourage young people 9-19 to develop leadership talents in conservation action programs. 4-H members learn-by-doing to appreciate the social and economic values of natural resources, and to identify and apply appropriate conservation methods.

The national 4-H conservation of natural resources program offers girls and boys practical opportunities to do something about air and water pollution, waste disposal, soil and forest conservation, and the maintenance of fish and wildlife populations.

The program is conducted by the Cooperative Extension Service and supported by John Deere, which provides a full schedule of awards for participating 4-H members, clubs and counties.

The following awards are available to members: six $1,000 scholarships at the national level; an expense-paid trip to the 58th National 4-H Congress in Chicago Nov. 25-29 for one winner in each state, and medals of honor for four members per county.

A $50 cash award goes to one county in each state reporting the most outstanding 4-H conservation program. Ten clubs per state and four clubs per county are eligible for certificates of recognition.

Winners are selected by the Cooperative Extension Service and awards are arranged by National 4-H Council. More information is available from county extension agents.

Faithful Friend

A true friend is one of life's richest treasures. Sooner or later, we discover who our real friends are . . . and we cherish them.

Many years ago an old shepherd died. His dog was at the train depot when the man's casket was placed aboard the train. For years after the dog lived at the depot . . . he met every train, watching each passenger, always disappointed in not finding his master. Everyone loved the dog and after he died a monument to him was built on a hill above the depot.

We all need to know that we have the kind of friend who really cares about us. The man who walked the dusty roads of Galilee 2,000 years ago wants to be your lifelong friend. Nothing can separate you from His endless love and concern.

Rediscover the warmth of a friendship that never fails. Worship this week.

Dayton Says Funds Needed For The Arts

"Arts supporters must mount an effective campaign to counter any threat of funding cuts," said Kenneth Dayton, chairman of the executive committee of the Dayton Hudson corporation, speaking at Moorhead state university on Tuesday.

"If a new public mood were to slow government's commitment — or to cause that commitment to be withdrawn — private support may also wane," he said, referring to the so-called taxpayers' revolt.

Dayton made the remarks in a keynote speech at the dedication for Moorhead state's $2.4 million arts center addition.

Fargo-Moorhead ranks first in the nation for communities its size in financial support of the arts and the topic of Dayton's address was "Business and the Arts."

Dayton said that attendance at Minnesota's non-profit arts activities last year was 5.2 million — compared to 2.1 million for the state's professional sports. Minnesota's economy, he said, not only benefits from the $125 million spent annually in arts activities — but from state aid to the arts, which quadrupled from $1 million to $4 million in the 1976-77 biennium.

"Surely, it is no exaggeration to say the arts are as important an asset to this state as are the 10,000 lakes," he said.

The private sector has been the financial lifeblood of this nation's, art resources for more than a century, Dayton said, pointing out that the Dayton Hudson corporation's community giving program will reach almost $9 million this year, 40 per cent of it to the arts. The corporation is one of 45 Minnesota companies that annually give five per cent of its federal taxable income to worthwhile community projects.

Dayton called for support of Gov. Al Quie's budget request that arts funding increase from $4 million to $4.7 million in the 1980-81 biennium.

Cultural resources are an important factor in Minnesota's consistently high "quality of life" rating, he said, and that's an important factor in attracting and keeping quality employees.

"Arts mean business, and every dollar in state aid to the arts guarantees $80 in activity — and for my money, that makes it the state's best bargain."

SLOW DOWN AND LIVE!

Getting It All Together In A Safe-Deposit Box

A safe-deposit box can serve as a valuable tool for safeguarding important items and documents, but it can also become a Pandora's box if used incorrectly.

While the subject of safe deposit boxes is not an unknown one, many people have misconceptions over how they should be used, said Milt Nachbar, Director of Loss Control for CNA Insurance. For example, if the family of a deceased discovers that the only copy of a will, burial instructions, cemetery deed and life insurance are stored in a safe-deposit box, it could take several weeks before a family could obtain a court order to retrieve those documents. In the meanwhile, it would be necessary for the family to come up with funds to bury the deceased — perhaps in a spot different from the one originally intended. Consequently, these types of documents should not be kept in a safe-deposit box, Nachbar pointed out.

Other items that should be kept easily accessible and not in a safe-deposit box are passports (they may be needed at a time when the bank having the box is closed) and cash (not accompanied by documentation showing its source).

There are several items that should be stored in a safe-deposit box, however, Nachbar said. They include:

- Marriage, birth and death certificates
- Adoption, citizenship and military (discharge) papers
- School diplomas
- Deeds

- Car title papers
- Stock and bond certificates
- Important contracts and cancelled checks
- Valuables such as rare coins, jewelry and stamps
- Unpublished manuscripts
- Insurance policies other than life
- Photographs and inventories of property (to safeguard from fire at home)
- Gold and cash (accompanied by documentation of their source)

Safe-deposit boxes may be easily rented from any bank under individual, joint, partnership, fiduciary or corporate contracts. However, the bank must be notified if one of the joint renters dies before access may be attempted.

It may be inconvenient to have a joint contract arrangement in a state where the box by law must be sealed upon the death of either party, Nachbar said. An alternative in this type of situation might be to put the contract in the name of the younger spouse who may then name the older person his or her agent. In this way, if the older spouse should die first, the box need not be sealed.

Since laws governing the use of safe-deposit boxes differ by state, it is wise to ask certain questions when renting, Nachbar advised. Questions should include: Is it permissible to remove the will and life insurance policies upon the death of a joint renter? Is immediate access guaranteed? If not, how much time is required? Is a tax inventory required after the death of the renter? How does the executor enter the box?

A safe-deposit box can be very helpful so long as you don't allow it to "box you in," Nachbar concluded.

Catch Cold By Touching, Not Breathing

Old custom of covering your nose and mouth when you cough or sneeze may not be the best way to avoid spreading the common cold.

In recent experiments at the University of Virginia, researchers found that it was relatively difficult to catch cold by breathing in the tiny "droplet nuclei" that might hang in the air after a cough or sneeze. It was much easier, they found, to pick up a cold virus from the hands of an infected person, or even from an inanimate object.

These findings suggest that the best way to avoid spreading your cold would be to wash your hands often, and keep them free of contaminated nasal mucus. Nasal mucus can get on your hands when you wipe your nose, for instance, or when you cover up for a cough or sneeze.

Experiments involved three groups of volunteers, each of which included both "donars," who already had colds, and healthy "recipients." In the first group, donors and recipients stroked each other's hands for ten seconds on each of three successive days. The donors deliberately contaminated their hands with nasal mucus before each session. Both donors and recipients wore protective masks.

In the second group, each recipient spent 15 minutes a day for three days seated at a small table with a donor. The donors coughed, sneezed, and sang and talked loudly. Both donors and recipients wore rubber gloves.

In the third group, donors and recipients lived together in the same room for three days. They were prevented from touching by a double wire mesh barrier.

The results were dramatic. Seventy-three per cent of the recipients in the first group caught cold, compared with only 8 per cent in the second group and none in the third.

The researchers also studied people who had caught cold in the conventional way, and found that 39 per cent of them had the cold virus on their hands when a culture was taken. Common household objects like doorknobs, dolls and drinking glasses were also contaminated. The virus was present on seven of 114 such objects in the homes of cold victims.

CAR TELEPHONE

The Wikstrom Telephone Company, Inc. is planning to install mobile telephone service that will cover the area of Kittson, central and eastern Marshall, Roseau, Lake of the Woods, and Pennington counties. This system will be UHF. The service that we install will cover the area as stated above, plus any other area offering UHF. Before a system can be installed, we have to obtain an FCC license and approval of rates from the Minnesota Public Service Commission. Before these can be obtained, it is required that we have signed up enough users to support the system. Anyone interested in mobile telephone service, contact the Wikstrom Telephone Co., Inc., at Karlstad, Minnesota, 436-2121.

Develop New Passenger Car Tire Gauge

A new tire pressure guage which measures up to 80 pounds per square inch (psi) has been developed for auto owners, the tire industry safety council announced recently.

"Need for a new type of gauge came about because of the recent move to higher inflation tires including temporary spares which require an inflation pressure of 60 psi," said council chairman Malcolm R. Lovell, Jr. "New guage also measures the air pressure of conventional passenger car tires."

For years most auto tire pressure gauges have been calibrated to 50 psi, while the maximum pressure for most auto tires was 32 psi. Recently new tire pressures have been moving upward to save gas and make tires last longer.

"Every driver should have a personal tire guage because proper inflation is the most important requirement for maximum tire safety and mileage. It should be used at least monthly (more often in winter) and before long trips to ensure the safety and mileage you paid for," Lovell said.

"A particular problem is finding an accurate air tower at service stations to determine the actual pressure recommended for your tires," he said.

Lovell said government tests have found that approximately one out of three air tower gauges is wrong by four pounds (psi) or more, and three out of five are wrong by two pounds or more. Underinflation by 4 pounds can reduce treadwear by as much as 10 per cent, he noted.

Survey by the National bureau of standards found that more than one out of four cars has at least one seriously underinflated tire. Other studies indicate an even higher number.

Properly inflated tires can add up to five per cent to gasoline mileage, or an extra mile per gallon, according to industry experts. "This means for the average motorists who uses 1,000 gallons per year a savings of at least 50 gallons of gas," Lovell said.

Recommended tire pressures can be found in your vehicle owner's manual or on a sticker affixed to a doorpost or glove compartment door of your car.

New pencil-type guage was developed for the council by the air control division of Eaton corporation, which makes Dill gauges. Made of durable plastic and metal, it is lightweight (1 oz.) and can easily be carried in your pocket, purse or glove compartment of your car.

The 80-psi gauge if nearly 6½ inches in legth and is ⅜th of an inch in diameter. Calibrated plunger is easy to read and preliminary tests show it to be accurate within one pound per square inch, plus or minus.

If you want to obtain the 80-psi gauge, see your tire dealer. If he doesn't have it yet, you can get one by mail, Lovell said. Send a check or money order for $1.75 to Gauge, Tire Industry Safety Council, Box 1801, Washington, D.C. 20013. (D.C. residents add 5 per cent sales tax for a total of $1.84.)

Start The Day Royally

Whoever it was that said "Breakfast like a king, lunch like a prince and dine like a pauper" may have had this menu in mind. Familiar Log Cabin syrup and its partner, Log Cabin pancake and waffle mix, combine talents in such a way as to make breakfast a feast. Syrup, shortening, milk, egg and rolled oats are added to the pancake and waffle mix and the resulting golden brown pancakes are light and lovely. Creamy peanut butter is added to more syrup for a smooth, well-blended topping also good on waffles or French toast. Jiffy Peach Sauce provides an alternate topping that starts everyone's day right.

OATMEAL PANCAKES

1/3 cup pancake and waffle syrup
1 cup milk
1 egg, slightly beaten
1 cup regular pancake and waffle mix
2 tablespoons melted or liquid shortening
1/2 cup quick-cooking rolled oats
Peanut Butter Topping or Jiffy Peach Sauce

Add 1/3 cup syrup to milk and egg. Stir in pancake and waffle mix, shortening and oats. Stir with a fork just until pancake mix is moistened. Bake as directed on package. Top with butter, if desired, and Peanut Butter Topping. Serve with grilled sausages, if desired. Makes about 14 four-inch pancakes or 6 servings.

Peanut Butter Topping. Gradually add 1 cup pancake and waffle syrup to 1/4 cup creamy peanut butter. Beat until smooth and well blended. Makes 1-1/4 cups.

Jiffy Peach Sauce. Combine 1/2 cup pancake and waffle syrup with 2/3 to 3/4 cup diced drained canned peaches. Mix well and serve. Makes about 1 cup, but the recipe may be doubled.

Value-Added Tax?

Chances are excellent that U.S. taxpayers soon will be hearing a lot about the "painless" value-added tax, a rot of a hybrid national sales tax.

The VAT, as it is called, has the backing of Sen. Russell Long, D-La., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, and some support from Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee. Thus, Capitol observers are certain the VAT proposal will receive a hearing sometime during the 96th Congress.

Although it sounds complicated, VAT is a relatively simple tax to administer. The tax is collected a little at a time, first from the steel company, then from the auto maker, and then from the auto dealer. To compute the tax, each firm simply adds up its gross receipts, subtracts all payments to other firms, and applies the VAT rate to what's left.

Instead of taxing earnings per se, VAT would tax consumption. Proponents like the idea because it gives savers and investors added incentive. Also, since investment goods would be exempt, VAT would stimulate capital formation and risk investment, thus giving the small businessman a much better opportunity to raise money for expansion and job creation.

Unlike income, property and sales taxes, value-added taxes are well hidden. While the price is ultimately tacked onto the final purchase price, no one can actually see it spelled out on the price tag.

VAT does have its opponents. Some claim it's every bit as regressive as is the sales tax. Since poor people obviously spend a greater percentage of the income on consumption than do rich people, the tax burden, percentagewise, is far greater than the tax burden borne by the rich.

This sharp attack is being blunted by the proposal that the value-added tax ought to be used to replace the highly regressive Social Security payroll tax, which now accounts for some 30 cents of every dollar in federal revenue. And, of course, each paycheck carries the awful reminder of just how painful Social Security taxes have become.

Other proponents claims the inherent unfairness of VAT could be countered by tax credits to low income families. Sen. Long is pushing for a combination of graduated income and value-added taxes; such a combination could be adjusted to give disgruntled taxpayers a tax system as progressive as they want.

It is well, of course, to be skeptical over so-called replacement taxes that all too often end up not replacing anything. It is also good to remember, during the upcoming debate, that lawmakers are concerned very little with the question of fairness; they are simply searching for a way to squeeze out as much revenue as possible with a minimum of taxpayer complaints.

The value-added tax, while it may have redeeming social value, gives them the opportunity to put us all through the wringer without our knowing exactly how tight they've set the rolls. It is, in other words a tax writer's dream.

Dealing With Guilt

Following editorial is from the Bemidji Pioneer:

Last week you had a thousand excuses for not visiting your parents at the nursing home. You still feel guilty.

You scolded your child three days ago, but it still upsets you. Guilt — we all have it from time to time. Is it harmful? Can it be useful? How can we learn to handle it better?

A new publication from the National Institute of Mental Health discusses guilt feelings, where they come from, and how to handle them. For your free copy of Guilt, send a postcard to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 578G, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

Not all guilt is bad, you know. If you never felt guilt, you wouldn't learn in school, do your job properly or have reasonable relationships with people you love. A little guilt at the right time, then, is not a bad thing.

On the other hand, psychiatrists report that intense guilt can cause nightmares, failure at a job or school, or even attempted suicide. Guilt can cause depression, chronic fatigue, or sexual frigidity. How can you recognize needless guilt? And, how can you minimize unwanted guilt?

First, try to find out why you feel guilty. Are you tense because you forgot or failed to do something? Have you broken, or thought you have broken, a moral or ethical principal? Have you lied, cheated, or broken a promise? Are you hiding a secret you think you should tell somebody close to you?

Next, try to evaluate the expectations you have of yourself. Are they reasonable? Often attitudes our parents teach us as children stick with us for years. For example, one women stayed home with her children until they started nursery school, and then she wanted to go back to work. But she had been taught to feel guilty about doing so. When the woman recognized that her guilt came from childhood teachings, and not from what she thought as an adult, she was able to change her behavior.

Here are some other thoughts to help you deal with guilt:

—You can't always be patient and even-tempered toward those you love.

—Your responsibilities to your aging parents may be less than you imagine. (Visit and help them out of love, not obligation.)

—Being perfect all the time is not realistic. (Berating yourself for errors on the job or at home is a useless exercise.)

—Do what is right for you. (Try not to be forced by social pressure into doing something that will not suit you.)

—If you do something wrong, accept it — and forget it. Apologize if you can; then put it behind you.

Padding Pocketbooks?

Editor Steve Lang of the Morris Sun comments about a legislative proposal for legislator benefit in a recent editorial. Here is his assessment of the plan as he understands it:

Apparently concerned that anti-inflationary measures may not be successful in maintaining the standard of living to which they are accustomed, the DFL caucus of the Minnesota legislature is back to one of its favorite diversions, conceiving proposals to pad their own pockets.

Only a month after 1977 legislative action raising House members' salaries from $8,400 to $16,500 took effect, the DFL caucus has initiated a proposal to hike per diem payments back to, and in some cases, above, pre-1979 levels. The massive salary hikes were passed along with cuts in per diem pay, reducing outstate legislative allowances from $48 to $27 daily and metropolitan rates from $40 to $17.

Now many legislators are complaining that the increases are not enough, and the DFL proposal to the "pay problem" is to pay all members $48 per day. That figure means an extra $240 per week during the session, compared to $135 weekly for outstate legislators and $85 per week for metropolitan solons under the 1977 legislation.

A lot of squawk is generated from outstate legislators who were bemoaning the cost of utilities and housing, indicating it is difficult to live on $27 per day, as if the $16,500 annual salary did not exist. The salary should go a long way in paying the expenses, too, with a $2,000 raise forthcoming in 1980.

In terms of hours and strain expended, honest public service is rarely a break-even or profitable situation monetarily, and most candidates realize that before they run for office. Public service is to be admired, but the recent actions by legislators attempting to pad their own pocketbooks once they are in office is deplorable and disgusting.

Apparently the voters' reactions to the last pay hikes weren't clearly understood in last November's elections, and should be expressed again in 1980.

Borrowed Nonsense:

"There will be no buying or selling in heaven," the evangelist proclaimed. The salesman in the audience grumbled under his breath, "That's not where business has gone."

The young father returned home to find his wife in tears. "The baby cut his first tooth, then he took his first step," she wailed.

"But that's wonderful," exclaimed her husband.

"He cut his lip on the new tooth," she sobbed, "and then he said his first word."

"Can't ship until you pay for your last order," read the wire from a supplier to a retailer.

The store-keeper wired back (collect): "Can't wait that long; cancel order."

"The Doc said I only had six weeks to live, so I told him I wouldn't pay his bill. Wouldn't you know, he gave me three more months."

"It's not that I'm complaining about my wife getting her own way all the time," said the husband to the marriage counselor, "but right now she is a week ahead in her diary."

NATURE'S WINTER SUN-SHINE!

Did you know that cherry tomatoes are the tastiest of all tomatoes - and that they make excellent garnishes? Or that a slice of green pepper will perk up any fish, meat, poultry, or vegetable dish?

Garden-fresh vegetables are available all winter long - from Sunny Mexico!

Mexican tomatoes are hand-picked as they ripen naturally, unlike tomatoes from other sources that are harvested in a hard green stage, handled by machinery, and ripened with gas to give them color.

For low-cost "Winter Dinner Winners," try baked tomatoes stuffed with sausage and green chopped peppers... or sliced, breaded and fried, then topped with sour cream! Or, place thick slices of tomatoes on bread, top with cheese and broil for a family lunch treat!

Another South-of-the-Border treat is eggplant! Try peeling, dipping in batter and French-frying. Serve with French dressing for a delicious vegetable or as a meat substitute!

Never put tomatoes in the refrigerator until fully ripe. Buy pink ones to use later and store at room temperature.

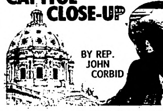
CAPITOL CLOSE-UP



BY REP. JOHN CORBID

The state of Minnesota's business climate was the subject of many discussions last year and was the special favorite with politicians along the campaign trail.

Though there never appeared to be any statistics to back up the charges, dire predictions were made about what would happen if we didn't elect people who would admit to the poor business climate and do something about it. The forecasters of doom even said that all our businesses are moving to neighboring states, such as South Dakota, because they have a "better business climate" there.

Now, at last, we are beginning to get some reports on what has actually been taking place — with some reliable figures from Dun and Bradstreet to back up the studies. Last week the Acting State Demographer from the State Planning Agency, presented the results of a study before the House Commerce, Economic Development and Housing Committee. Dun and Bradstreet data was analyzed to get a picture of what occurred between 1969 and 1976 to Minnesota firms and employment changes. Although the report is not complete because it does not examine every business in the State, still it does provide figures for over 50 per cent of all businesses, including all large firms.

Businesses are not making a mass exodus to neighboring states! Contrary to the Corporate Report story of last July suggesting that businesses are moving in droves to South Dakota, state planning officials said they could not locate one firm that had actually moved out of Minnesota into South Dakota during the study period. The report recognized that some businesses had expanded into South Dakota, but they didn't "leave the State".

The Dun and Bradstreet figures indicate that changes in Minnesota's employment rate and differences in the number of firms in the State are primarily due to new businesses being created or old businesses failing; or businesses expanding or pulling in their horns. According to State Planning officials, actual migrations either in or out of the state are an insignificant factor, and account for a negligible net change in the number of businesses in Minnesota.

In a comparison of business establishment changes in Minnesota with the neighboring states of North Dakota, South Dakota, Wisconsin, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska, Minnesota experienced the largest percentage of growth (24.5 per cent) in the number of all types of firms. And it had the largest increase in manufacturing establishments (664). In fact, Minnesota manufacturing employment growth was larger than the growth in Nebraska, North Dakota and South Dakota combined.

I hope these figures have not bored you too much, but I think it is extremely important to correct some false notions that may have been generated by last year's campaign.

Control wind erosion this year and for years to come with field windbreaks and-or stubble mulching. Your soil conservation district can help you.

Raise Over $5 Million For World's Hungry

Hunger walks, rural canvasses and 30-hour group fasts in more than 1,500 U.S. communities resulted in more than $5 million to help the world's hungry in 1979.

CROP, the community hunger appeal of Church World service, reported that gifts for the hungry rose by nearly $250,000 in a year when giving to many philanthropic causes was generally reported to be down. Contributions to the CWS clothing appeal, administered by CROP, were valued at $4,057,542.

CROP organizes fund raising and educational events on a community-wide ecumenical basis, and offers participants the opportunity to designate their gifts to the hunger-development agencies of their choice. As of Dec. 31, 1978, $842,013 had been shared with other agencies, including Catholic Relief Services, the Mennonite Central Committee, Lutheran World Relief, the World Relief Commission of the National Association of Evangelicals, and CARE.

Over $220,000 from CROP projects was utilized in U.S. communities to support Meals-On-Wheels, community food pantries, and similar local programs assisting the elderly, the handicapped, and other disadvantaged persons.

Because of an exceptionally high frequency of major disasters in 1978, there was an increase in large shipments of food commodities by CWS. Survivors of floods in Costa Rica and drought in northern Gahana, and refugees from civil strife in Nicragua, Lebanon, and Jamaica were other disaster victims whose needs "stretched CWS's capabilities to the limit," according to Paul McCleary, executive director of Church World Service.

In the opening weeks of 1978, CROP helped coordinate the purchase and shipment of 10,000 metric tons of wheat to Vietnam, the first humanitarian aid shipment to that country from the U.S. since the war. Severe drought, complicated by a rash of other weather calamities, resulted in a drastic shortfall in the country's rice crop, the mainstay of the people's diet. CWS wheat was used for manufacturing noodles and bread for distribution in orphanages and hospitals.

In addition to the large-scale emergency efforts, ongoing self-help development projects of colleague Christian agencies received over $1,000,000 in CROP-raised resources from CWS in the last quarter of 1979. Such gifts are used to support the development of appropriate technology, improved agriculture and animal husbandry, water resources, and vocational training. In some instances, the help provided took human form, in the persons of technical consultants, agriculturists and other skilled personnel. Altogether, more than 40 countries received development gifts from CROP-CWS.

Domestic use of CROP-raised resources included vegetable seeds for the Lakota Green Corn Garden Project at the Pine Ridge Reservation in South Dakota, and blankets for the use of flood and tornado victims in Arizona and Kentucky.

Pilot project in constituency education was launched in four Midwestern states to develop and test model educational programs. Project is an outgrowth of an expanded commitment of Church World Service to help raise awareness about the root causes of hunger and how inhabitants of the "developed" nations can be part of the solutions.

Minn. 2nd In Production Of Cheese, Butter

Preliminary estimates show that Minnesota's dairy processing plants manufactured 18 per cent of the nation's American cheese and 17 per cent of the nation's butter during 1978, again second highest behind only Wisconsin, reports agriculture commissioner Mark W. Seetin.

American cheese production in Minnesota, estimated at nearly 381 million pounds, was higher by almost 36 million pounds or 10.4 per cent greater than for 1977.

Minnesota's butter manufacture last year totaled over 175.4 million pounds. That was down by nearly 22.7 million pounds or 11.4 per cent below 1977.

National production last year of these two leading dairy products is estimated at over 999 million pounds of butter and almost 2.1 billion pounds of American cheese. U.S. butter production was 8.1 per cent lower than in 1977, while American cheese output was 2.7 per cent greater than the prior year.

Commissioner Seetin noted that according to federal estimates that the average American per capita consumption last year was about 17.4 pounds of cheese and 4.5 pounds of butter, Minnesota's dairy industry supplied nearly 39 million butter consumers and 22 million cheese consumers.

Neighboring Wisconsin last year manufactured 251.35 million pounds of butter, 25 per cent of the U.S. total, and 887.4 million pounds of American cheese, over 42 per cent of the national output.

We said "Firestone 23° tractor tires can save you time and money!"

"The Mean Machine proved to me I haven't been careful enough in choosing tires. You outdid them all which is really important. And what good's a tractor if tires can't deliver the horsepower to the drawbar?"
Darwin Fisher
5500 Acres.
Ypsilanti, North Dakota

"That Mean Machine! I couldn't believe it until I rode in it and saw it work. Now I can see how you can make the best product."
Myron Schnaithman
1480 Acres.
Garber, Oklahoma

We invited farmers using other brand tractor tires to come see any tires* they wanted tested against Firestone 23° tires at our Columbiana Test Farm.

These farmers who had been using competitive tires, said,
"PROVE IT"..and PROVE IT, WE DID! WITH THE MEAN MACHINE!
Using Firestone's one-of-a-kind Mean Machine, that can dial in the drag of almost any farm field and job in the world, we proved to these farmers that the switch to 23° tires could make these kinds of differences in their farm day: they could get into wetter fields sooner, they could finish working a field up to an hour sooner or get in four of five extra acres a day. This means real savings in terms of labor costs on a given job. As one farmer said, "There's a feeling among farmers that there's no real difference in name brand tractor tires. I wish every farmer could come here and see how wrong that is."
*Tire tests included the following: Dynamic Buckle Test — Firestone Field & Road versus Co-op Agri-Power, Goodyear Power-Torque and Armstrong Hi-Power Lug; Dynamic Slip Test — Firestone Deep Tread and Firestone Field & Road versus Goodyear Super-Torque and Goodrich Power Grip 30; Maximum Horsepower Test — Firestone Field & Road versus Goodyear Super-Torque and Goodrich Power Grip 30. All tires size 18.4 x 38.

New Device Solves Bad City Water Problem

Extremely hard tap water plagues hundreds of American communities. Its disagreeable odor and taste often forces homeowners to purchase bottled drinking water. It can cut the life of a piping system in half, the life of a glass-lined water heater by 40%. It stains fixtures, sharply increases detergent usage, and stifles lawn growth. In fact, practically any home device that runs on or uses water suffers.

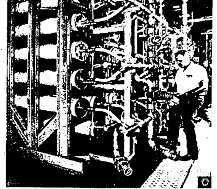
Why do so many communities put up with the problem? The answer is that conventional water plant methods for purifying well-drawn water with high levels of dissolved solids are ineffective or simply too costly. But a new method, called reverse osmosis, is rapidly coming into widespread use because of its ability to solve the problem economically, even for smaller towns.

A laboratory curiosity only a few years ago, reverse osmosis can now be found in over 500 water plants throughout the world. It makes use of extremely thin membranes which, in effect, "filter" 90% or more of the dissolved solids out of the water.

In April 1977 the largest reverse osmosis potable water plant in North America went into service at Cape Coral, Florida. Much to the delight of the city fathers and citizens of Cape Coral, the system has lived up to or exceeded their expectations. As their Water Plant Manager put it, "I'd advise other municipalities with similar brackish water problems and comparable operating conditions to look seriously at reverse osmosis. It's easy to operate and convenient."

The heart of the Cape Coral plant consists of 132 DOWEX® reverse osmosis units, or permeators, manufactured by The Dow Chemical Company. Each of these compact permeators, only about four feet long and a foot in diameter, handles up to 20,000 gallons of water per day.

Because of the experience of areas like Cape Coral, Dow expects increasing interest in Dowex Reverse Osmosis Permeators from the more than 400 communities in the United States that may not meet minimum recommended Federal standards for water purity because of high dissolved solids.



Mr. Jerry Marshall, Manager of the Cape Coral, Florida water plant, checks one of the 132 Dow reverse osmosis units used to reduce water salinity at a rate of up to 3 million gallons of water per day.

This cutaway view of a Dow Chemical Company reverse osmosis (left photo), unit shows the hundreds of small, hollow fibers, or membranes, which have the unique ability to pass pure water while "filtering out" various dissolved solids. (Right photo). Microphotograph of cross section of Dow fat fiber hollow membrane.

Sympathy is extended to his family and other relatives.

RIVER VALLEY . . .

Dick and Lavonne and the Gill family went wading in the Pacific ocean one day at Malibu beach. They also took notice of the homes built along the beach are slowly sinking into the ocean. Boy it looked pretty scary. Also visited the residents of Cher and Sonny Bono, Dean Martin and home of sister to Shah of Iran shortly after the foreign college students riots that did a lot of damage to her home and visited many other sight seeing places. A snow storm hit the Los Angeles area and all were snow blocked for two days. A very unusual and miserable weather. Anyway, it was a fun vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wiseth of Goodridge stopped in to visit at the Orlando Chervestad home Friday. Ethel and Robert left for a week's vacation in Hawaii and other islands nearby.

Have An Eggceptional Easter!

Turn your Easter egg hunt into a real surprise this year. Make these "Eggceptional" gelatine snacks shaped like eggs. They're easy to do: after you've emptied the egg shells by shaking out the eggs, fill with a gelatine mixture and chill. Extra unflavored gelatine makes these snacks firm enough to remain at room temperature without melting. They're so pretty you'll want to make quite a few, using different flavors of gelatine for a variety of colors. Wait till the kids peel these eggs—they'll be delighted and so will you.

EGGCEPTIONAL!

2 envelopes Knox® Unflavored Gelatine
1 package (3 oz.) fruit flavored gelatine
1-1/2 cups boiling water
Prepared Egg Shells*

In medium bowl, mix unflavored gelatine with flavored gelatine; add boiling water and stir until gelatine is completely dissolved. Cool 10 minutes.

Using a 1-cup liquid measuring cup or funnel, pour gelatine mixture into Prepared Egg Shells. Place in egg carton and chill until firm.

Peel carefully, removing outer shell first, then membrane. Makes about 6 large eggs.

*Prepared Egg Shells: With large needle, pierce wide end of egg and make 1/2-inch hole; insert needle into egg to break membrane and yolk. Holding egg over small bowl, shake to remove contents. Rinse inside well; let dry thoroughly.

Sunflower Complex To Serve RRV Area

Cargill's Red River Valley complex at West Fargo will combine in one location the processing capabilities of its Minneapolis seed crushing plant with the storage, cleaning and handling services provided at its Breckenridge operation.

Recently completed $1.5 million expansion program at the two existing plants increased seed crushing capacity in Minneapolis by 30 per cent, and cleaning, drying and handling abilities at Breckenridge about 60 per cent.

The new complex will operate in two stages. First stage involves drying, storage, cleaning and moving sunflower seeds either to the second stage of processing at the West Fargo plant, or transporting them to grain export terminal elevators like Cargill's Duluth facility.

In the first stage, sunflowers containing 17-18 per cent moisture will arrive and be dried rapidly to 10 per cent moisture if intended for storage or export as seeds. If seeds are to be processed into oil and meal they must be dried to 5-6 per cent moisture. Dried seed can be stored at 10 per cent moisture, cleaned by removing damaged seed kernels and foreign matter, and graded on the basis of oil content before being shipped for export.

Second processing stage involves prepress solvent extraction of oil from the seed kernels. High oil content sunflowers contain between 40-50 per cent oil. About two-thirds of the oil is mechanically pressed out by machine. The resulting cake is conditioned, ground, rolled into flakes, and solvent extracted with hexane. Oil and solvent are separated by distillation in a series of evaporators and condensors, and recovered hexane is reused.

Then, crude oil from the machine presses and solvent extractor is filtered to remove fine meal particles. This filtered crude oil is then ready for shipment to food processors for further refining and incorporation into their products.

When Cargill first began crushing oil-type sunflowers at its Minneapolis plant in 1967, farmers wanted assured markets before growing the crop. At the same time, food processors refused to investigate the oil's food properties until assured of ample acreage to meet possible consumer marketing demands.

To overcome this impasse, Cargill and other companies offered growers contracts for oil-type sunflowers from 1966 until 1973 when the crop was established enough to have created consistent export market demand. Simultaneously, the company worked with the major food processors as they developed margarines and salad and cooking oils using highly polyunsaturated sunflower oil.

During the same period, Cargill began hybrid breeding research and established a seed research station in Glyndon, in 1967. The Glyndon station developed the first commercial hybrid sunflowers for Red River Valley growers in 1974. That development and subsequent hybrid releases by others enabled greater yields per acre, and propelled the industry into consumer oil markets.

In 1974 less than 15 per cent of the oil-type sunflower crop was grown using hybrids. In 1977 more than 95 per cent of sunflower acreage was planted in hybrids and production increased accordingly.

Production of high-oil sunflower seed in the Red River Valley increased by nearly six times between 1974 and 1977, from 389.5 million pounds to 2.25 billion pounds, according to the USDA. In the same period, planted acreage increased fourfold, from 429,800 to 1.75 million acres. From 1976 to 1977 the sunflower crop's total cash value to Red River Valley farmers more than tripled, from $68.8 million to $236.1 million.

By comparison, the approximate cash value to Red River Valley farmers last year was $161 million for barley, $108 million for oats and $2.9 million for rye.

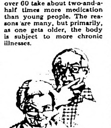
Another step that aided sunflower industry growth was improved sunflower handling capabilities at Cargill's terminal export elevator in Duluth, which completed an expansion program in late 1977. Portions of the expansion in Duluth were directly related to the export of sunflower seeds, which are crushed overseas.

Although 80 per cent of the crop from the Red River Valley has been exported in past years, it now appears that a higher percentage of the crop will be consumed domestically, primarily because of the acceptance of sunflower oil in U.S. consumer food products.

Three new food products from major processors — Lever Brothers' Promise margarine, Proctor & Gamble's Puritan cooking and salad-oil and Hunt-Wesson's Sunlite cooking and salad oil — use sun oil as a basic ingredient.

Medicines Work Best With Patient Know-How

Are you over 60? If you are, you probably have as many as 13 prescriptions filled each year. In fact, people over 60 take about two-and-a-half times more medication than young people. The reasons are many, but primarily, as one gets older, the body is subject to more chronic illnesses.



Thanks to modern medicine, many previously fatal and disabling diseases can be controlled. Yet the very medications that must be taken often can cause problems. You, as a patient, can make sure that the medications you take are doing you the most good by fully understanding how and why you take them.

You can begin to develop good medication habits by making a list of all the medications that you now take. You should know what the medication is, what it is for, and how often you should take it. This might seem simple, but many people forget to tell a new doctor or a specialist about the medications they already must take.

It is important for your doctor to have your medication information. If your doctor does not know all the medicines you take, he may prescribe the same medicine or a new one that might, when taken with your others, cause serious interactions. You can protect yourself from such inadvertent errors by keeping an up-to-date list of the medications you take.

If you don't know the names of your medicines, ask your pharmacist to list them for you. Then keep the list with you as a quick reference whenever you see a doctor.

Another way in which you can help your doctor help you is to make sure that you understand when you are to take your medication. If you are not sure what your doctor's directions mean, ask him. If the label on your prescription is not clear, ask your pharmacist to explain it to you. Some medicines are affected by food and should be taken on an empty stomach because food will interfere with the absorption of the drug and make it less effective. On the other hand, some should be taken with food to prevent stomach upset. Make sure you know when you should take your medication.

These are just some of the things you can do to make sure your medication does you the most good.

Keep these points in mind, too:

1. Don't swap medicines with a relative or friend. Even though your symptoms may seem the same, remember that prescriptions are tailored for each individual.

2. Avoid alcoholic beverages when taking any medicines.

3. Give your medicine time to work. Don't stop your medicine just because you start feeling better. Stopping too soon may cause a relapse.

4. If you have missed a dose of your medication, don't try to catch up by doubling the next dose on your own.

5. Be particularly careful when driving a car or operating machinery while taking prescription drugs. Some medications may make you drowsy.

Recent governmental and clinical studies have shown that there is a major need to inform people, particularly older people, about good medication habits. To fill this need, Roche Laboratories, a division of Hoffmann-La Roche Inc., has developed a nationwide public service program, called Medication Education, to help patients handle their medicines wisely.

Look for the Medication Education "What If" booklet at your doctor's office or in your drugstore, and let ME help you be a better patient.

U of M Discusses Federal Programs

Influence of the federal government has been felt a number of times over the past week as University of Minnesota officials and legislators continue digging into specific parts of the university's $437 million request to the 1979 legislature.

The changing and unpredictable nature of federal relations has affected handicapped students, financial aid programs, health sciences subsidies and graduate fellowships in recent years. As a general rule, the changes have prompted requests for more money from the state to help the university cope with the federal situation.

Specific needs were discussed by university officials who outlined their request to the education division of the House Appropriations committee.

A federal law to provide equal opportunity for handicapped people could cost the state millions of dollars. Rep. William Dean, IR-Minneapolis, said Monday that the state cannot provide all of the special education required for the handicapped, including those with learning disabilities, at all of the state's institutions.

"It would literally break the state to comply with this regulation," Dean said. "To some degree, we're going to have to wait and see what other states are doing."

Whether an institution has to comply with the regulations depends on the extent to which it is dependent upon federal funds, said Robert A. Stein, university vice president for administration and planning.

Stein, who presented the university's request for $477,000 to pay for more services for the handicapped, said the institution would not challenge the federal requirements because of its dependence on federal money, particularly for health sciences research.

The request, which was included in Gov. Albert Quie's budget, would fund three full-time administrative positions and pay for interpreters to help deaf students attending the university.

Stein said that the university currently enrolls 11 deaf students and that the request is based on an estimated enrollment of between 25 and 30 out of a total pool of 48 to 136 qualified deaf people.

The $477,000 amount is for programs to aid the handicapped and is separate from a request for $3 million to remove physical barriers on campus, Stein said. The legislature has already provided $1.7 million for removal of barriers to the handicapped since 1973, Stein said.

A 1979 federal act, the Middle Income Student Assistance Act, provides another set of problems for the university, according to Frank B. Wilderson, vice president for student affairs.

The new law raises the minimum family income level of students eligible for federal basic opportunity grants from $15,000 to $25,000, increasing the amount of money available to each student, Wilderson said, and it makes all students eligible for federally guaranteed loans if they can find banks willing to lend them the money.

"When you look at the federal guidelines for the act, you will see that there's a lot of work that somebody must do," he said. The university is seeking $841,314 to cover the expected increased workload in the financial aid office.

Quie has recommended that the university pay for the new personnel by cutting back on its existing pool of financial aid money, a proposal Wilderson dislikes. "We have used these very scarce funds for students who don't qualify for other state aid," Wilderson said. "What's suggested here is that we divert funds from this area to administration."

Quie administration officials have said that there are state funds available from the Higher Education Coordinating Board (HECB) and other state sources to replace student aid that would be lost from the university's appropriation.

However, university officials said Monday that some reform of the HECB fund is necessary to make it accessible to all of the students who are qualified for student aid.

Cutbacks in federal aid for outstanding graduate students are behind a university request for $508,000 to provide fellowships and scholarships. The money is needed to help the university remain competitive in attracting the best students, according to Kenneth Keller, chairman of the department of chemical engineering and materials science.

The Bush Foundation gave the university $2 million for graduate fellowships in the early 1970s when cuts were made in federal support for defense, science and health fellowships, but the Bush support is being phased out.

Good graduate students, Keller said, are necessary to keep university programs intellectually stimulating and to attract good faculty members.

Lyle French, vice president for the health sciences, last week discussed the unpredictable nature of the federal capitation program, which provides a federal subsidy for each student enrolled in the health sciences.

President Carter has announced that all capitation will be dropped by the federal government in 1980-81, French said. The capitation program was partially responsible for the expansion of the Twin Cities campus health sciences programs in the 1970s.

Federal support for the health sciences, public health, pharmacy, veterinary medicine, nursing, dentistry and medicine, peaked at $4.4 million in 1974 and has dropped to about $2.8 million during the current year, French said.

The university's request to the legislature includes about $466,000 to satisfy requirements attached to the federal capitation program for dentistry. The requirement which would fund an off-campus training program was recommended by Gov. Quie in his budget.

French is also asking the 1979 Legislature for contingency funds in the event that federal funds are cut further than anticipated by the university over the next two years.

Hearings will continue over the next two weeks on the university's request before the education division, which is chaired by Rep. Wendell O. Erickson, IR-Hills.

Getting The Most From Your Fireplace

Have you ever wondered why some families are able to spend a fall or winter evening enjoying a blazing fire while others can't even get one started? What makes some woods crackle and pop in a way that reminds us of hot chocolate and grandma, while others seem to explode and send red-hot missiles out to burn holes in the carpet? How about heat? Why do some fireplaces create that special kind of warmth while others just lose heat up the chimney?

These questions need not be a mystery any longer. For the first time, a book covering everything about firewood and fireplaces is available in paperback form. Entitled Poulan's Complete Book of Firewood, the book discusses 62 varieties of wood and which are best from the standpoint of starting a fire, burning rate, heat, flaming ability, fragrance, smoking and sparking tendencies.

The book also details types of wood plentiful in different parts of the country, how to season the wood, how to store it, and how to build and start the best fire.

One chapter emphasizes the benefits of cutting your own firewood. Not only is this the most economical way of gathering firewood but the consumer can be more selective and, in turn, be insured of a more enjoyable fire.

The book discusses the type of equipment needed for the task. Generally a chain saw weighing about 8½ pounds is the best choice for a beginner.

Other chapters discuss the various flame colorers available, alternative fireplace fuels and maintenance of the fireplace, including how to diagnose and remedy the problem of excessive smoke. A special section on fireplace cooking is featured as well as sections on how to build and maintain an outdoor campfire.

According to the Poulan book, 80% of all new homes costing over $23,000 contain at least one fireplace. 16 million cords of firewood, or the equivalent of 56 million trees, 12 inches in diameter, were burned in fireplaces in 1970. And that figure is expected to increase to at least 18 million cords by 1980.

While the energy situation is not likely to bring a return to caveman days, there are likely to be fuel shortages or severe storms when the fireplace may be the only source of heat. As a result, homeowners with fireplaces need to become more aware of firewood or alternative sources of fuel for the fireplace.

The book can be purchased for $3.95 at participating Poulan dealers, or is available by writing to The Fulfillment Center, U.S.A., P.O. Box 211, Dallas, Texas 75221.

Strike Vote At Northland Thur.

Members of the Northland community college faculty will vote Thursday on whether or not to go on strike against the state of Minnesota. The Minnesota community college faculty association has been in dispute with the state legislature over the legislature's alleged refusal to abide by previous arbitration.

Board of directors of the state association voted unanimously Saturday to hold a strike vote on Tuesday through Friday of this week. The board will have the results Friday evening for tabulation and will then meet on Saturday to make a decision on the course of action to follow.

Barbara Hauger of the Northland staff is a member of the state association board of directors and attended Saturday's meeting. She will bring the ballots cast at Northland Thursday to the state board meeting on Friday.

Al Nicholls is president of the Northland community college faculty association and Hauger is vice president. Orren Bendickson, currently on leave of absence from the school, is the college representative on the negotiating team.

Northland has 21 faculty members who are members of the faculty association and a strike, if it should take place, would affect approximately 600 people who are students at the community college here.

Nicholls and Hauger emphasize that the vote being taken here and in other community colleges would simply authorize the state board of directors to call a strike. It would not necessarily mean that a strike will take place. The organization has had authorization to strike twice before but has not done so.

The association maintains that the state is illegally withholding about four per cent of their salaries due them from an earlier arbitration award. A Ramsey county district court ruled earlier this year that the legislature acted illegally in reducing contracts in 1975 and 1977. That ruling is being appealed to the state supreme court.

Faculty members have a legal right to strike as a result of the decision made by state personnel commissioner Barbara Sundquist not to enter binding arbitration for contracts in the coming biennium. Charles Swanson, chief negotiator for the state, reportedly recommended denial of the MCCFA request for arbitration.

Art Of Black Ash Basketry Demonstrated

by Kim Blaeser
Times Reporter

"We are taught to have great respect for these trees," Josephine Robinson said while talking of her basket making hobby of 50 years. "We waste very little splint. We always save it and find some way to use it."

Josephine and her son Bill were at Northwest regional library of Thief River Falls Thursday to demonstrate the ancient craft of black ash basketry. The demonstration was scheduled in conjunction with the "People of the Plains, 1820-1850" art exhibit presently showing at the library.

Josephine and Bill, both members of the Ojibwe Indian tribe, are thought to be the only people in Minnesota still involved in black ash basket making. They were invited to demonstrate their craft on the mall in Washington D.C. during the bi-centennial celebration.

The hobby has been a part of Josephine's life since 1928 and part of her mother's before her. She talked about the changes in the methods since she first took up basketry. While today she and Bill make use of various tools in obtaining splints and preparing them for weaving, Josephine recalls using only an ax to cut the black ash logs, peel the bark, pound the log, split the annual ring and scrape the rough side of the splint. Now a commercial cutter is used to yield splints of uniform width, but once the cutting was also all done by hand.

Commercial dyes are used now but Mrs. Robinson talks about the natural dyes that she once used to color the splints for her baskets. Bark from oak trees, ironwood trees and ash trees were all used for various dyes. Blueberries yielded a purple color; pin cherries, red; bloodroot, orange; and ash bark, grey. The dyes however faded more rapidly than the commercial ones do and many of the natural ingredients are not readily available so the Robinson's now use store dyes.

The black ash logs used in the basket making are taken from the forests on the White Earth Indian reservation where Josephine and Bill reside. Bill has taken over the heavier tasks of the craft, retrieving logs from the woods, peeling off the bark and, pounding the logs to loosen the annual rings. Bill and Josephine explain that being able to recognize a tree that will yield splints of proper thickness is an art in itself. Most of the black ash trees are found in the wetter slough areas and it is the less appealing and more strenuous preparatory tasks involved in basketry that Josephine thinks prevent many prospective weavers from taking up the hobby.

"They'll weave," she laughs, "as long as you get the logs, pound them and cut the splint for them. Weaving is the most pleasant part."

After the logs are pounded strips of the annual rings can be peeled off. These are split and the rougher outside of each split strip is scraped by hand to make it smooth. Then the splints are cut to the desired width and dyed.

Bill estimates it takes about two hours to make an average basket depending on the size of the basket and the type of pattern used. Also used in finishing the baskets are sweet grass and the inside of outer basswood bark. The wares of Bill and Josephine come in every imaginable size, shape and color, from a basket with a small four inch base to a large baby bassinet.

Though the Robinsons market their baskets they still think of basketry as a hobby and not a trade. Josephine states simply with emphasis, "Basket making is fun." At 86, Mrs. Robinson has supported that statement with 50 years of involvement in the craft.

CLASSROOM INSTRUCTION is provided by Kathryn Trickle at St. Hilaire school where she also works individually with students in the Title I program. During the classroom time she works with students on reading and comprehension.

Title I Program Assists Children Needing Boost

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

"The program is definitely working for Chad. All the work I've seen that he's done is better than he's ever done before in school. He also says he likes school very much. I'm glad he has the advantage of the program: Keep up the good work, please!"

To the parent who wrote the above assessment of the federal Title I program as it is administered through the Thief River Falls public schools, the program is not another government intrusion into the lives of citizens. It is an opportunity for a child to fulfill a potential which might otherwise go unrecognized; a chance to clear some of the hurdles faced in school before they become insurmountable barriers which prevent future learning.

Learning, when it comes right down to it, is what Title I is all about. Robert J. Anderson, chairman of the parent advisory council for School District 564, sums up the program as follows:

"Title I is a program whereby a child is given extra instruction and encouragement when he or she has trouble understanding methods of study that may come naturally to other children.

"It keeps these children from falling behind in the regular classroom and helps them to develop a good study pattern, as well as working along with their regular classroom peers.

"I feel that the program is to be commended, because it is for the betterment of not only the children now in the program but for those in the future who will need it because of the growing demands being made on them."

Six parents from Thief River Falls will be learning more about the program when they attend the Region V national coalition of Title I parents workshop at Duluth March 22-24. Attending will be Mrs. David Dupree, Jim Counter, Mrs. Roxanne Nicholson, Mrs. Arlette Defreece, Mrs. Shirley Hinrichs and Forrest Hamm.

In School District 564 this year the program is operating with a total budget of $80,684, according to Walter Redinger, director. Initial funds totaling $64,241 were allotted in August of 1978 and the district was able to obtain an additional $16,443 in a fund reallocation in November of last year. Redinger notes that the total is $17,475 more than was available in the original program for 1977-78.

Full-time Title I teachers are employed to assist students in kindergarten through fifth grade in Northrop, Knox and Washington elementary schools and kindergarten through fourth grade at St. Hilaire elementary school. At St. Bernard's school a teacher is employed one-third time to give assistance in kindergarten through sixth grades and at Franklin middle school two instructors are employed part-time to offer five-sixths combined time assisting students in the sixth grade only.

At present the program involves 154 public and 17 private (St. Bernard's) school students in Thief River Falls. Eleven students will be dismissed from the program in the near future and a waiting list of 24 children who have recently been identified as able to benefit from the special help will be drawn upon to fill the vacancies. Presently in the program are 17 kindergarten students, 34 in first grade, 28 in second grade, 27 in third grade, 25 in fourth grade, 12 in fifth grade and 27 in sixth grade.

Advisory committees have been formed at each school from among parents of youngsters receiving assistance under Title I instruction. Each of these committees has met twice. A district parent advisory committee has also met once this year, at which time Robert J. Anderson was elected the chairman.

"I feel the program is functioning in an excellent manner," director Redinger stated. "Last year we had no teachers in the Title I program on a full-time basis. This year we have four full-

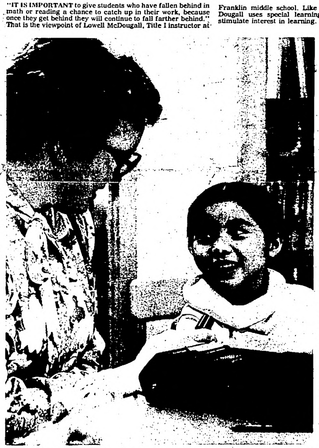
"IT IS IMPORTANT to give students who have fallen behind in math or reading a chance to catch up in their work, because once they get behind they will continue to fall farther behind." That is the viewpoint of Lowell McDougall, Title I instructor at Franklin middle school. Like other Title I instructors, McDougall uses special learning devices such as games to stimulate interest in learning.



LEARNING IS FUN when you can find a new friend who will help you, and even let you hear yourself recite the alphabet of a new language. Maila Yang is one of the students given special help by Loreen Gibson, teacher in the federal Title I program at Knox elementary school. She is one of a number of Laotian and Vietnamese children in the Thief River Falls school system who are able to get special individualized attention through the Title I program for reading and mathematics. School District 564 has seven instructors involved in the program in five elementary schools and Franklin middle school. Total funding for the 1978-79 program is $80,684.

MATHEMATICS is the major field for Pam Carlson, four-year teacher but in her first year as a Title I instructor at Franklin Middle school. "This program makes it possible to give students the extra help that is needed on a more individual basis," she says about her work. "This additional help has been beneficial in remediating students' problems in math and reading."

A senior citizen highrise one step closer to construction Wednesday when an agreement between the city of Thief River Falls and Burlington Northern railroad, which has been pending since September of 1976, was finalized at a special council session. Authorization was given for the use of city funds to pay Burlington Northern $121,950 for property located in site C, near the corner of Main ave. and Zeh st.

Of the $121,950 to be paid to Burlington Northern, $70,000 is for the purchase of the actual depot site with the remaining $51,950 covering relocation and rebuilding of the depot, trailer on flat car ramp and three crossings. The city will be reimbursed for the $121,950 by the federal housing and urban development authority (HUD) when it obtains clear title to the property.

Kalsnes Says Farm Programs Helped Prices

"Our 1978 programs were successful in preventing feed grain and wheat price breaks in a year of abundant production," says Harold Kalsnes, chairman of the Pennington county agricultural stabilization and conservation (ASC) committee.

U.S. producers enrolled 1.2 million farms in the voluntary wheat, feed grain programs and cut back production by setting aside a percentage of their crop acreage and deverting additional acres to conservation uses. The farmer-owned reserve, with more than one billion bushels of grain, helped increase farm prices despite record world grain production last year. Producers used the farm storage facility loan program in record numbers last year to add 845 million bushels of storage space on their farms.

The ASCS official said efforts to increase exports also paid off in a big way, and deserve a share of the credit for keeping prices out of the hole during the big harvest. Setting new value and volume records last year, farm exports increased by 14 per cent to $27.3 billion and climbed 18 per cent to 125 million metric tons.

"Today, on the average, farm prices are about one-fourth higher than they were a year ago," Kalsnes said. "Although they are not as high as we would like them to be, crop prices nonetheless are showing steady, sure improvement," he added.

ASCS is offering nearly the same programs in 1979. "Last year was a good year for farmers, and if they fully participate in the programs, 1979 could be even better."

Teenagers May Apply For Japan Youth Exchange

In an effort to foster greater understanding between the U.S. and Japan, more than 40 Japanese and American corporations and foundations have provided special scholarships for cultural exchange program for American high school students.

More than 100 partial scholarships are now available for American teenagers aged 14 through 18 who apply for summer homestay programs to Japan through Youth for Understanding, an international, non-profit high school student exchange program, the largest in the world.

Sponsors of the Japan scholarship program include many well-known American and Japanese concerns.

According to Youth for Understanding President John Richardson Jr., former assistant secretary of state for educational and cultural affairs, the sponsoring corporations believe that greater understanding between nations may be achieved by exposing young people to the experience of living with a family in a different culture.

"Prior to departure, students participate in an intensive, three-day orientation at Stanford university which introduces them to the culture and traditions of Japan and the experience of living with a Japanese family," Richardson explains. "For three years following the summer exchange, students meet for an expense-paid fall workshop for further study of Japanese life."

Applications must be sumitted by April 1, 1979. Information and applications are available from the Yourth for Understanding office, 4829 Minnesonka Blvd., St. Louis Park, MN 55416, (612) 920-2415, or students may contact Margaret McMillan in Washington, D.C., toll-free at (800) 424-3691.

Under a federal law administered by the U.S. Department of Labor, men and women who leave their jobs to enter military service or training — including National Guard and the reserves — are protected from losing their jobs or other employment benefits because of their service.

86 YEAR OLD JOSEPHINE ROBINSON, a resident of White Earth Indian reservation, and her son Bill were on hand at the Northwest regional library in Thief River Falls Thursday to demonstrate the ancient craft of black ash basket making. The demonstration, offered in conjunction with the library's "People of the Plains, 1820-1850" exhibit, gave information about the gathering of black ash logs, the steps taken in getting splints from the log and the actual weaving methods. Josephine and Bill are pictured here examining one of their finished baskets.

Rep. Stangeland Speaks Against Proxy Voting

Congressman Arlan Stangeland of the seventh district of Minnesota, said recently that recent votes by the House government operations committee and the House public works and transportation committee to allow the practice of proxy voting "encourage less participation by Congressional representatives, and this is something the American people can't afford."

"Proxy voting is wrong," said Congressman Stangeland, "and all this type of voting does is remove the necessary representation required in the American system of government." Vote came on a Republican sponsored amendment to prohibit the use of proxy, which is the practice of allowing a member to cast a vote through another member.

Congressman Stangeland said the people back home have the "right to expect" their representative in Congress to be present and vote on major issues. "I know they would not be happy to learn their Representative's vote was cast by another member, and I can't imagine why the Democrats in Washington support this poor form of representation."

"I understand that many times there are conflicts, and that it's not always possible to attend a meeting due to other Congressional obligations, but when an important vote is being taken, it is the duty of a Congressman to be there personally," said Stangeland. He added that constituents are not able to vote for "their neighbors," and that Congressman "shouldn't have the right" either.

"Open government is vital to this country, and we should not allow Congressional Representatives to give the impression they are participating in the business of Congress, when they are actually voting through another member," said Stangeland.

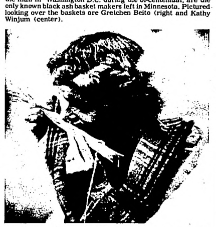
CLOSE EXAMINATION was given the wares of Josie and Bill Robinson when the mother and son team completed a demonstration of black ash basket weaving at Northwest regional library Thursday. The pair, who were invited to demonstrate on the mall in Washington D.C. during the bi-centennial, are the only known black ash basket makers left in Minnesota. Pictured looking over the baskets are Gretchen Beito (right and Kathy Winjum (center).



ITS WORTH A SNIFF thought Gretchen Beito who was among the audience members for a basketry demonstration at Northwest regional library Thursday evening. Mrs. Josephine Robinson and her son Bill, who gave the demonstration, indicated that they often used sweet grass in finishing the baskets. That name was given the grass, they said, because it never looses its scent. A sample, available for sniffing, proved the point.

Minn. Grain Inventory 2nd Highest In US

Minnesota's carryover inventory of grains and oilseed in farm storage on January 1, was second highest in the nation reports agriculture commissioner Mark W. Seetinr

Farm-stored stocks accounted for 79 per cent of Minnesota's total carryover.

Only Iowa farmers topped Minnesota's combined total of 865,771,000 bushels of grain and oilseeds held in farm storage facilities. The estimated market value of Minnesota's on-farm stocks was $1.965 billion.

Iowa and Illinois posted higher totals for total inventories in all storage positions — farm and commercial — than Minnesota's 1,096,850,000 bushels with an estimated market value of nearly $2,584 million.

Minnesota's totals represented almost 13 per cent of the national grain and oilseed stocks stored on farms and nearly 11 per cent of the national total in all storage positions.

By commodities, Minnesota's ranking and national share of carryover stocks are as follows:

Corn — 3rd and 12.4 per cent of stocks on farms; 4th and 11 per cent of all stocks.

Wheat — 3rd and 11.4 per cent of stocks on farms; 4th and 7.3 per cent of all stocks.

Soybeans — 3rd and 10.3 per cent of stocks on farms; 3rd and 7.9 per cent of all stocks.

Oats — 2nd and 19.2 per cent of stocks on farms; 2nd and 20.4 per cent of all stocks.

Barley — 2nd and 17.2 per cent of stocks on farms; 2nd and 16.2 per cent of all stocks.

Rye — 3rd and 8.7 per cent of stocks on farms; 3rd and 19.1 per cent of all stocks.

Flexseed — 3rd and 18.2 per cent of stocks on farms; 2nd and 37.8 per cent of all stocks.

Minnesota's farm-stored total this January 1 was higher by nearly 113.6 million bushels or 15 per cent above a year ago, while the total carryover was higher by just under 103 million bushels or 10 per cent above last year.

MAKING BASKETS has been a hobby of Josephine Robinson for over 50 years. The Ojibwe woman told an audience at Northwest regional library Thursday that when she first began weaving baskets she used only one tool when retrieving black ash splints for the baskets. With an ax, Josephine said, she would chop a tree, peel the bark from the ash, split the annual ring and scrap the rougher side of the splint. These preparatory steps are the most time consuming and the hardest part of the basket making. Josephine recalls once when she and her husband walked for two days before they found a tree they thought would yield splints of the proper thickness.

LOG POUNDING, one of the less appealing aspects of black ash basketry, was demonstrated by Bill Robinson at Northwest regional library Thursday. The pounding is necessary to loosen the annual rings so splints can be easily removed. Bill assists his mother with the more strenuous tasks involved in the basket making and also weaves baskets of his own.

Safety Is Being Emphasized For Snowmobilers

Minnesota's 270,000 snowmobiles offer a popular, but often dangerous mode of wintertime recreation and the Minnesota department of public safety urges snowmobilers to follow state laws governing operation of the vehicles.

State law prohibits snowmobiles from driving within the right of way of any interstate freeway. Snowmobiles may not drive on the roadways, shoulders or inside slopes of state trunk highways and state-aid county roads.

Snowmobile travel is legal in the ditches and on the outside slopes of state trunk highways and state-aid county roads. During daytime, snowmobilers can either use the right or left side ditches and outside slopes.

However, at night, snowmobiles must drive on the right side ditch or outside bank, moving in the same direction as traffic on the roadway. This helps keep motorists from being confused by seeing headlights approaching on the wrong side of the road.

Before crossing a street or highway, the law requires that snowmobiles stop completely and yield the right of way to any oncoming traffic. Then, cross at a 90 degree angle to the road and at a place free of hazardous obstructions. Headlights and rear lights must be on when crossing at dusk or during darkness.

Persons under 14 years are not permitted to drive a snowmobile across a highway. Operators between 14 and 18 years may cross a highway, but only if they are carrying a valid snowmobile safety certificate.

Snowmobiles operating on a public street or highway must have adequate brakes to stop and hold the vehicle under all driving conditions, at least one headlight able to show persons and vehicles 100 feet away during darkness, a red taillight visible at least 500 feet away in darkness, plus at least 16 square inches of reflective material on each side of the snowmobile forward of the handlebars.

Only persons 18 years or older may register a snowmobile. To renew a registration, eligible snowmobile owners can apply to the department of natural resources, license section, in St. Paul or any office of a deputy registrar of motor vehicles.

Largely as a result of U.S. Labor Department efforts workers today are protected by safety and health legislation, and laws which guarantee most of them a minimum wage, unemployment insurance, workers' compensation, and the right to bargain collectively.

Unemployment Remains Below National Level

Minnesota's unemployment rate in January was 4.8 per cent, Marijo Olson, acting commissioner of the Minnesota department of economic security, announced recently. Comparable national rate for January was 6.4 per cent.

The increase in the rate from December to January can be attributed to seasonal layoffs that follow the onset of cold weather. The January rate was down .5 per cent from January 1978, when it was 5.3 per cent. The state rate was up .8 of one per cent from December's 4.0 per cent.

The civilian labor force in January was 1,982,200; employment was 1,886,000; the number of unemployed was 95,600. In December 1978, the civilian labor force was 1,896,800; employment was 1,795,700; and the number unemployed was 101,100.

Production workers in manufacturing were paid average weekly earnings of $275 in January for working an average of 40.5 hours at $6.79 per hour. In January last year, production workers averaged 39.7 hours at $6.28 per hour for average weekly earnings of $249.32.

St. Hilaire Elevator
Information to 1979 Sunflower Growers:

Many seed dealers are talking of short sunflower seed stocks. This is true of certain varieties and brands. This is also true in certain local areas where dealers did not originally order enough quantity to supply their area.

In 1978, your St. Hilaire Co-op Elevator handled a total of 70,000,000 pounds of sunflowers. Therefore, they were aware of the potential 1979 sunflower business.

They put in a total of 475,000 pounds of sunflower seed for 1979 for 1979 planting. Of this amount, 395,000 pounds has been booked. This leaves a total of 80,000 pounds of seed left to sell, of which 70,000 pounds is 894, the most common number in sunflowers.

St. Hilaire Co-op Elevator believes they will have enough good hybrid sunflower seeds to cover your needs at very competitive prices.

Thank you,

UMC Sponsors Weight Control, Building Class

Weight control and building, buying, remodeling are two courses which will be offered by the University of Minnesota — Crookston (UMC) beginning the first week of March. Both courses are open to the public.

Nutrition counseling for weight control will be offered in a 10-week course beginning at 10 a.m. Wednesday in Dowell hall, room 207. The course will be taught by Sharon Stewart, instructor in the hotel, restaurant and institutional management division and the head of the dietetic program at UMC.

Each individual taking the course will be counseled individually. Food intakes will be analyzed through a computer. A caliper will be used to measure the fat folds. Stewart will help each person determine what his or her food intake, weight and goals should be.

During the sessions, participants will look at the different methods of weight control, such as calorie counting, behavior modification and exercise, as well as fad diets. Fee for the 10-session course is $25.

Building, buying, remodeling is a four-session short course sponsored by the university and Polk county extension service, in cooperation with builders, lenders, attorneys, material suppliers, contractors, governmental officials and others concerned about the housing consumers.

The course will be offered four Monday evenings from 7:30 to 10 p.m. beginning tonight in Dowell hall, room 114.

Tonight's topic will be surviving the great American dream and important legal considerations with resource people Bill Angell, extension housing specialist, St. Paul; and Rob Moschet, attorney, Crookston.

March 12 will deal with basic plan and design guidelines, site selection, foundations, structural and exterior components, building codes and property taxes. Resource people will be Gordon Tolbert, director, Agassiz Valley vocational center; Bob Tuseth, building code administrator; and Henry Gredvig, county assessor and zoning administration, all of Crookston.

March 19 session resource people will be Al Gossline, electrician contractor, and Bill Nimens, builder, plumbing and heating contractor, both of Crookston. They will consider plumbing system basics and heating system alternatives.

On March 26, the final session will be kitchen planning, working with contractors and obtaining mortgage financing. Resource people are Harvey Hawes, contractor, and Don Thoreson, president, First Federal savings and loan, both of Crookston.

Fee for the course is $21. For an additional $4, registrant and his or her guest may attend. Registration will be accepted on a "first come, first serve" basis. Interested persons may call UMC, telephone 281-6510, extension 241 for more information.

When pain arises it is not unusual to try to ease it by taking drugs or tranquilizers. The death of a loved one is painful to survivors, but by taking tranquilizers, we only postpone the facing of our grief and interfere with the natural expression of anguish at the loss of a loved one, thus delaying the readjustment that must be made.

Tranquilizers should be used only under a doctor's direction.

USDA Explains New Food Stamp Regulations

Despite the U.S. department of agriculture's (USDA) efforts to educate the general public concerning minor changes in the new food stamp program, many food stamp shoppers and grocery retailers are still having some trouble interpreting the new law and regulations. According to Len Mart, chief of the coupon use and redemption section in the midwest region's food and nutrition service (FNS), confusion about the new law primarily concerns the return of cash change for purchases made with food stamps, the purchase of hot foods, the use of food stamps to pay bottle deposits, and the rule concerning the return of cash for discount coupons.

Under the new law which was passed by congress in 1977, food stamp shoppers can now receive cash change from retailers up to a certain amount after completing a purchase. Mart explains that "under the new regulations, if a food stamp customer has 99 cents or less in change coming, they must now be given cash. For transactions that require more than 99 cents, recipients will be given a combination of $1 coupons and 99 cents or less in cash." Prior to January 1, food stamp shoppers received tokens, coupons, or credit slips instead of cash.

Under the new regulations, food stamp shoppers may now pay retailers in food stamps for deposits on containers of eligible food items, and that retailers are now allowed to redeem "cents-off" coupons from food stamp customers in the same way he does for cash customers. Mart explains, "This may involve the return of cash to food stamp customers in exchange for coupons, provided the store handles coupons in this manner for cash customers."

Another rule change that became effective under the new regulations is that food stamp shoppers may no longer purchase hot foods with food stamps. Mart explains that "food stamps are intended to help low-income people buy food for preparation and consumption at home".

Budget Comm. Ends Use Of Proxy Votes

Vote last week to stop the use of "proxy" or substitute votes in the Senate's budget committee represents a small, but significant victory for those concerned about how seriously their Senators are tending to committee business, according to Senator Rudy Buschwitz.

In the past, Boschwitz explained, the budget committee, like many others in the Senate, "has frequently seen few members in attendance while critical issues are being debated and explored.

"Then, when vote time comes, the committee chairman has simply been able to cast the votes of his party's members on the committee through the use of proxies," Boschwitz continued.

"Something else has worried me about this method, too. During the discussion of a bill or amendment, the committee often changes it. Let's say the Senator's substitute was given authority to cast his vote on the bill's original form. Well, by the time the vote is cast, the bill may have changed, and that substitute is voting on something quite different. It seems to me that the Senator has actually turned over his powers of judgment on legislation to his proxy, and this is wrong. Nobody ever elected that substitute to serve in Washington and make judgments like this."

Concluded Boschwitz, "I believe that those of us on the budget committee won an important victory Thursday when we stopped this practice of letting proxies vote. On budget at least, Senators will have to be present during that critical time when bills are in the final discussion and voting stages, or they won't have any say about the committee's decision. I see this as a far more responsible and responsive form of government."

Title I Has Much To Offer Local Students

time people and they are very pleased at the progress students are making with the additional time and help available."

Teachers generally agree with the assessment of program success and are pleased to be a part of it. Loreen Gibson, a reading teacher in Thief River Falls for the past 10 years after two years of third grade teaching in Luverne, states that "Our main goal is to improve achievement to grade level." Mrs. Gibson is involved in the Title I program at Knox elementary school.

"I feel that the most important thing we can do is make the child feel good about himself — to give him confidence by getting him to succeed, build his self-esteem and then to enjoy reading and math," she said.

"We supplement and reinforce what the classroom teacher is doing and we get good results through cooperation and communication with teachers, parents and our principal. We gear our program to meet the individual needs of each child.

"I've had a unique experience the past three years working with non-English speaking children. Each of them learns at a different rate. They have been a pleasure to work with — although frustrating at times for them and for us — and it has been very rewarding as we see the gains they make."

June Scholin, who has been teaching in the Title I program for nine of her 15 years in education, terms her work at Washington elementary school to be "very satisfying to me. Many of my pupils have become 'lost in the shuffle' of a crowded classroom and need to catch up on what they missed — perhaps because of failure to listen or because of absence. Being in a smaller group makes listening easier and each person feel more important."

Important as the special instruction may be to students, some teachers emphasize that the program can't get the job done alone. "I feel school and home must work together if children are to develop to their greatest potential," states Susan Olson, Northrop school instructor. She has been teaching for eight years, four in kindergarten and three in second grade, before joining the Title I program this year.

"I feel my years of experience at different levels have helped me meet the needs of my title students," she said. "Title I works with parents to establish a true spirit of cooperation for the benefit of the children."

Lowell McDougall, who has five years in education and is in his first year with Title I, is the only male among the seven Title I instructors. He emphasizes the catch-up opportunities in the program. "It is important to these students to catch up because once they do get behind they continue to fall farther behind. . .I hope my own children will have the opportunity to participate in this program if they need extra help."

Pam Carlson, who shares part-time duties with McDougall at Franklin middle school, is also in her first year of Title I work after three years in classroom teaching. Her emphasis is in teaching mathematics. "This program makes it possible to give students the extra help that is needed on a more individual basis," she says. "This additional help has been beneficial in remediating students' problems in math and reading."

At St. Hilaire elementary school Kathryn Trickle finds Title I work rewarding. This is her second year in the program after several years of teaching kindergarten, second grade and service as a long-term substitute.

"I can use teaching techniques and materials that are not used in the classroom," she says. "The children find this a stimulant for learning. As Title I is a supplemental program in the reading and math areas, the children are able to apply the skills directly in the classroom. In this way it is an immediate reward for their efforts."

"I really enjoy my work," admits Ruth Klosterman, instructor on a part-time basis at St. Bernard's parochial school. "Title I gives the child an opportunity to express himself and get extra help. It's most rewarding to me to see students advance and gain confidence."

Children in the program are to receive approximately 30 minutes each day with the Title I instructor. There is no set length of time that a child participates in the program. Children are dismissed or added to the program according to their advancement or their needs. Classroom teachers assess students on the basis of intellectual and emotional development, work habits, behavior and adjustment, nutrition and health, reading and language abilities and mathematics comprehension.

A Title I program has been offered in various forms in the Thief River Falls school system since 1965. State guidelines presently require that Title I money be used to meet the needs of all children in grades 1-4 before the program is expanded to include kindergarten or grades five and six. State officials feel that the greatest effect and growth is achieved at the early primary grade level, Redinger said.

The parental assessment at the beginning of this article is one of several volunteered by parents of students in the Title I program. Some others are as follows:

"I feel Title I has helped Scott a lot and has improved over the past year."

"Title I really helped David. He now enjoys math and likes to work the problems."

"I really think it is great to have special help for those who need it."

"I feel Title I reading program has been a benefit to both Toni and Kristi as to where they seem a lot more interested in reading and seem to understand what they've read. They also try harder to sound out words rather than me telling them the words."

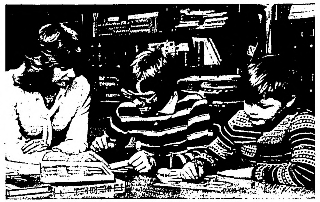
"I think Title I is a very good program. It helps children that are slow or don't understand reading or math to keep up with their roommates and to improve their reading or math. It gives our children an advantage we never had in school."

"Title I has helped our daughter catch up to her fellow classmates. It is a great relief to us, as parents, to have this supportive help for our children available.

"Any parent who has a child in Title I and does not know the great advantages of this program should take the time to come to the meetings. They have been a great help to us in understanding what is being taught to our child."

Like any governmental program, there are regulations and guidelines to comply with and reports to complete. But director Redinger minimizes that reality.

"Most of the guidelines are quite clear. Sometimes there may be a question of interpretation but it is usually no big problem. Our main problem is scheduling, because the program is intended to supplement classroom work, not supplant it. For the most part the program is developed to help youngsters learn. After all, that's what it's all about."



ST. HILAIRE SCHOOL students who need a little extra help in understanding mathematics or reading difficulties meet with Kathy Trickle. "I can use teaching techniques and materials that are not used in the classroom," she explained. "The children find this a stimulant for learning. And they are able to apply their new found skills directly in the classroom. In this way it is an immediate reward for their efforts."

WASHINGTON SCHOOL instructor in the Title I program is Mrs. June Scholin, a teacher with 15 years of experience in education and nine years in Title I work. "My work is very satisfying to me," she says. "Many of my pupils have become 'lost in the shuffle' of a crowded classroom and need to be re-taught what they missed — perhaps because of failure to listen or because of absence. Being in a smaller group makes listening easier and makes each student feel more important."

STUDENT PARTICIPATION increases under individualized instruction of the federal Title I program in the Thief River Falls school system. Because students meet in very small groups, they are compelled to contribute more and don't get "lost in the shuffle" as instructor Mrs. June Scholin describes the situation.

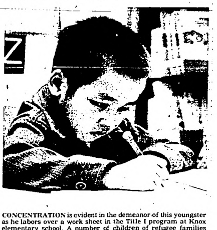
"SCHOOL AND HOME must work together if children are to develop to their greatest potential," states Susan Olson, instructor in the Title I program at Northrop elementary school. "Title I works with parents to establish a true spirit of cooperation for the benefit of the children. This is Mrs. Olson's first year in the Title I program, after four years as a kindergarten teacher and three years as second grade teacher.

CLASSROOM TEACHER Jane Miller (right) at the St. Hilaire elementary school turns over a part of her class to Kathryn Trickle, instructor in the federal Title I program for reading and mathematics in the Thief River Falls public school system. While Title I is geared primarily to individualized instruction, the classroom approach with a small group of students allows the instructor to emphasize reading on an expanded scale.

PATIENTLY WAITING to provide an answer to a question about a page just read is this student in Jane Miller's classroom at St. Hilaire elementary school. Reading emphasis is provided in the classroom by Kathryn Trickle, the school's special instructor in reading and mathematics under the federal Title I program.

DIRECT SUPERVISION allows Mrs. Loreen Gibson to note problem areas and provide correction of those difficulties in the students she sees under the Title I program at Knox elementary school. Mrs. Gibson taught third grade for two years at Luverne before moving to Thief River Falls where she has been a reading teacher for 10 years.

"IT'S MOST REWARDING to me to see students advance and gain confidence," states Mrs. Ruth Klosterman, who works with the federal Title I program part-time at St. Bernard's parochial school. "Title I gives the child an opportunity to express himself and get extra help. I really enjoy my work."



CONCENTRATION is evident in the demeanor of this youngster as he labors over a work sheet in the Title I program at Knox elementary school. A number of children of refugee families attend Thief River Falls public schools and seem to share an intense desire for education, according to instructors under the Title I program. The students help one another with language difficulties and their American classmates are also willing to help in a number of ways.

When Communists Fall Out

Following editorial is from the Christian Science Monitor:

China's invasion of Vietnam added another dangerous strain to the tension among communist states that threatens the peace of others as well. It is urgent that all sides heed the calls for restraint against widening the conflict. In particular, the Soviet Union ought not to use its recently signed friendship treaty with Vietnam as an excuse to weigh in militarily against its Chinese adversary.

With Soviet troops massed on its northern border, China appeared to act with unwonted recklessness by crossing its southern border into Vietnam. China has not been an expansionist power, though for 2,000 years Vietnam has feared and resisted absorption by its enormous neighbor. It sounded plausible for China to assert that it did not want "a single inch" of Vietnamese territory and that its action was intended as a "counterattack" deserved by Vietnam for border assaults against China. By limiting its self-style retaliation, Peking could attest to the sincerity of its request for speedy negotiations to restore border peace.

The temptation may be to let communists sink or swim in their own sea of troubles. The U.S. is correct to take a position of neutrality now that its own military involvement in Southeast Asia's plight is over. Yet stability is important not only to the people of the communist nations who have things bad enough already but to the noncommunist Southeast Asian states that are demonstrating the kind of economic progress that is possible under peacetime conditions. And, of course, stability far beyond Southeast Asia would be threatened if Sino-Vietnamese border conflicts were to kindle Sino-Soviet warfare.

Therefore it has not been inappropriate for the U.S. to use private and public channels to express concern. Washington has taken the sound position that Vietnamese troops should withdraw from Cambodia, China's ally, just as China's troops should withdraw from Vietnam, although the situations are not comparable in the sense that Hanoi entered Cambodia to overthrow the government, while Peking claims only defensive intentions. Indeed, a decade ago Chinese troops were in Vietnam to support Hanoi. There seems little doubt it is in the interest of both countries to restore peaceful relations, as urged by UN Secretary-General Waldheim.

China's venture is no help to the Carter administration in the aftermath of normalizing diplomatic ties. Though Vice-Premier Teng virtually promised to punish Vietnam when he was in the U.S., the force of China's invasion came as a rude surprise. It may bolster arguments in Congress for trying to spell out U.S. defense responsibilities to Taiwan.

Slowing The Push

Following editorial is from the Fargo (N.D.) Forum:

Now that 27 state legislatures have passed resolutions of one kind or another demanding that Congress call a constitutional convention for the purpose of writing a constitutional amendment that would force the federal government to operate with a balanced budget, Congress is running scared. It is sending word throughout the land that the easiest way for the federal government to balance its budget would be to cut off federal grants to states and cities.

The other route to a balanced budget is a hefty increase in federal taxes. Congress hopes to keep seven more states from asking for the convention. It takes only 34 states to force congressional action.

The cutback in federal grants is not to be regarded as an idle threat. The easiest target would probably be the federal revenue sharing program which distributes block grants to states, counties and cities. The recipients may use the funds for whatever purposes they wish. The beneficiaries have used the money to keep their budgets balanced, while the federal government goes deeper in the hole.

But revenue sharing isn't the only vulnerable program. The federal government handles 492 programs under which it distributes funds to states and smaller political subdivisions, either on a matching basis or as direct grants for specific purposes.

"Here's a sample of the grant programs: federal aid for highway construction, purchase of commodities for school lunch programs, grants under the Hill-Burton hospital construction program, Indian tribal payments, federal administrative expenses associated with the welfare programs, payments for research and development, federal aid to higher education, and Environmental Protection Agency grants for pollution control and abatement. The list could go on and on.

Of course, if 34 states do ask for a constitutional convention, Congress would be forced to act. There never has been such a gathering and the selection and allocation of delegates would be one of the principal matters to be determined by Congress before the convention could become a fact.

The convention wouldn't have the power to amend, but only the power to offer an amendment to the 50 states. It would then have to be approved by three-fourths of the states, 38, to become effective.

There is considerable fear in some quarters that such a convention would not be limited to finances in its powers to proposed amendments. One could only hope that delegates selected to design a balanced-budget proposal wouldn't try to rewrite the Bill of Rights or make other major changes in our framework of government.

Looking For A Scapegoat?

Following editorial appeared recently in the Duluth News-Tribune:

You could get the idea that DFL legislators are looking for a scapegoat.

Two DFL leaders criticized Republican Gov. Albert Quie on Tuesday for his "lack of leadership" in the sports stadium controversy now tearing up the Legislature.

In 1977, the DFL-controlled Legislature created both a sports facilities commission to plan a new domed stadium in the Twin Cities metropolitan area, and a special two per cent tax on on-sale drinks sold in that area. The revenue from that tax was supposed to be used to back up an estimated $55 million in bonds needed to build such a stadium.

In a rather surprising turn-about, the DFL-controlled Senate this month voted to repeal that two per cent tax, and thereby indirectly kill the stadium proposal. The House tax committee has scheduled a hearing on this subject at 8:30 a.m. Friday, and it seems that DFL House members are looking for an easy way out of this issue.

Tuesday, DFL party chair Ulric Scott and House DFL leader Irv Anderson complained that Gov. Quie had given no indication of what his opinion is on this issue. Scott and Anderson say the public deserves to know where Quie stands on the liquor tax question. Interviewed on Minnesota public radio Tuesday, Quie refused to say whether he'd veto a liquor tax repeal bill or let it stand.

It is curious that Scott and Anderson are so concerned about Quie's position on this legislation unless they are looking for a way not to bite the bullet. It may be guessed that while the DFL wants to get credit for killing this politically unpopular tax, at the same time, the DFL doesn't want to get blamed for killing the domed stadium.

If the DFL knew ahead of time that Quie would veto legislation ending the liquor tax, the DFL could pass such a bill, and blame the continuance of the tax on Quie, But if Quie has no intention of vetoing the bill repealing the two per cent tax, the DFL in the end is going to be blamed for killing the stadium and possibly for driving professional sports out of Minnesota.

Quie is smart to be keeping his cards so close to his chest. It's not his business, as the state's chief executive, to write laws. That's the legislators' burden, and they should carry out that responsibility without trying to have Quie blamed for a law for which they don't want to be entirely responsible.

The "leadership" argument is a two-edged sword. The first need for leadership is with the legislature alone to write whatever kind of bill they want. Then it's Quie's turn to act as he wishes. To get Quie to play his hand first is to ask for a reversal of the legislative process, and Scott and Anderson should know that.

1979 Is Year Of Water Awareness

Declaring that "water resources, like all natural gifts, must be keenly understood and prudently managed if they are to serve future generations as they have served us," governor Albert H. Quie has proclaimed 1979 as "the year of water awareness" in Minnesota.

Addressing the directors of 22 organizations and state agencies, Quie announced plans for a statewide effort to "educate and inform all Minnesotans about the nature and significance of our state's water resources."

Some of the highlights of the year of water awareness will include a series of statewide public information sessions, a water and health conference, and a variety of information and education materials and programs.

During proclamation ceremonies February 9 in the governor's reception room at the capitol, Richard G. Gray, Sr., president of the freshwater foundation, presented Quie with a limited edition print of an oil painting entitled "Water is Life", by Minnesota wildlife artist Leslie C. Kouba. The print is presented to people who make a significant contribution to "keeping our waters useable".

Christine Olsenius, coordinator for the freshwater society and water awareness '79, said that, while 22 agencies and organizations have already pledged involvement other groups and organizations are encouraged to join in the year's activities. The freshwater society will publish a calendar of events for statewide distribution.

"During this year of water awareness we hope to generate increased individual awareness of water as a limited resource, and to further our understanding of how our individual actions affect that resource (for better or worse)," explained Olsenius.

Minnesota water planning board has been entrusted with the responsibility of recommending to the governor and legislature by June, 1979, a strategy for making the best use of the state's water resources. According to Tom Kalitowski, chairman of the water planning board, the year will "provide an avenue through which the citizens of Minnesota can achieve a better understanding of the importance of our water resources and how such resources might best be managed. And the year will also provide a way for state decision-makers to learn the direction citizens think the state should be moving to protect its valuable water resources."

Dr. Joseph Rossillon, executive director of the freshwater foundation, added, "Minnesota is known as a leader in personal understanding and management of energy — it is my hope that we would also become a leader in understanding and managing our water".

For more information on water awareness '79, contact Christine Olsenius, Freshwater Society, 2500 Shadywood Road, Box 90 Navarre, Minnesota 55392 (612) 471-8407.

Students Win Horse Drawing Competition

Several area students were among winners in a horse drawing contest sponsored by the Red River Valley winter shows. There were more than 700 entries in the contest and those placing in the competition received ribbons with first place winners also receiving trophies and belt buckles.

Jamie Troska, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Troska of Goodridge and first grade student of Kay Wedul, won first place in the first grade competition. Third place went to Melissa Gould, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tim Gould of Thief River Falls.

David Yonke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Yonke of Thief River Falls, was third in the division for third grade students. His teacher is Ardelle Anderson.

Minnesota WIN Program Eases Taxpayer Costs

Savings to taxpayers as a result of Minnesota's Work Incentive Program (WIN) in fiscal year 1978 were $12,500,000, more than one-and-a-half times the $8,000,000 the program cost, the Minnesota Department of Economic Security reported recently.

James Haynes, assistant commissioner for employment and training, said the $12,500,000 represents only the savings in welfare grant expenditures. In addition, the costs of the Medicaid and food stamp programs also were reduced.

The savings, 38 per cent greater than in the previous fiscal year, were accomplished by placing 6,158 welfare recipients in unsubsidized jobs.

WIN program participants are Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) clients. Fifty-five per cent of the participants earned enough on the job to remove themselves and their families from the welfare rolls immediately. Others continued to receive AFDC payments but at a reduced level.

The average starting wage was $3.55 an hour. For men it was $4.52; for women, $3.16. Compared to the previous year, pay for men was up 48 cents an hour; for women, 32 cents. The average wage nationally was $3.32 an hour. For men it was $4.01; for women, $2.97.

Performance of the Minnesota WIN program was above average when compared to the nation as a whole. Placements increased 9.7 per cent over the previous year, compared to a 5.3 per cent increase nationally. At the end of 30 days, 95 of those placed in Minnesota were still working compared with the national figure of 82 per cent.

Nationally, the savings to taxpayers in welfare payments was $645 million compared to $364 million in the previous year. This was a 77 per cent increase and exceeded the planned goal by 37 per cent.

Baudette Bridge Load Limit Probable Soon

Baudette-area residents are being asked to comment on the potential load restriction of the Baudette bay bridge on TH11 in Baudette, states Bob Wolfe, Bemidji district director of the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT).

Mn-DOT recently completed a load-capacity rating on the bridge which revealed that, because of age and serious deterioration, the bridge may have to be restricted to a 9-ton axle loading in the near future.

Wolfe said this loading would permit legal 9-ton axle loads, but special and seasonal permits for overloading, such as log and grain hauling, would not be possible.

He said the bridge is scheduled for replacement in 1982. An information meeting concerning the replacement will be held at a date to be announced later.

Local residents who may be caused undue hardship by the proposed restriction are encouraged to contact Mn-DOT District Director R.E. Wolfe, Box 727, Bemidji, MN 56601 (218) 755-3815.

History Group To Meet At Warren Thurs.

Marshall county historical society will meet Thursday on the second floor of the county courthouse in Warren for a 2 p.m. business meeting concerning planning and dedication of the new visitor center on the county fairgrounds.

The society is involved in a broad scope of activities including moving of the Soo Line depot in Warren to the historical area on the fairgrounds. Society director Nancy Solum is working with Phyllis Haynes and Bess Swanson in developing an ethnic and old-time cookbook to be published this summer and entitled "Settlers Fare".

Marshall county's historical society includes everyone in the county and is governed by a 24-member board of directors. Jean Larson of Argyle, Helen Rolland of Stephen, Ernest Rue of Gatzke and Thorvald Lee of Newfolden are assisting the society in acquiring antique farm machinery and artifacts for display.

Applicants For Youth Corps To File By Mar. 15

Applications for the 1979 Youth Conservation Corps (YCC) program are now being accepted by the Minnesota Department of Economic Security. Forms are available at all senior and junior high schools and from Job Service offices throughout the state. Applications will be accepted until March 15.

Youth Conservation Corps is a summer work-education program which provides employment for 15 to 18 year old youth, along with an opportunity to learn about and develop an appreciation of our nation's natural environment and heritage. All Minnesota young people who become 15 years of age by June 1, will be under 19 years of age as of August 31, are eligible to apply. Corpsmembers are selected through a random selection process, and will be paid for 30 hours of work each week. Ten hours per week will be spent in environmental education activities. Enrollees will earn $2.90 per hour and may expect gross pay of 170 to 175 per week, after deductions for room and board.

Most YCC Camps in Minnesota are residential camps and corpsmembers are required to remain at camp during weekends. Recreational and social activities are provided. Residential camps will be located near Cass Lake, Walker, Deer River, and Marcell on the Chippewa National Forest; and near Isabella and Grand Marais, Minnesota on the Superior National Forest. Other Federal camps will be located on the Sherburne, Rice Lake, and Tamarac Wildlife Reguges, and the Voyageur's National Park. State camps will be near Duluth, Walker and Virginia. Individuals who are selected for residential camps will not have a choice of camp assignment.

Work on YCC projects will involve hard, physical labor that, at times, will be very demanding. Examples of work projects are: building trails, repairing campground facilities, planting trees, and improving wildlife habitat. Participants are made aware of how these activities relate to the environment and the need for them.

Anyone wishing to apply for YCC should contact his or her school counselor or the nearest Minnesota Job Service office.

Corporations Near Deadline For Tax Filing

Corporations ending their tax year on December 31 must file a 1978 federal income tax return by Thursday, March 15, the internal revenue service said.

Those corporations which need additional time to file should submit form 7004 by March 15 to receive an automatic extension.

In either case, corporations must deposit at least 50 per cent of the balance due in an authorized commercial bank or Federal Reserve bank when they file their return or application for extension. Federal Tax deposit (FTD) form 503 must be used for deposits, the IRS said.

IRS publication 542, "Corporations and the Federal Income Tax," provides additional information and is available free from local IRS offices.

Congressman On Committee

Congressman Arlan Stangeland has been chosen by the Republican leadership in Congress as one of eight members to serve on the Republican research committee's task force on government regulations and oversight.

The task force is one of 10 that the research committee will utilize to develop Republican initiatives, and analyze Republican and Democrat proposals on Critical legislative issues related to the increased amount of government regulation and the lack of Congressional oversight.

Number Of Minn. Workers, Earnings Rise

Number of workers covered by Minnesota unemployment insurance laws averaged 1,557,000 during the first quarter of 1978 and they earned more than $4,461,100,000, the Minnesota department of economic security (Mn-DES) reported recently.

Both the number of workers and the earnings increased compared to the fourth quarter of 1977 when workers averaged 1,464,000 per month and wages totaled $3,848,015,000.

In comparison to the fourth quarter of 1977, the payroll in the private sector for the first quarter of 1978 was up $518,465,273 to $3,623,569,265 and up $94,643,486 in the governmental sector. Total increase from 1977 to 1978 was $613,108,759.

In comparison to the 1977 first quarter, the 1978 wages paid for various industries were: construction $227,968,150, up $51,516,353; agriculture, forestry and fisheries, $16,203,965, up $2,647,593; transportation, communications and utilities, $292,771,537, up $35,919,552; trade, $891,548,104, up $106,609,559; mining, $65,927,269, down $4,080,695; manufacturing, $1,255,019, up $187,352,905; finance and real estate, $250,626,516, up $35,603,078; and services, $623,316,704, up $102,860,925.

Information about employment and wages is contained in a recent Mn-DES publication entitled, "Minnesota Employment and Wages by County — 1st Quarter 1978."

Report contains county-by-county information about the number of workers in the eight industrial classifications and the total wages paid during January, February and March of 1978.

Statistics include only those Minnesota workers who are covered by unemployment insurance. Those whose work is not covered are: the self-employed, workers in small farm operations, some commission salespeople, all railroad employees, elected government officials, persons employed by churches for religious work, family members working for the owner of a small business, and members of the Red Lake Chippewa Tribe.

Copies of the report are available from Mary Hummel, Research and Statistics, Minnesota Department of Economic Security, 390 N. Robert St., St. Paul, MN. 55101.

Carol Wilde Named To Dean's List

Carol Wilde, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wilde of Thief River Falls, was recently named to the deans list at Gallaudet college in Washington D.C. Wilde maintained a 3.97 grade point average on a 4.0 scale during her first semester and was one of 15 students in the nation to be accepted for a two-year interpreter training program. She is presently working to obtain certification by the National Registery of Interpreters in Washington D.C. Gallaudet is the national college for the deaf and the only liberal arts college for the deaf in the world.

Seventy Cases Of Measles Reported In Mn.

Minnesota department of health is investigating scattered reports of measles in 10 counties of the state. Seventy cases have been confirmed so far, according to Dr. Andrew Dean, state epidemiologist, and at least one child has been hospitalized.

Number of the cases were concentrated among elementary and junior high school students in Ramsey and Brown counties. Other cases have been reported in St. Louis, Hennepin, Anoka, Nicollet, Blue Earth, Dakota, Stearns and Kandiyohi counties.

"There is a nation-wide program to eradicate measles by 1982," said Dr. Dean, "and it can be done with today's vaccine and an effective immunization program." Dr. Dean stressed that measles is not a harmless childhood disease. It can lead to ear infection, pneumonia, brain damage and even death.

Early symptoms of measles include fever, cough, runny nose and eye irritation or sensitivity of the eyes to light. Rash appears about the fourth day and lasts four days or more. A child is contagious during the early stages of the disease, and through the first several days of the rash.

Measles is highly contagious, and spreads quickly in a school setting among unprotected children. State law has required measles immunization before children can enter school since 1967. Outbreaks still occur among children who were immunized when earlier and less effective immunization procedures were still in use, among the five per cent of the population for whom the vaccine doesn't "take," and among children who haven't been immunized.

Measles vaccine has been improved since it was first introduced in 1963, and the recommended age for immunization has been raised, to provide better protection. Department now recommends that children be immunized after they reach the age of 15 months. Children should be reimmunized if they received one of the less effective vaccines commonly used before 1968, or if they were immunized before the age of one year. Reimmunization is especially important if measles is present in the community. Children immunized at 12-15 months can obtain additional protection by having a "booster."

All diagnosed or suspected cases of measles should be reported to health officials, to aid in containing outbreaks. To report a suspected case of measles, contact your local health department, or call the Minnesota department of health at (612) 296-5237.

NCC Announces Acceptance Of Three Students

Northland community college has accepted three more area students for admission at the 1979 fall quarter. They are Penni Broekemeirer, Thief River Falls, and Daniel Willett and Gerald Fisher of Plummer.

Penni is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Broekemeirer. She will graduate from Lincoln high school and plans to major in elementary education.

Dan and Gerald are 1978 graduates of Pershing high school in Plummer and both plan to continue their education in the field of physical education.

Nordics Win Opener In District 32 Play

Marshall County Central high school girls basketball team opened 1979 District 32 tournament play Thursday with a 32-22 win over Lancaster, matching a 10-point, 35-25 victory the Nordics recorded over the Cardinals in the regular season finale five days earlier.

Playing at home, the Nordics jumped out to a 10-2 first quarter lead and held on to an 18-11 halftime edge. Lancaster narrowed the gap to 24-20 at the end of the third quarter but couldn't overtake the winners who improved their season record to 10-9.

Rosalyn Knutson of Marshall County Central and Donna Stweart of Lancaster were the game's high scorers with eight points apiece.

Goodridge—Alvarado

Goodridge closed out its 1978-79 regular season schedule Thursday with a 45-25 win over Alvarado that provides the Huskies with a 9-8 record entering this week's District 31 tournament.

Vanassa Sand scored 10 points for the winners who built quarter leads of 12-6, 26-9 and 33-15.

Migratory Game Bird Hunting Rules Proposed

Preliminary hunting regulations for ducks, geese and other migratory game birds for the 1979-80 hunting season have been proposed by the Interior Department's U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

The proposals, published in the February 15, 1979, "Federal Register", describe tentative season frameworks, daily bag and possession limits and shooting hours for migratory game birds in the contiguous United States, Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands. Species discussed in the proposals include ducks, geese, brant and swans; doves and pigeons; cranes; rails, coots, and gallinules; and woodcock and snipe.

No major changes from last year's hunting regulations are proposed at this time. Shooting hours will remain from one-half hour before sunrise to sunset. Framework dates for ducks and geese will be from October 1, 1979, to January 20, 1980, for the Atlantic and Mississippi Flyways and from September 29, 1979, through January 20, 1980, for the Central and Pacific Flyways.

To make it easier for disabled sportsmen to hunt, the service has proposed to allow paraplegics and single and double amputees of the legs to hunt from stationary motor vehicles or other motor-driven land conveyances, the use of which are prohibited at present.

The service is consulting with Washington, Oregon, and California about the desirability of changing hunting regulations for band-tailed pigeons to protect populations that may be declining. No final decisions will be made until additional information is obtained.

All of the published proposals are subject to changes later if indicated by information obtained from surveys, state fish and wildlife agencies and the public. Public comments on the proposals are invited through May 16, 1979, and should be addressed to the Director (FWS-MBMO), U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Department of the Interior, Washington, D.C. 20240.

To ensure that the public has ample opportunity to comment on the proposals, two public hearings will be held to review the status of migratory game birds and consider proposed hunting regulations. The first hearing will pertain to early season regulations (seasons opening before September 29) and will be held on June 21 at 9 a.m. in the auditorium of the Department of the Interior building, on C Street between 18th and 19th Streets, N.W., Washington, D.C. A second hearing on regulations for seasons opening on or after September 29 will be held on August 2 at 9 a.m. in the auditorium of the General Services Administration building, F Street between 18th and 19th Streets, N.W., Washington, D.C. Persons wishing to participate in these hearings should write to the Director (FWS-MBMO), U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Department of the Interior, Washington, D.C. 20240, or telephone 202-254-3207. Those wishing to make statements should file copies with the Director before or during each hearing.

Half Of Wetlands In U.S. Have Been Drained

When the first European explorers arrived in the New World, they were astonished by the abundance and variety of wildlife and fish they found. Early reporters described 10-inch oysters in the waters of Manhattan Island, 25-pound lobsters in New England, and five-foot lake trout in Lake Champlain. The countryside teemed with deer, moose, bears, ducks, geese, cranes and a host of other creatures.

Much of this natural bounty of fish and wildlife was embraced by the 127 million acres of wetlands estimated to have existed in the United States at that time. These marches, swamps, bogs, estuaries and other waterlogged lands served as nursery areas for fish and shellfish, breeding and wintering grounds for waterfowl and habitat for countless other species.

Acre for acre, wetlands are among the most productive lands on earth. Yet these areas have long been regarded as wastelands and today nearly half of the wetlands that existed in colonial times are gone. They have been ditched, dredged, drained and filled; converted to farmland, housing developments, shopping centers, airports and garbage dumps. From 200 to 300 thousand acres of wetlands are destroyed in the United States each year.

Definitions of wetlands vary, because there are many different types of wetlands. They include timbered swamps, bogs, fens, coastal marshes, potholes, estuaries, shallow lakes and intermittently flooded bottomland forests. Wetlands may be fresh or salt water and may vary in size from small ponds to swamps covering thousands of acres. Each type of wetland supports a unique network of animals and plants. All are complex, delicate systems not easily restored once they have been damaged.

Destruction of wetlands can have negative effects on people's lives and even the nation's economy.

For example, people whose homes have been flooded may be, in part, victims of wetland destruction upstream. Wetlands are important for flood control because they hold water and slow runoff. When wetlands are filled, increased runoff can cause costly flood and erosion damage downstream.

A farmer whose well has gone dry or begun pumping salty water might also consider what has happened to local wetlands. Wetlands are important to water supplies because some of the water they trap seeps into the ground to recharge the groundwater supply. This is particularly important in dry areas where irrigation and other activities have depleted groundwater supplies.

Wetlands also affect water quality. By trapping silt and organic matter, wetland basins act as natural filters, preventing these materials from running off into streams, rivers and lakes where they can cause ecological changes that damage fisheries and pollute drinking water. Wetlands are easily overloaded, however, and today many are being choked by erosion and effluents from agricultural, industrial and construction activities.

Such siltation and pollution cause complex changes that disrupt the entire ecosystem. For example, water becomes cloudy, reducing the amount of light reaching submerged plants. Surface plants like algae and duckweed and plants that require little light grow profusely and their respiration and decay decrease the amount of oxygen in the water. Fish die; some choice waterfowl foods are reduced; and aquatic mammals like beavers, muskrates, and otters can no longer find suitable habitat. Species diversity is reduced while the few remaining species become abundant. Unhappily, these are often species like carp which are of little value to people and which may compete with or prey on more desirable species. Under such conditions, wetlands can no longer function as natural filters nor support the diversity of food chains and complex webs of life that formerly existed in them.

Pollution and destruction of wetlands damages commercial and sport fisheries. Tidal marshes and estuaries are among the most fertile areas in the world, producing life-giving nutrients that feed clams, oysters, crabs, shrimp and many species of fin fish. These areas also serve as nursery grounds for juvenile fish and as breeding areas for adult fish such as striped bass. The renowned oysters and crabs of the Chesapeake Bay and the shirmp fisheries of the Gulf of Mixico are just two examples of multi-million dollar fisheries that depend on estuaries and coastal marshes. About two-thirds of the sport and game fish of the Atlantic Ocean and Gulf of Mexico depand on estuarine habitat, including coastal wetlands, during some part of their life cycle.

Perhaps the most obvious effect of wetland destruction is on wildlife. Wetlands provide essential breeding, feeding, staging and wintering grounds for ducks, geese and many other types of waterfowl. The insects, snails and other tiny invertebrate creatures and lush vegetation that thrive in these areas provide nutrients that birds need for egg production and growth. Wetlands also help protect nests and young birds from predators. Wetlands do not even have to be very large to be valuable to waterfowl. Seemingly insignificant potholes, some of which may be as small as one-fifth of an acre and hold water only part of the year, produce enormous numbers of waterfowl when they occur in large complexes as in the northern prairie states.

Besides waterfowl, wetlands provide habitat for many other living things. Such species as deer, moose, fox, muskrats, beavers, mink, otters, upland game birds, songbirds, alligators, turtles, frogs, snakes, snails and myraids of insects all use wetlands to one degree or another. Many endangered or threatened species, from whooping cranes to salt-march harvest mice, also need wetlands to survive.

Unfortunately, time is running out for wetlands. Draining, filling, and pollution continue at a rapid rate.

Waterfowl hunters help to preserve wetlands by purchasing migratory bird hunting and conservation stamps, or "duck stamps." Money from duck stamp sales goes directly to buy habitat for waterfowl.

COUNTY BOARD PROCEEDINGS

March 5, 1979
Official Proceedings
Board of County Commissioners
Pennington County, Minn.
February 22, 1979

Pursuant to adjournment the County Board met in the Commissioners' Room in the Courthouse in Thief River Falls at 10:00 A.M., February 22, 1979.

Members present: Hoffman, Grabanski, Koop and Tasa. Commissioner Stenberg was absent.

Mark Anderson of the Foss Engelstad Foss firm of Architects & Engineers appeared with information on a proposal for rewindowing the Courthouse as an energy saving measure. The windows in two rooms had been covered with paper in much the same manner they may be covered after the project. One room with three windows had the center window covered and another room with three windows had the two outer windows covered. The Architect viewed the various rooms and interviewed the occupants relative to the proposal. Estimates of the potential savings were presented with savings amounting to a pay back of the cost in under 20 years. Additional estimates were asked for with two of every three windows covered. The Board indicated they would reconsider the matter on March 6th.

At 11:00 A.M. the Board took up the matter of the proposals for work on 1st Street in Thief River Falls. Three distinct projects are part of the total proposal: Signals, widen 1st Street and widen the 1st Street Bridge. It appeared that the signal project had been agreed upon with the final dollar involvement to be set after contracts had been let.

The matter of widening the street and the bridge remained to be discussed. Discussion continued for some time with various proposals relating to the ultimate decision being advanced by all participants. City Engineer D. H. Stewart and County Engineer Arvid Olson were present to answer questions. It appeared that Federal and State funds are available at the present time for replacement of the bridge or for widening it and the question arose as to how long the funds would be available. With over 10 to 11 thousand vehicles on that area each day at the present time it seemed a good possibility that the widening may have to be done at some time and if the widening is delayed, will the funds then be available? The matter is to be discussed again on March 6th.

Commissioner Koop introduced the following resolution and moved its adoption:

WHEREAS, Contract SAP 57-617-07 has in all things been completed, and the County Board being fully advised in the premises,

NOW THEN BE IT RESOLVED, That we do hereby accept said completed project for and in behalf of the County of Pennington and authorize payment as specified herein. The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Tasa and upon vote declared unanimously carried.

Moved by Koop seconded by Tasa that the sum of $8,595.25 be appropriated and paid to the Juvenile Training Center in Bemidji according to approved budget request. Motion declared unanimously carried.

Moved by Tasa seconded by Koop that the sum of $9,600.00 be appropriated and paid to the Pennington County Soil Conservation Board according to approved budget request. Motion declared unanimously carried.

Moved by Koop seconded by Tasa that a Plat entitled Myhrer's First Addition including 2.71 acres in Govt. Lot 1 in Sec. 2 in Rocksbury Township be approved as presented. Motion carried.

Commissioner Tasa introduced the following resolution and moved its adoption:

WHEREAS, the cost of road repairing, normal maintenance and new road and bridge construction has increased tremendously due to double-digit inflation, and

WHEREAS, the increased traffic loads and climatic conditions have caused deterioration of these roads and bridges at a much faster pace than had been anticipated; and

WHEREAS, the Minnesota road transportation system has been financed by a user contribution based on the amount the driver used the roads and bridges; and

WHEREAS, the method of collecting this user contribution has not kept up with inflation;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, that user contributions be based on an escalating scale that will keep up with the inflationary spiral — rather than the present cents-per-gallon basis; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that Minnesota's legislators be urged to enact an inflation-proof method of collection of the road user contribution.

The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Koop and upon vote was declared unanimously adopted.

Moved by Koop seconded by Tasa that the meeting adjourn to convene at 10:00 A.M., March 6, 1979. Motion carried.

Section 8 hockey tournament semifinals present a pair of interesting match-ups as two still relatively new hockey programs — Detroit Lakes and Fergus Falls — challenge the old guard — Roseau and Thief River Falls. And many say the Lakers and Otters rate no worse than even against the Rams and Prowlers.

Roseau and Detroit Lakes will tangle for the first time ever tonight (Monday), with Thief River Falls and Fergus Falls locking horns Tuesday in a rematch of a Feb. 23 regular season finale won by the Prowlers 2-1.

"It's going to be a fast, clean game," predicted Roseau coach Gary Hokanson as he looked ahead to the Detroit Lakes contest. "They're the same style we are. We have three lines, they have three lines; we have four defensemen, they have four defensemen. Whoever wants it the most will win."

"We get our opportunity to play one of the best teams in the state," noted Detroit Lakes coach Ken Anderson. "I've never been in this situation before. It's just a super pleasure to have the opportunity to play them."

Detroit Lakes' sharp-shooting forwards vs. Roseau goalie Jim Pelowski may be the key. The Lakers have the ability to put the puck in the net, but Hokanson says, "I'm not worried about our goaltender. It's going to be hard for any team to score four goals against him."

The Thief River Falls-Fergus Falls match will be "a good one," promised Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand. "We feel the two teams are quite even." If there's an edge, it goes to the Prowlers and goaltender Bill Jury, indicated Grand who said, "We probably have better goaltending."

Fergus Falls coach Wayne Horgen is worried about the physical part of the game. "Thief River is awfully strong," he said. "We're not a physical team. If we let that get to us, we're in trouble."

All four communities have solid fan support which should jack up the attendance which was poor for Saturday's day-long opening session. Thief River Falls' pennant-waving delegation was by far the largest first-day gallery.

Region 8AA Competition Tough

First shot at Region 8AA competition by the Lincoln high school basketball team proved disastrous Thursday as St. Cloud Tech dominated the Prowlers 67-45.

Tech's front line of 6-7 Mark Gross, 6-6 Dave Stangler and 6-4 Jon Schwanberg clearly controlled things. They led an assault on the boards that limited the much smaller Prowlers to a mere six rebounds through three quarters.

Tech finished with a 40-14 advantage on the boards. Thief River Falls scored just once on an offensive rebound — by reserve Tim Wiskow late in the fourth quarter. Tech did it eight times.

"We're not used to playing size like that," pointed out Thief River Falls coach Glen Peters.

The quality of basketball and Tech's size might have impressed Thief River Falls players, coaches and fans, but not Tigers coach Al Andreotti. "In the Central Lakes we're just another ball club. It was a bad game for us," said Andreotti who was particularly upset with the 28 turnovers his team committed.

Unfortunately for the Prowlers and the rest of the Sub Region 4 teams, that's the kind of team they'll be facing year after year at the Region 8AA level. That Class A state basketball tournament seems to be a long ways away for teams like Thief River Falls, Crookston and East Grand Forks.

Miscellaneous

+ Thief River Falls' Mark Storhaug had his name erased from the University of North Dakota swimming records during the recent North Central Conference meet when John Nordness of the Sioux, a freshman from Vestavia Hills, Ala., won three events, bettering Storhaug's school marks in the 200-yard freestyle with a 1:48.45 and in the 500-yard freestyle with a 4:56.02. Storhaug set UND records in 1977 with a 1:48.9 in the 200 and a 4:56.40 in the 500.

+Golden Valley Lutheran coach Phil (Flip) Saunders, the former University of Minnesota basketball captain, accused Northland community college of a "cheap shot," when the Royals' star performer Hurdis Burns was submarined when he tried a dunk shot against the Northmen five minutes into their first round MJCAA state basketball tournament game. Burns suffered a broken wrist on the play and Golden Valley, after opening with an 86-68 victory over the Northmen, absorbed an 80-70 semifinal loss to Willmar and a 78-77 consolation game setback at the hands of Worthington. The Royals, pre-tournament favorite, beat Willmar by 35 points during the regular season.

+That fine Wadena high school basketball team that impressed a large crowd here in an 82-57 win over Thief River Falls in January, failed to reach the Region 6A tournament as unheralded Henning upset the Indians 55-52 in double overtime in the District 24 championship game. Coach Lowell Roisum said the 1978-79 season was a disappointment "to the extent that we haven't won anything." Roisum also said it was "disappointing to lose a game which we should not have lost to East Grand Forks." Brad Willis, Tim Stinar and Craig Walter of the Indians were Mid-State all-conference choices this winter.

Rams, Lakers, Prowlers, Otters Move Into Section 8 Semifinals

Played under a state tournament-type arrangement that featured all four first round games Saturday because of Friday's weather, the 1979 Section 8 high school hockey tournament sent Roseau, Detroit Lakes, Thief River Falls and Fergus Falls into this week's semifinals.

With games starting at 12:30 in the afternoon and, after a supper break, finishing nearly 11 hours later, Roseau edged Crookston 2-1, Detroit Lakes pulled a mild surprise by out-scoring Warroad 8-6, Thief River Falls handled Bemidji 6-1 and Fergus Falls ousted Lake of the Woods 5-3.

That sets the stage for the semifinals which will match 19-2 Roseau against 16-6 Detroit Lakes tonight (Monday) and 15-6 Thief River Falls against 14-7 Fergus Falls Tuesday in 7:30 p.m. games. Winners will meet in Friday's championship game, another 7:30 p.m. start.

All Section 8 games are being played in the East Grand Forks arena.

Crookston 1

Roseau used its quickness as the edge needed to turn back upset-minded Crookston 2-1 in a dandy tournament opener.

Aaron Broten scored both Roseau goals, providing a 1-0 second period lead and breaking a 1-1 third period tie. Steve Johnson scored for the Pirates.

Both coaches agreed the Rams' quickness won the game. "The quickness was probably one of the factors for us today," said Roseau coach Gary Hokanson. "We beat them to the puck in their end. We controlled the puck and that's why we got the goals."

"That was the difference between the clubs — the quickness," added Crookston coach Mike Lundby. "That's been our problem all year."

Broten broke a scoreless deadlock at 11:06 of the second period. A mere six seconds after he caromed a breakaway shot off goalie Craig Hoglund's left shoulder Broten came from behind the net and stuffed the puck past the netminder after controlling a face-off.

Crookston tied it when Johnson had an open corner on a rebound one second after a Roseau penalty expired. For two solid minutes it was an inept power play, but a final rush with seven seconds left led to the goal.

Less than two minutes later, however, Broten netted the game winner 20 seconds into a power play. Broten's weak shot managed to slip through a maze of players in front and trickled across the goal line at 7:20.

"We played well," pointed out Hokanson. "It was one of the best first round games ever."

"Just terrific," is the way Lundby described his team's play. "It was one of our best games. But we've played well ever since the middle period of the Thief River game (5-4 loss Feb. 6). Ever since that point when we came back, it's just like we've been a whole different club."

Hoglund came up with a fine 30-save game, twice as many stops as Roseau's Jim Pelowski. "The puck wouldn't go in the net," mused Hokanson.

Crookston ended its season with a 9-13 record.

Detroit Lakes 8
Warroad 6

In a wild shoot-out, Detroit Lakes had the better marksmen and the top gunner in junior Bill Reies who scored five goals in the Lakers' 8-6 victory.

Ries' fifth goal was the back-breaker as he put a rebound into an open net to cap a 3-on-1 power play rush with just one second remaining in the second period. That gave Detroit Lakes a 6-5 edge — the Lakers' first lead of the game.

"It was a super effort by all the kids," praised Detroit Lakes coach Ken Anderson. "One kid got five goals, but it took four kids to get the puck to him."

Warroad began with a 2-0 lead as Roger Olimb got a backhand over Detroit Lakes goalie Rick Wallin in a power play at 6:04 of the first period and Eddie Crhistian scored the first of his three goals on a 2-on-1 rebound at the nine-minute mark.

Poor judgment by Warroad goalie John Thunder provided Ries with his first goal on a power play at 11:28 of the first period. Thunder came way out of the net to take the puck away from Ries, but became entangled with the Detroit Lakes skater who maintained his balance, turned and flipped the puck into an open net. Sixty-two seconds later Ries tied it when a puck deflected by a skate had Thunder out of position.

Christian, right from a face-off to the right of Wallin, put Warroad ahead 3-2 at 14:55.

The offense continued in the second period. Ries and Christian netted hat trick goals 31 seconds apart; Warroad's LaRoy Moteberg and Detroit Lakes' Jon Ahles matched goals 35 seconds apart; and Ries converted a pair of power play goals in a 1:24 span at the end.

A tip-in by Mark Sims at 1:58 of the third period gave Detroit Lakes a 7-5 edge that lasted all of six seconds as Bob Landry scored on a wrist shot for the final at 2:37.

"They're a super hockey team," said Warraod coach Jerry Pelkey of his victors. "They shot the puck well. We had defensive lapses today; more than we've had all year."

Wallin finished with 30 saves, one more than Thunder.

Warroad ended the year 14-7.

TRF 6
Bemidji 1

Six different Prowlers scored as Thief River Falls out-skated Bemidji 6-1 in the evening opener.

Murray Dicken scored the only goal of the first period when he lifted a wrist shot from the slot past Bemidji goalie Tim Port at 5:42.

Three third period goals decided the issue. Tom Bjorkman got off a quick low drive at the nine-minute mark; Jim Thompson converted a neat 2-on-1 break with Jeff Ulrich by rapping in a point-blank feed at 12:43; and Todd Trickle finished off a flurry of activity around Port with a rebound at 14:28.

"I didn't think it was an extremely well-played game," mentioned Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand. "I feel the ice had a lot to do with that. It was awfully slow and sticky."

It became a 5-0 game 20 seconds into the third period on a spectacular bit of stickhandling by Scott Sabo who weaved through the Bemidji defense that sorely missed Kyle Yound who broke his leg in a 3-2 sub section win over East Grand Forks earlier in the week.

Bemidji got a tainted goal at 5:23 when Thief River Falls goalie Bill Jury was buried under a pile of players in front of his net. Instead of an expected interference call, though, Bemidji was given the goal as Craig Erhart scooped up the puck and put it in the net.

Bob Fitzgerald became the sixth Thief River Falls marksman at 8:04 when he hit the upper corner with a wrist shot at 8:04.

"We had goals from all three lines. Obviously that helps," noted Grand.

Bemidji finished its season at 7-15. "We played as hard as we could," pointed out coach Bryan Grand whose punchless Lumberjacks once again struggled offensively. "Speed shows up so much," he said. "The opportunity might be there, but we don't get to the puck in time."

The shots were even at 28 a piece, but there was a five-goal difference on the scoreboard.

First Period
Scoring — TRF, Dicken unassisted, 5:42.
Penalties — TRF, Dee, hooking, 11:31; TRF, Thompson, cross check, 14:53.
Saves — TRF, Jury 10; Bemidji, Port 8.
Second Period
Scoring — TRF, Bjorkman assisted by Huot, 9:00; TRF, Thompson assisted by Ulrich, Ranum, 12:43; TRF, Trickle assisted by Sabo, 14:28.
Penalties — TRF, Fitzgerald, interference, 6:11.
Saves — TRF, Jury 4; Bemidji, Port 11.
Third Period
Scoring — TRF, Sabo assisted by Geatz, Trickle, :20; Bemidji, Erhart assisted by Murphy, Saccoman, 5:23; TRF, Fitzgerald assisted by Sabo, 8:04.

Fergus Falls 5
Lake of the Woods . . 3

Fergus Falls followed a pattern set by Thief River Falls by not playing particularly well, but getting goals from five different skaters in a 5-3 decision over a scrappy Lake of the Woods team to close out the day-long first round activity.

"We didn't play our kind of game," pointed out Fergus Falls coach Wayne Horgen who said the Otters' "game" is skating and passing. "We had too much standing around. Our passing wasn't good; it was bad. If we don't play a skating, passing game we're in trouble."

For 2½ periods the Otters were indeed in trouble as Lake of the Woods held them to a 2-2 tie before Carey Boldenow converted a 3-on-1 feed at 8:35 of the middle period.

It didn't go down as a power play goal, but Fergus Falls' Titus Schroder sent a long, low drive through a mess of players at 14:21, just as the Bears' Scott Pieper stepped on the ice after serving an interference penalty. Schroder gave Fergus Falls a 4-2 edge entering the third period, but he wasn't around at the end after suffering a knee injury that may keep him out of the rest of the tournament.

Fergus Falls upped its lead to 5-2 on a mark Cole slap shot at 5:36 of the final period, with a power play goal by Lake of the Woods' Larry Loriecki completing the scoring at 11:50.

The two teams matched goals at the start. In the first period Fergus Falls' Todd Angus was aided by a screen on a long power play wrist shot at 3:41 and Pieper tied it with an ice-hugging slap shot at 12:42. In the second period the Otters' standout defenseman Steve Lundeen did a nifty bit of stickwork on a length of the ice rush for a close-in backhand at 3:15 that was matched by Scott Spina's backhand rebound just 14 seconds later.

Lake of the Woods goalie Galen Nagle performed well in a 32-save effort, seven more than Fergus Falls' Mark Hestrom.

The Bears finished 13-8-1.

First Period
Scoring — FF, Angus unassisted, 3:41; LOW, Pieper assisted by Hanson, 12:42.
Penalties — LOW, Brown, hooking, 2:49.
Saves — LOW, Nagle 11; FF, Hedstrom 8.
Second Period
Scoring — FF, Lundeen unassisted, 3:15; LOW, Spina assisted by Krohn, 3:29; FF, Boldenow assisted by Mann, Lundeen, 8:35; FF, Schroder assisted by Angus, Cranston, 14:21.
Penalties — FF, Mann, tripping, 6:22; LOW, Pieper, interference, 12:18; FF, Boldenow, slashing, 14:30.
Saves — LOW, Nagle 8; FF, Hedstrom 6.
Third Period
Scoring — FF, Cole assisted by Nygaard, 5:36; LOW, Loriecki assisted by Brown, Hanson, 11:50.
Penalties — FF, Cole, cross check, 11:50; LOW, Krohn, tripping, 14:21; LOW, Spina, elbowing, 14:58.
Saves — LOW, Nagle 13, game total 32; FF, Hedstrom 11, game total 25.

ALL ALONE on Bemidji goalie Tim Port, Thief River Falls wing Jeff Ulrich couldn't capitalize on the scoring opportunity as Port made this second period save during Saturday's Section 8 high school hockey tournament game played at East Grand Forks. The Prowlers beat the Lumberjacks 6-1.

AN OBVIOUS height advantage belonged to St. Cloud Tech's 6-4 Jon Schwanberg who defensed Thief River Falls' 5-11 Jeff Oseid during Thursday's Region 8AA high school basketball tournament game played at Bemidji State University. Dave Stangler of the Tigers looked on. Tech's decided height advantage produced a 67-45 win.

Ponies, Warriors Region Champions

Warren and Brainerd will be Region 8 representatives in the 1979 Minnesota state high school basketball tournament this week.

Thursday's opening round state tournament games will feature Class A competition at Met Sports Center in Bloomington and Class AA matches at the St. Paul Civic Center. Semifinals and finals in both classes will be played at the St. Paul Civic Center.

Warren will open the Class A tournament Thursday afternoon at 1:20 p.m. against Region 6A champion Breckenridge. Brainerd will face Region 7AA champion Duluth Central in Thursday's Class AA evening opener at 7:05 p.m.

Region 8A

Warren edged Fosston 49-45 in the Region 8A championship game Saturday at Bemidji State University to earn its first ever state tournament trip.

The District 31 champion Ponies, 22-1 for the year, handled Bagley 62-40 in the opening round Friday, with Fosston advancing on the strength of a 55-40 victory over Lake of the Woods.

Bagley bested Lake of the Woods 42-38 for consolation honors.

Region 8AA

Brainerd produced nearly identical scores in beating Moorhead 56-44 Thursday and knocking off St. Cloud Tech 55-48 Saturday in Region 8AA games played at Concordia college in Moorhead.

The Sub Region 2 champion Warriors will take an 18-4 record to St. Paul when they make their first state tournament appearance since back-to-back trips in 1971 and 1972.

St. Cloud Tech eliminated Thief River Falls 67-45 in the other Region 8AA opener Thursday at Bemidji State University.

FAST BREAK by St. Cloud Tech guard Paul Muller came to a halt when he lost control of the ball during Thursday's Region 8AA high school basketball tournament game played against Thief River Falls. Kyle Hams and Todd Young of the Prowlers gave chase. Tech beat Thief River Falls 67-45.

Two Northmen Are Named As All-Division

Northland community college freshmen guards Vince Parker and Scotty Gilbert were named to the 1978-79 MJCAA Northwest Division all-division basketball team by a vote of division coaches.

Joining Parker (Inkster, Mich.) and Gilbert (San Diego, Calif.) on the honor squad were Randy Wiener and Tim Aker of Fergus Falls, John Olsen of Brainerd and Tim Rolf of Crookston.

LHS Freshmen Place Second In Tournament

In a match-up of two teams who shared third place in the regular season standings, Grand Forks Schroeder beat Thief River Falls 74-54 Saturday afternoon in the championship game of the post-season freshman league basketball playoffs played in Grand Forks.

Thief River Falls reached the title game by beating Crookston 64-63 Thursday in the Lincoln gym and then knocking off regular season pennant winner Grand Forks South 53-43 Saturday morning in Grand Forks.

Coach Myron Peterson's Lincoln high school freshman finished the 1978-79 season with a 10-8 record.

TRF — Crookston

Four Thief River Falls scorers reached double figures in a 64-63 come-from-behind victory over Crookston.

Tim Swanson led the offensive show with 24 points, Kevin Sanders had 14, Kent Kainz 12 and Rick Trontvet 10.

Crookston jumped out to a 20-10 first quarter lead and stayed in front 32-27 at halftime and 44-37 after three quarters before Thief River Falls took charge in the final eight minutes.

TRF — South

Thief River Falls handed Grand Forks South its only loss during the regular season and then repeated the process in a 9:30 a.m. game Saturday morning, 53-43.

South led 6-5 at the end of the first quarter. The game was tied 18-18 at halftime, with Thief River Falls building a 33-28 third quarter edge.

Tim Swanson paced the winners by scoring 20 points, with Kevin Sanders getting 15 and Rick Trontvet 14.

Schroeder — TRF

In the 3 p.m. championship game, Grand Forks Schroeder was a 74-54 winner after building quarter leads of 22-16, 37-30 and 57-38.

Again, Thief River Falls had a trio of double figure scorers in Tim Swanson who finished with 19 points, Kevin Sanders 12 and Rick Trontvet 10.

All-Conference Team Named In Polar League

Calvin Lindstrom, the top vote-getter, Dave Ekman and Richard Dufault, the only junior on the squad, were Argyle all-conference picks.

Warren choices were Bob Carlson, Bob Norman and Steve Brekke.

Rest of the selections included Phil Wentzel, Fisher; Dave Moen and John Holtz, Alvarado; Craig Pietruszewski, East Grand Forks Sacred Heart; George Taus and Ambrose Michael, Climax; Cary Osowski, Oslo; and Keith Chwialkowski and Doug Borowicz, Stephen.

BEMIDJI GOALIE Tim Port kicked out this shot by Thief River Falls defenseman Brian Ranum during Saturday's Section 8 high school hockey tournament opening round game played at East Grand Forks. Jeff Ulrich of the Prowlers (9) watched the play, along with George Williams (10) and Jim Toinato (19) of the Lumberjacks. Thief River Falls won the game 6-1 to advance into Tuesday's semifinals against Fergus Falls. Game time is 7:30 p.m.

Tall Tigers Dominate Boards In 67-45 Win Over Prowlers

Instead of that proverbial lion, March came in like a tiger for the Lincoln high school basketball team. And like the March winds, those Tigers from St. Cloud Tech blew the Prowlers off the Bemidji State University Court 67-45 Thursday in opening round Region 8AA tournament play.

It was Tech's overwhelming size that dictated things. With a front wall going 6-7, 6-6, 6-4, the Tigers ate up the Prowlers who countered with a 6-2, 6-0, 5-11 trio across the front. Tech out-rebounded Thief River Falls 40-14, which included a 20-4 margin on the boards in the first half and a 32-6 figure through three quarters before reserves flooded the court.

"Size was the big factor," confirmed Thief River Falls coach Glen Peters. "And their defense is so tough. They can put pressure on you up front and even if you penetrated, the big boys were still there."

Tech never trailed. Smooth 6-6 forward Dave Stangler, who finished with 14 points, sank a 10-footer from the base line to start things. Thief River Falls center Todd Young shook himself free underneath for a tying basket with 6:56 remaining in the first quarter, but Tech took charge when Stangler followed a Thief River Falls turnover with a long baseline jumper; 6-4 forward Jon Schwanberg, the game's leading scorer with 18 points, finished off a show of board strength that featured four rapid-fire Tech shots at the basket; and 5-11 Paul Muller blocked a shot by Thief River Falls guard Kyle Hams and raced downcourt with the carom for a fast break lay-up for an 8-2 lead with 4:19 left.

It was 18-11 at the end of the first quarter as Stangler and Schwanberg combined for 14 points. The Prowlers had one first quarter rebound.

Tech's big men showed plenty of basketball talent as the Tigers hit 15 of their first 21 shots — with three of those misses coming on that early game volley — and finished a 35-20 first half with a 65 per cent shooting mark from the field.

Mark Gross, the 6-7 center who collected 11 points, provided Tech with its biggest lead when an easy lay-up with 2:23 remaining in the third quarter made it a 27-point, 49-22 ball game. Steve Enderlein's fast break bucket put it at 49-24 entering the final quarter.

"Our defense did a very good job," said Tech coach Al Andreotti. "Before the game we were afraid of Thief River's quickness and outside shooting. But we took care of that with our defense. When they did pentrate they had trouble with our size."

Thief River Falls shot just 29 per cent from the field, hitting 14 of 49 attempts, including several high looping tosses from the outside that were obviously induced by Tech's size inside. Twenty-eight of the 45 Thief River Falls points came from guards Kyle Hams and Enderlein who finished with 15 and 13 points, respectively. Hams did a great deal of scoring at the free throw line where he was 9-for-11.

"Offensevely we couldn't do anything, and that's because of their defense," mentioned Peters.

Meanwhile, Tech finished with a 28-for-51, 55 per cent shooting mark. "Their defense was having trouble with us inside," noted Andreotti.

Thief River Falls managed to put some points on the board with a 17-for-24 free throw night. Tech was 11-for-19 at the line.

The Tigers were charged with 28 of the game's 47 turnovers, but the Prowlers managed to convert only four of those ball handling mistakes by the Tigers into points.

Thief River Falls finished the 1978-79 season with an 11-10 record.

A STRUGGLE for the rebound developed between Thief River Falls' Jim Nyland and St. Cloud Tech's Ross Penner during Thursday's Region 8AA high school basketball tournament game played at Bemidji. Todd Young of the Prowlers looked on. The Tigers beat the Prowlers 67-45.

Bemidji's Depth Wins Fosston Swimming Meet

Fosston won six of the 11 events, but Bemidji's depth proved more productive as the Lumberjacks won the Fosston quadrangular swimming meet, postponed from Friday to Saturday because of the weather.

Bemidji finished with 174½ points, followed by Fosston 158½, Thief River Falls 135 and Moorhead 62.

Eric Rustad and Scott Daniels of Fosston were the individual stars. Rustad dominated the sprints as he swam the 50-yard freestyle in 22.9 and swam the 100-yard freestyle in 49.4. Daniels won the 200-yard individual medley in 2:11.7 and took the 100-yard backstroke in 1:00.0.

Those two Greyhounds also got together for a victory in the 200-yard medley relay. Dave Balme, an individual winner in the 100-yard breaststroke in 1:08.0, and Roy Dufault, were with Rustad and Daniels for a 1:46.6 meet opening victory.

Bemidji had winners in Jerry Will with a 1:57.8 in the 200-yard freestyle; Dave Smith with 180.20 points in the diving competition; and the 400-yard freestyle relay team of Ross Fitzgerald, Will, Rick Fitzgerald and Chris Johnson in 3:33.1.

Tonight At East Grand Forks . . .

Sub Region 4 Girls To Open Tournament Play

Unbeaten in six outings against Thief River Falls, East Grand Forks and Crookston, Bemidji ranks as the prohibitive favorite in the 1979 Region 8AA Sub Region 4 girls high school basketball tournament scheduled to be played this week at East Grand Forks.

First round games tonight (Monday) will find Bemidji playing East Grand Forks at 7 p.m. and Thief River Falls meeting Crookston at 8:45. Winners will square off in Wednesday's 7:30 p.m. championship game.

"We won during the season, but the second trip around we don't take anything for granted," pointed out Bemidji coach Jim Wahl. "If we play well we can certainly beat them again. But if we don't, we can be beat, too."

Bemidji will bring a 13-4 record into the tournament. "We've got good balance. We've got 8-9 kids who can play," explained Wahl who also said his team plays good defense, rebounds well and shoots well.

"I think Bemidji is definitely the favorite," noted Thief River Falls coach Sylvia Sjoberg who put a lot of emphasis on the word definite. "They've got good size. They've got good people inside and they're aggressive."

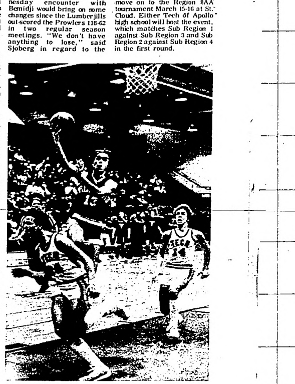
Tonight's second game matches 1977 champion Thief River Falls against 1978 winner Crookston. The Prowlers own a pair of narrow regular season wins over the Pirates, 39-35 and 40-34, that both began and ended a strong mid-season showing by the Prowlers who lost six straight games at the start of the year and then lost four in a row at the end for a 7-11 record.

"If we can put the ball in the hoop we can win," offered Sjoberg whose team owns a poor 26 per cent shooting mark from the field for the year. The Prowlers, who have connected on just 12 field goal attempts over their last six quarters of play, are averaging 38 points per game, matched against a 46-point defensive average.

Thief River Falls' familiar line-up will have Julie Easton, Pam Kotschevar and Roberta Engel across the front, with Ann Goodrich and Kelly Storhaug at the guards. In an interesting bit of statistical information, all three front line performers carry eight-point averages and both guards average four points per game. Engel and Easton average eight and seven rebounds per game, respectively.

Remembering those two regular season wins over Crookston, Sjoberg said the Prowlers will "play their regular game" tonight. But a victory tonight and a Wednesday encounter with Bemidji would bring on some changes since the Lumberjills out-scored the Prowlers 118-62 in two regular season meetings. "We don't have anything to lose," said Sjoberg in regard to the proposed changes.

Sub Region 4 champion will move on to the Region 8AA tournament March 15-16 at St. Cloud. Either Tech or Apollo high school will host the event, which matches Sub Region 1 against Sub Region 3 and Sub Region 2 against Sub Region 4 in the first round.



RICKY PETERSON went up for a fast break lay-up as St. Cloud Tech's Don Rivers overran the play during Thursday's Region 8AA high school basketball tournament game played at Bemidji State University. Paul Muller of the Tigers trailed the action. St. Cloud Tech won the game 67-45.

DNR Clarifies FWS Deer-Wolf News Release

A recent news release issued by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service concerning the shortage of deer in northeastern Minnesota has caused some confusion among the news media and public, according to Minnesota Department of Natural Resources wildlife research supervisor Blair Joselyn.

The news release cited research findings of biologist Dr. David Mech which show that timber wolves have declined on a 1,000 square mile study area in the Superior national forest because of low deer numbers. Interpretation of the Fish and Wildlife Service news release by the media has caused alarm by inferring that wolves over much of northern Minnesota are malnourished due to a lack of white-tailed deer, the main food item of timber wolves.

"Actually," said Joselyn, "except for a portion of the northeast, timber wolves are plentiful over most of northern Minnesota, and are not suffering from a lack of deer in their diets. Deer numbers in the northeast have been declining for three decades due to decreasing habitat quality resulting from a maturing forest and to a series of severe winters.

"Further, published research findings show that in recent years timber wolves have accelerated the deer decline in the Superior national forest."

Regarding the status of the timber wolf in northern Minnesota outside of the northeast, Joselyn said that ongoing DNR research has documented wolf increases in the past two years in north-central Minnesota.

He added that since the mid-1970's deer populations in the state have been stable or slightly increasing, except in the northeast and scattered areas where severe winters have reduced deer numbers.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of husband, father and grandfather, Oscar A. Relerson, who passed away March 4, 1978:

A million times we've needed you,
A million times we've cried.
If love alone could have saved you,
You would have never died.
In life we loved you dearly, in death we love you still.
In our hearts you hold a place no one else can fill.
It broke our hearts to lose you, but you didn't go alone,
For part of us went with you, the day God took you home.

Sadly missed by wife Clara, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Relerson and family, and Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Relerson and family. 1t19p

Gasohol No Answer As Fuel Replacer

Grain alcohol contains less energy than is needed to produce it, and "gasohol" probably will not replace regular gasoline even at double the current fuel prices, a University of Minnesota (UMD) study shows.

Economists Mary Litterman, Vernon Eidman and Harald Jensen researched the feasibility of making ethyl alcohol from grain and blending it with gasoline to form gasohol. They used varying price levels of corn, wheat and alcohol by-products, as well as two gasoline prices.

"As the cost of gasoline increases, the cost of inputs to produce ethyl alcohol also increases," the researchers point out. They find that gasohol from corn costing $2.50 per bushel costs nine cents more to produce than gasoline priced 43 cents per gallon at wholesale, and 8.5 cents more than gas at 86 cents wholesale. (The Minneapolis price was 43 cents during fall, 1978.)

UM extension engineer David Thimsen adds that while more efficient grain distilling and drying methods than those used in the study are available, they would probably not decrease production costs.

Gasohol could improve farmers' corn earnings, but it may also lower soybean prices in the short run, the economists say. "In the longer run, these price adjustments would cause farmers to shift some acreage from soybeans to corn, reducing the price effects on both commodities." They used data from an Iowa state study to gauge the effect of various gasohol programs on commodity prices.

Replacing all Minnesota gasoline usage with gasohol from corn could raise the U.S. corn price to farmers four cents they report. A regional program involving five states could cause a 25-cent increase, and a national conversion to gasohol could boost prices $2.08.

The price benefit to corn growers also increases gasohold production costs and lowers its feasibility, the researchers add.

Alcohol distillation yields a protein-rich by-product that can replace soybean meal in cattle feed. (The yield is approximately one-third bushel of by-product for each bushel of corn.) A Minnesota program could decrease soybean prices 15-28 cents per bushel, and a regular program could lower prices 60-95 cents. A national conversion may cause a decrease of more than $2.

Litterman, Eidman and Jensen also looked at possible state and federal subsidies. With a corn price of $2.50 per bushel, a nine-cent subsidy would currently be needed to make gasohol competitive with gasoline.

Eliminating the four-cent per gallon federal gas tax and cutting the state tax five cents for the nine-cent subsidy would greatly reduce the highway fund, they point out. State gas tax revenues would be reduced $97 to $107 million annually under a total Minnesota gasohol program. Since a portion of the highway fund is matched by federal dollars, the impact would be even greater than the loss in state tax dollars.

"As the price of corn rises, the subsidy to gasohol must be increased," they add. The maximum subsidy available in Minnesota from gas taxes is currently 13 cents a gallon.

The researchers add that they included only the costs of actual gasohol production, based on two plant sizes (17 million and 34 million gallons of annual capacity). "Neither the profit margin usually required to attract private investment, nor an allowance for additional distribution costs has been included," they say.

Art Exhibit Opened Wed. At Northland

An art exhibit, sponsored by the North Hennepin artists' association, opened at Northland community college February 28 and will be showing through April 1. The exhibit, which includes a variety of landscape paintings in oil, acrylic and watercolor, is open to public viewing from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m., Monday through Friday.

North Hennepin artists' association, established in 1962, was initiated to encourage the appreciation and practice of the fine arts in the Minneapolis suburban area. The membership consists of amateur and professional artists, art teachers, or anyone interested in the visual arts. The association has two juried shows per year, as well as numerous scheduled exhibits. Demonstrations, lectures and critiques are also given by the association.

This outstanding exhibit was brought to Northland through the efforts of Mike Trudeau, art instructor at Northland. "It is an exhibit that will be enjoyed by persons who wish to view painting depicting realistic subject matter," stated Trudeau.

Ask Exemption On First $200 Of Interest

Resolution supporting legislation to provide for a tax exemption on the first $200 of interest earned on savings accounts was adopted by the Savings League of Minnesota at its midwinter conference recently.

Noting that the savings rate by Americans had dropped below five per cent for the first time in history, Lawrence Kruse, president of the savings league, said "The time has come for the citizens to push Congress and state legislators to adopt measures that encourage savings. High income investors have plenty of opportunities to put their money into tax free of sheltered investments, but the average person is limited both in his or her ability to obtain high rates and in other incentives for savings.

"There are many tax advantages for borrowers and large investors, but the average saver is penalized by both taxes and inflation," Kruse said. "If we are going to continue to meet the huge capital needs of our nation and build a healthy economy, savings and investment need positive encouragement. This measure would be a healthy start in the right direction."

The league represents Minnesota's 62 savings and loan associations and one savings bank.

Handicapped Awareness Is State Program

Co-sponsoring handicapped awareness week May 13-19 with Governor Albert Quie will be Congressman Rick Nolan, the Minnesota state council for the handicapped, the St. Cloud area council for the handicapped and the Tri-County action program in St. Cloud.

Other service-providing agencies are planning their own activities to be coordinated with awareness week.

Three people will wheel their wheelchairs from Rochester, Mankato and St. Cloud to arrive in Minneapolis on Saturday, May 19 to participate in the wheel-in at Lake Nokomis, sponsored by the center for education of non-traditional students (CENTS).

Awareness week began in St. Cloud in 1977 as a local activity designed to share the concerns of people with disabilities with the total community, and to illustrate accessibility barriers.

It turned out to be such a success that last year 16 communities held their own activities and in St. Paul, Governor Perpich participated by spending a day in a wheelchair. Hundreds of other community leaders and participants assumed the role of a handicapped person by wearing blindfolds, special hearing aids and using various mobility devices while going about their regular routine for a day.

This year role-playing is again being urged, and co-sponsors expect much more extensive participation as a result of President Carter's proclamation for the week. Education, legislation and accessibility will be the three main areas of emphasis with the intent of providing accurate and appropriate information to law-makers, law-enforcers and other professionals as well as the general public.

For more information about how individuals and the community can participate, call the state council for the handicapped toll-free: 1-800-652-9747.

Fourth area on which contestants will be judged is past accomplishments.

Competing for the title of Thief River Falls young career woman are Lorna Hanson, Edie Brandli, Deborah Matero and Marilyn Gustafson. Brief information about each of the candidates is given below:

Marilyn Gustafson

A sales and marketing instructor at the Thief River Falls area vocational technical institute, Marilyn has worked in that capacity since the beginning of the 1978-79 school year. She heads the sales and marketing department and also serves as advisor for the distributive education clubs of America (DECA). Prior to assuming her present position, Gustafson worked as a part-time fashion merchandising instructor at the AVTI.

Coming from a family with a retail background, Marilyn's interest in that area is obvious. She has held several sales clerk jobs and earned her bachelor of science degree from North Dakota State university in textiles and clothing. She is presently attending the University of North Dakota working towards a masters degree in vocational education. Gustafson's hobbies are sewing and refinishing antique furniture. Her future plans are to complete study for her masters degree with a minor in distributive education and to become more involved with DECA, possibly working with that organization on a state level.

Board Qualifies Vote To Widen 1st St. Bridge

Proposed widening of First St. and First St. bridge and a signalization project for First St. were again major topics at a regular meeting of the Pennington county board held Tuesday, March 6. Forwarded to the county board was a motion from the last regular meeting of the Thief River Falls city council which stated that the council was in favor of the signalization, First St. widening and First St. bridge widening projects.

Following discussion of the matter, commissioner Glenn Tasa introduced a resolution that the chairman and the county engineer be instructed to proceed with the widening of First St. bridge provided the city widens First St. The resolution indicated that financing for the bridge come from state and federal bridge bonding funds with the county paying for approaches and for the engineering cost. The county will bear these costs, estimated at $52,000, provided the city bear the cost of widening First St., an estimated $42,000. Tasa's resolution also stated that the county would participate in the proposed signalization project provided First St. is widened. The resolution was seconded by commissioner Albert Koop and passed with commissioner Don Grabanski voting no.

In other business, the board voted to change the county surveyor position from an elected position to one with appointment to be made by the county board. Following this action Vernon Holmstrom of Thief River Falls was appointed to fill the county surveyor position vacated by the death of A. O. Stokke.

The proposed rewindowing project for the courthouse was discussed and a revised estimate from Foss, Engelstad & Foss architects was reviewed. The new estimate, made when the board suggested an increase in the number of windows to be sealed up to prevent heat loss, was down $3,000 from the original estimate. Commissioner Otto Stenberg made a motion that plans be completed for the project so the county could call for bids but the motion died for lack of a second.

Roy Waters from Northwest Mental Health Clinic was in attendance to seek approval for the clinic's 1979-80 budget. Waters requested $68,306 of county funds compared to a request of $60,165 last year. Of the requested amount, the county will actually only pay a portion since part of the clinic budget is covered each year by contributions and grants. Last year the actual amount billed to the county totaled $31,852 and it is estimated that the amount billed to the county in 1979-80 will not exceed $40,855. The board approved the budget.

Bids were opened for a new motor grader with only one bid received. That bid, which was accepted by the board, was from Zeigler, Inc. in the amount of $105,012. With a trade-in of an old motor

SPIRIT OF THE DANCE is illustrated in this multiple exposure of Winnipeg Contemporary dancer Gaile Petursson-Hiley. The Winnipeg dancers received an enthusiastic response from the Thief River Falls concert association audience in Lincoln high school auditorium Monday evening as they presented the association's fifth and final concert of the season. The program was fast-paced throughout with appropriate costuming adding to the production.

Winnipeg Dancers Give Concert Here Monday

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Shortly before the curtain was scheduled to rise on the Thief River Falls concert association's performance by the Contemporary Dance company of Winnipeg, Kenneth Lipitz sat in the classroom turned dressing room with his feet elevated but his spirits depressed.

The assistant director and dancer with the 12-member troupe would not dance that evening. He suffered a broken toe two nights previously while running off-stage and hitting a ladder. An understudy was pressed into service — although on the night of the injury Lipitz danced through the entire performance despite the painful injury.

"Oh, it hurt all right," he said, "but I had no choice but to dance. I had x-rays taken in North Dakota that confirmed the break but there was no orthopedist there to do anything about it. I had it checked again here at your clinic and your orthopedist said, 'Yup, it's broken.'

"You don't put a cast on a broken toe, I guess. You tape it to the next toe which serves as a splint. The doctor told me to let my pain be my guide — if it hurts, don't do it; if it doesn't hurt, go ahead."

Following that advice, Lipitz walked out on stage to introduce the performance, dutifully announcing that one number would not be performed because of an injury in the company. He didn't explain that the injury was his own. Somehow, it seems his inability to perform hurt more than the fractured digit itself.

Ken is a late-comer to contemporary dance but finds in it an opportunity to act and dance at the same time. The New York City native aspired to a musical career and because of his voice won a scholarship to a performing arts camp. While there he was among a number of boys pressed into service assisting girls in the ballet program.

"They needed some boys to lift the girls and carry them around the stage," he said. "It was agonizing work. I didn't realize how hard it would be and I hated it. It was horrible. But they liked me and convinced me to continue and I received a scholarship to Robert Joffrey's ballet school in New York City.

I studied ballet for about a year and on a whim auditioned for the Pennsylvania Ballet company. That was 16 years ago and I'm still dancing. I was with five different ballet companies over 11 years and had solo parts in all of them, but was never considered for the romantic lead. I'm not the stereotype for that — just look at me," he quipped.

Lipitz said he was a victim of "ballet snobbery" which caused him to think that modern dance was simply a last resort for failing ballet dancers.

"I never saw a modern dance concert until I became so disgusted with ballet that I was looking for something else," Lipitz said. "In ballet I was never excited by the work I had to do. Then I struck up a friendship with a man I met while appearing as a guest artist. He was a modern dance choreographer with a company of eight dancers. I had been appearing with companies of 30 to 60 or 70 people and I couldn't believe that a company of eight people could entertain an audience for an evening."

Lipitz went to the concert performed by the group and said he was stunned by it. "It was the most meaningful dance experience I have ever had," he said. "The people on the stage were not so much dancers as they were people, and they were actors, and they were dancers at the same time. They were not bodies flying across the stage and doing beautiful things. They were human beings having an experience, just like theatre."

He left the National Ballet of Canada at the end of the season and with his wife joined the Brockport Resident Dance company — the group that had given him his impressive introduction to modern dance.

"In modern dance there is no vocabulary," he said. "In ballet, every movement has a name. In modern dance there is no name for the movement. There is just a meaning, a feeling, a shape, a look, a line — it's more concentrated; you think and then you move. It's a mind and body involvement and it makes you feel more like a whole human being."

A ballet dancer is really lucky if his or her body permits dancing until the age of 40, Lipitz said. "When I was 27 (he is now 33) I was considering retiring from dancing. I was barely an adult and I hadn't really experienced

WARM-UP PERIOD for the Contemporary Dancers of Winnipeg who appeared in concert in Thief River Falls Monday included a number of steps and movements such as the one above. The dancers went through a series of exercises and some group routines in the late afternoon and early evening to get their muscles in tone for the 8 p.m. performance.

MODERN DANCERS Kenneth Lipitz and Gaile Petursson-Hiley were members of the Winnipeg Contemporary dance troupe which appeared in Thief River Falls Monday as the concluding concert in the Thief River Falls concert series. Lipitz, 33, is associate director of the organization but was unable to perform here after suffering a broken toe two days previously. Petursson-Hiley, 25, is the only member of the troupe who was born and reared in Winnipeg. Both tell of their experiences and impressions in an interview in today's Times.

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Anderson and Wangberg Marriage Vows Spoken

Miss Vicki Lynn Anderson of East Grand Forks and John Thorn Wangberg of Sleepy Eye exchanged marriage vows at 3 p.m., December 30, at Our Savior's Lutheran church, East Grand Forks.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Anderson of East Grand Forks, former Middle River residents; and Mrs. Reuben Wangberg of Moorhead, formerly of Thief River Falls, and the late Rev. Reuben Wangberg.

Officiating at the double ring ceremony were Rev. Robert Bergland of Our Savior's and Rev. Roger Olson, pastor of Christ the King Lutheran church, Moorhead. Organist was Mrs. Charlene Berg of East Grand Forks. As the mothers were ushered in pianist Muff Magelssen of Park Rapids played Crouck's "My Tribute." The processionals, "He Shall Feed His Flock," and "Wedding Processional," from "Sound of Music," by Rodgers and Hammerstein were played by the organist and flautist Shelly Lund, Thief River Falls. Vocal selections were Copeland's "Love Came Down at Christmas," by Don Danielson, East Grand Forks; Handel's "Wedding Prayer," by Phil Jore, Warroad; and the benediction, "Irish Blessing," which was sung by Phil Jore and Vickie Nyberg of Moorhead. The organist and trumpeter Pam Haugstul, Fosston, played Purcell's "Trumpet Tune," for the recessional.

Forming the chancel setting were evergreens flocked in white and candelabras graced with greenery and white bows.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father and given in marriage by her parents. She was attired in a gown of white qiana knit designed with a fitted bodice with long tapered sleeves and a flared skirt that extended into a chapel-length train edged with lace. Lace and seed pearls trimmed the high neckline and sheer yoke. Creating back interest was a waist-length watteau of corresponding netting, seed pearls and lace. A cap-styled headpiece of matching lace and seed pearls held her chapel-length veil. She carried a crescent bouquet.

Kelly Bjorkman, Thief River Falls, was the bride's personal attendant.

Maid of honor was Jan Gravseth, East Grand Forks, friend of the bride. She wore a mauve-pink qiana knit gown fashioned with a cowl neckline, long sleeves and a flared skirt. Similar gowns in cranberry red were worn by the other attendants: Cathy Christianson, East Grand Forks, a friend of the bride; Julie Anderson and Karla Anderson, East Grand Forks, sisters of the bride. All carried solitary, long-stemmed deep red roses, backed by cedar, ferns and babies' breath, tied with white velvet roping.

Serving as flower girl was Becky Judson, Park Rapids, a niece of the groom. Her gown of cranberry red velvet featured long sleeves and a high neckline with a white collar. She carried a white petite basket filled with miniature carnations and greenery.

The rings were carried on a white satin pillow by Dan Phillips, Ypsilanti, Mich., a nephew of the groom. He wore gray trousers and a white ruffled shirt topped by a red vest.

Candlebearers for the lighting of the wedding candle were Regina McCombs of Minneapolis and Karen Fevig, Park Rapids. They wore mauve-pink gowns and carried white candles surrounded by flowers.

Mark Wangberg, St. Paul, attended his brother as best man. Groomsmen were Brad Moir, Minneapolis; Paul Knorr, Minot, N.D., and John Knorr, Moorhead, friends of the groom. The ushers were Bob Anderson and Tom Anderson, East Grand Forks, brothers of the bride; Rolf Wangberg, International Falls, brother of the groom; and Paul Coen, Bemidji, friend of the groom. They wore gray tuxedos trimmed with black velvet, white ruffled shirts edged in gray, and white carnation boutonnieres tipped in cranberry red.

The groom wore a black tuxedo, a white ruffled shirt and a single red rose boutonniere accented with white babies' breath.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Anderson selected an emerald green floor-length gown with a green floral capelet. The groom's mother was attired in a pink crystal floor-length gown featuring a pleated skirt and matching capelet.

Honor guests were Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Lian, Middle River, grandparents of the bride.

A reception in the church parlors followed with Mr. and Mrs. Al Judson, Park Rapids, brother-in-law and sister of the groom, and Mr. and Mrs. Matt Edman, East Grand Forks, friends of the bride, as hosts and hostesses.

Vickie Henslin, Bird Island, registered the guests as Vicki Syverson, Moorhead; Lori Schoeder, Wadena; Jill Armstrong, Golden Valley; and Jane Fischer, East Grand Forks, served the punch. The Kransekaka, a Norwegian wedding cake, was served by Sandy Hoover, Sleepy Eye, and Kim Waale, Thief River Falls. All are friends of the bride.

Highlighting the serving table was a white three-tiered and pillared wedding cake, iced in white and decorated with flowers in shades of pink. Topping the cake was a golden chi-rho wedding cross. The cake was cut and served by Mrs. Rose Skyberg, East Grand Forks, friend of the bride, and Mrs. Eunice Phillips, Ypsilanti, Mich., sister of the groom. Pouring coffee were Mrs. Ruby Torgerson, Stephen, aunt and godmother of the bride, and Mrs. Ida Haukos, Madison, godmother of the groom.

Waitresses were the bride's friends: Susan Edman, Shari Fingalson, Lisa Medd, Dawn Spitsberg, Sherri Sykes, all of East Grand Forks, and Cathy Loeffler and Kathy McKenna of Moorhead.

The gift bearers were Katie Hanson, Crookston; Cindy Roth, Roseau; and Randy Johnson, Minneapolis, friends of the couple. The rice bags were distributed by Karis and Rachel Wangberg, International Falls, nieces of the groom, and Tim Phillips, Ypsilanti, Mich., a nephew of the groom.

The groom's supper for members of the immediate families and the wedding party was hosted in East Grand Forks by the groom's mother.

Following a wedding trip to Los Vegas, Nev., the newlyweds are now at home at 208 SW Summit in Sleepy Eye. The bride is a graduate of East Grand Forks Senior high school and Concordia College, Moorhead. The groom, a graduate of Lincoln high school, Thief River Falls, and Concordia college, Moorhead, is a teacher in the Sleepy Eye public school system.

Culture and use of herbs will be stressed by the Moccasin garden club at each monthly meeting held throughout the year.

Announcement of the year's study program was made by Olga Nelson at a recent meeting of the club held at the home of Mrs. Ruben Nelson. In calling attention to the study program, which will be given in addition to the one on herbs, Mrs. Nelson also distributed the new program booklets. The first report on herbs was given by Alice Lendobeja, who told of her past experiences in growing various herbs. The lesson, "Starting houseplants from seed," was led by Mrs. Nelson.

During the business session, members voted to again plant a plot at the Pioneer Village in Thief River Falls. In addition, the club will plant a rose, stressing the slogan, "1979, the Year of the Rose."

Alice Lendobeja presided at the meeting. The treasurer's report was given by Marianne Nelson prior to turning the books over to her successor Agnes Tieman. Roll call was answered by naming a houseplant easy to grow. Christina Anenson won the door prize.

Those present were Sophie Burstad, Christina Anenson, Agnes Tieman, Alice Lendobeja, Eva Lendobeja, Marge Carlson, Joan Nelson, Olga Nelson and the hostess, Marianne Nelson.

250,000 Young People May Have Arthritis

Arthritis, the nation's number one crippling disease, is not just a disease of the elderly. The Arthritis foundation reports that over 250,000 children in the United States have the disease and, if not treated properly and quickly, can be permanently disabled.

Once the disease is diagnosed, much can be done for the child with arthritis, a foundation spokesman pointed out. The aim is as normal a life as possible, for both the child and the parents. Loving parents and a supportive family are crucial to successful treatment.

During March the Arthritis foundation's toll-free message center has a grief account of arthritis in children. It may be heard at any time by calling 1-800-552-1278. Callers may request literature and record their own questions regarding arthritis.

In most Minnesota communities, the free services of the Arthritis foundation are made possible by the support of the United Fund.

Dance Troupe Gives Concert Here Monday

anything. Modern dance gave me a new lease on life."

We suggested that the public might not consider dancing to be a masculine type of activity. Lipitz maintains that art forms are neither masculine or feminine. An artist is a genderless thing, he said, and a person inclined to be an artist is simply inclined to be an artist.

"Whatever you are as a human being you will tap as a resource for your art," he said. "When people talk about masculine or feminine I don't know what to say to them. I mean, what's not masculine about working your — off all day long. You go in and you grunt and you sweat and you work like crazy. You work harder than most other people ever work. . .physical work. . .but it's beautiful. I think a gymnast's performance is beautiful, but I don't think a male gymnast is feminine."

What would Lipitz suggest for the inexperienced spectator watching a dance performance. "Sit back, relax and let it happen," he said. "Our performance here is picked especially for people with a limited experience with dance. It is very straight forward. There are no deep ironies, no hidden meanings, nothing that should give anyone any problem. Don't try too hard to understand. In all of dance there is really nothing to try and understand."

Gaile Petursson-Hiley is the only native Winnipeg resident in the Winnipeg contemporary dance group. She also moved into the modern dance field from ballet because she liked the freedom from regimen it allowed by that particular dance form.

She started dancing after graduating from high school at the young age of 16, studying ballet and jazz dancing at the Royal Winnipeg school of ballet. After several years there she joined a smaller company in Vancouver, B.C., called the Pacific Valley theatre where she danced ballet for a year. Then she returned to Winnipeg where she had left her husband and family.

At Winnipeg she "fell in love with modern dance" and worked hard at converting from ballet discipline to modern dance freedom. She decided she wanted to be a modern dance performer and was placed in the apprentice program of the company. The Contemporary Dancers company is the professional group affiliated with the dance school which has about 300 students in Winnipeg.

In the apprentice program she served as understudy for some of the dance numbers and this year moved into the company as a trainee. She has been dancing much more than she expected she would and credits assistant director Lipitz and artistic director Rachel Browne with giving assistance — and — encouragement as she develops in the program.

Gaile likes the versatility of the Winnipeg group which performs a variety of dance numbers. She believes dancing techniques can be learned with proper training but that performers must have a natural ability to perform. Some dancers are excellent in the classroom, she said, but are unable to relate to an audience for one reason or another and therefore are unsuccessful on stage.

A typical day for the company while in residence in Winnipeg involves class from 10 to 11:30 or 11:45 a.m., a 15-minute break and then rehearsal until about 6 p.m. This activity is sufficient to burn up a lot of calories, but many of the dancers have outside athletic activities or exercise interests that they also pursue.

Gaile said she follows no particular diet or exercise program but does try to keep her weight down. At age 25 now she is five feet, five and one-half inches tall and weighs 102 pounds.

Her husband also had a scholarship to the Winnipeg school of ballet but decided to go into the field of architectural design. Gaile said that his exposure to dance has helped him understand her career and has helped their relationship. Because the company has not been on tour as much this year as in some other years she is able to spend more time at home.

Gaile is like most performers in dance and theatre companies whose spouses are not involved in the profession. Lipitz, however, has his wife with him as she is a member of the company as well. She has retained the name of Shelley Ziebel. Gaile added her husband's surname of Hiley to her own when she was married "because he felt left out" and notes that it is no problem except for the length when writing checks.

Gaile intends to go on dancing for the indefinite future. Ken plans to continue dancing but is getting more deeply involved in teaching dance and enjoys that field. Should the Winnipeg group be scheduled to appear here again in the near future, local audiences may have the opportunity to see Gaile dance again and to watch Ken — his fractured toe mended — dance here for the first time.

For those who would rather not wait that long, the company will perform in Winnipeg this spring. Information can be obtained from Winnipeg Contemporary Dancers, 89 Princess Street, Winnipeg, Man., Canada R3B 1X5.

Durenberger To Cosponsor US Sugar Act

Senator Dave Durenberger announced Monday he will cosponsor legislation to stabilize the domestic production of sugar and protect consumers from shortages and wild price fluctuations.

The sugar stabilization act of 1979 sets a target price objective of 17 cents per pound, but does not involve direct price support payments to sugar beet and cane farmers. Instead, the target price would be set in the marketplace through import fees and quotas.

"This really is a consumer protection bill, also. Even though consumers may see a small increase in the price of sugar after the act is implemented, in the long run it will protect consumers against drastic price increases and assure them of an adequate supply of sugar," said Durenberger. "This bill will prevent a recurrence of the severe sugar shortages of a few years ago when the price of sugar jumped to 60 cents per pound and never came down as far as it could when the market was restored.

"Minnesota farmers, who are the nation's leading sugar beet producers, will also benefit. They no longer will have to suffer the unfair competition with imported sugar subsidized by foreign governments," Durenberger said.

Low world prices brought on by subsidized foreign imports have forced five U.S. sugar processing plants to close in the last year. The U.S. sweetener industry is important to the economy, according to Durenberger. It employs about 100,000 people and contributes $10.5 billion annually to the economy.

Emergency Fuel Assistance Is Available

Minnesota public service commission recently was informed by Frank Jones, general counsel for the federal community services administration (CSA), that consumers being served by utility companies regulated by the Minnesota public service commission are eligible for emergency assistance funding under the crisis intervention program. These funds will be distributed by local community action agencies to assist eligible persons facing shut-off because they cannot pay the costs of utility service during the 1978-79 winter heating season.

Minnesota public service commission requested clarification of a CSA rule that seemed to prohibit funds from being distributed in areas where a legal moratorium existed on shut-offs of utility service.

The general counsel for the community services administration stated that a disconnect notice from one of the regulated utilities indicating that service will be discontinued as of April 1, 1979, (if the fuel bill is not paid) is sufficient evidence of need for assistance on the date submitted to local community action agency.

"Since these utilities have the authority to disconnect service after April 1, there is no legal prohibition which precludes customers from assistance under the crisis intervention program," stated Mr. Jones.

Mr. Jones also noted that municipal and cooperative utilities customers in Minnesota not included under the public service commission order prohibiting disconnections of service are also eligible for emergency assistance under the program.

Minnesota has been allocated $6.7 million to assist eligible persons in paying their utility bills. Minnesota public service commission urges citizens to inquire at their local community action agency regarding assistance. Agencies in this area are Inter-County Community Council, P.O. Box 187, Oklee, Minn. 56742, serving Clearwater, East Polk, Pennington or Red Lake counties and Tri-Valley Opportunity Council, Inc., 114 So. Main St., P.O. Box 607, Crookston, Minn. 56716, serving Norman, West Polk and West Marshall counties. Respective phone numbers are 218-796-5144 and 218-281-5832.

FREEDOM OF MOVEMENT and expression is one of the focus points for enjoyment of modern dance, both as a participant and as a spectator. Members of the Winnipeg Contemporary Dancers, shown here during a warm-up period prior to the concert in Thief River Falls Monday, showed that freedom and exuberance during their performance. While the positions of the dancers in the photo would tend to indicate that much of the dance involved body movement while standing in place, fast footwork during the performance was one of its impressive features.

OSHA Acts To Consolidate Its Standards

U.S. department of labor has consolidated in one booklet job safety and health standards that apply to the construction industry.

Assistant secretary of labor Eula Bingham, who leads the occupational safety and heath administration (OSHA), said the booklet is "another example of streamlining and improving the regulatory system."

In the new booklet, provisions of OSHA's general industry standards that apply to construction worksites have been inserted in appropriate places in the construction standards.

The project is a joint effort of the labor department's construction safety and health advisory committee and OSHA as the first phase of an ongoing complete review of the construction standards.

The new booklet removes the confusion and uncertainty which resulted from the need for construction employees and employers as well as OSHA enforcement personnel to consult two sets of standards to determine which applied. The consolidated standards were published in the Federal Register February 9.

Reprints of that issue of the Federal Register are available from any of OSHA's 10 regional offices or from the OSHA publications office, Room N3423, Department of Labor, 3rd St. and Constitution Ave., N.W., Washington D.C. 20210.

Hearing Set On Proposed Crude Oil Systems

Draft environmental statement on the proposed crude oil transportation systems to serve the northern tier states will be the subject of a public hearing to be held in Crookston March 13. One of a series of 15 public hearings scheduled this month by the bureau of land management (BLM), the hearing will begin at 1:30 p.m. in the agricultural research center at the University of Minnesota.

BLM state director Murl Storms stated that the hearings will provide the public with an opportunity to comment on the adequacy of the proposed environmental statement so errors and omissions can be corrected before the final statement is issued. Testimony may be limited to 10 minutes if necessary to insure everyone an opportunity to speak.

The Crookston hearing is the only hearing scheduled in Minnesota but written comments can be mailed to Bureau of Land Management, Oregon State Office, 729 NE Oregon St., P.O. Box 2965, Portland, Oregon 97208. The comment period extends to April 2.

The environmental statement discusses four applications that have been filed under Title V of the public utility regulatory policies act. That act provided for the submission of competing applications for transporting Alaskan and other crude oil to northern tier and inland states. Purpose of the act was to provide a system for the President to choose among applications and to provide fast application processing.

Applicants are Northern Tier Pipeline Company, Northwest Energy Company, Kitimat Pipe Line Ltd. and Trans Mountain Oil Pipe Line Corporation.

Norman Brown Takes Part In Navy Exercise

Navy fire control technician second class Norman L. Brown, son of Arthur R. and Alma G. Brown of Thief River Falls, is participating in the combined U.S. - Italian naval exercise "National Week XXVI-Sardinia 79" in the central Mediterranean Sea.

Brown's ship received the battle efficiency award for fiscal year 1978. He is a crewmember aboard the guided missile cruiser USS Albany, operating from Gaeta, Italy.

The week-long exercise began February 26 and involves over 50 ships and almost 300 aircraft. Land based aircraft support is being provided by West Germany, the United Kingdom, Italy and U.S. air forces in Europe.

"National Week" is designed to test naval warfare techniques in a multi-threat air, surface ship, submarine and amphibious warfare environment. The joint exercise includes an amphibious landing in southern Sardinia by Italian navy and marine units combined with U.S. Sixth Fleet amphibious forces, including the 32nd Marine amphibious unit.

A 1971 graduate of Lincoln high school, and a 1973 graduate of Northland community college, with an Associate of Arts degree, Brown joined the navy in October of 1974.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

A person can't help but wonder what kind of logic Mr. Carter is using in fighting inflation when both he and the energy secretary are seemingly pushing for higher gasoline prices. The idea is if gas prices are high enough the public will use less.

The ones that will be hurting most are the working man who has to drive to work and the farmer who has to use the same amount of fuel to get his work done, no matter what the price.

Mr. Carter doesn't mind letting the oil companies raise prices up to 50 per cent but expects labor to hold raises to seven per cent and farmers not to get any raise in grain prices.

As for the fuel shortage, I think the oil companies are just holding back supplies waiting for the higher price. With billions of gallons in reserve just think of the profits they can earn by just holding it off the market for a while and with the president and energy secretary behind them, they are sure to get their price.

I just wonder how big a "donation" the oil companies will put into the Carter campaign fund in 1980!!

Sincerely,
Earl Hanson

Meat Supplies For January Up From 1978

Commercial livestock slaughter in Minnesota during January produced over 156.5 million pounds of red meats, five per cent of the nation's domestic consumer supplies, reports the Minnesota department of agriculture.

That was an increase of over 10.24 million pounds or seven per cent greater than Minnesota's red meats production in January last year. Minnesota's increase was the fourth highest among all states, behind only Iowa, Nebraska and Ohio.

According to the live weights of the respective livestock slaughtered this January, Minnesota's contribution to national meat supplies was seven per cent of the pork, six per cent of the lamb and mutton and four per cent of the beef.

Most of Minnesota's increased production of red meats continues to be from hogs slaughtered and processed into pork products. Minnesota ranks third in pork production behind only Iowa and Illinois. January hog slaughter, 471,400 animals grossing nearly 113 million pounds live weight was almost 15 per cent above Minnesota's pork production a year ago.

Minnesota's January beef production, 117,000 cattle grossing nearly 130 million pounds live weight, was 2.5 per cent below a year ago, but continued seventh highest among all states.

Lamb and sheep slaughter, 22,400 animals grossing 2.65 million pounds live weight, was more than nine per cent higher than ya year ago, fifth highest among all states.

Sharply reduced calf slaughter for veal production continues to reflect the rebuilding of beef and dairy herds by Minnesota livestock farmers. Only 700 calves grossing 116,000 pounds were processed into veal this January, 24 per cent below the volume a year ago.

State Among U.S. Lowest In Unemployment

Unemployment rates (not seasonally adjusted) dropped by one percentage point or more from December of 1977 to December of 1978 in 15 states and in 47 of the 202 reporting metropolitan areas, according to data released by the U.S. department of labor's bureau of labor statistics.

However, unemployment rates rose by one percentage point or more in two states and 14 areas. For four states (Delaware, Louisiana, New York and South Carolina), the December unemployment rates were the lowest reported since 1974.

Ten states had relatively low unemployment in December of 1978 (less than 4.5 per cent) — four more than in December of 1977. Low unemployment rates continued to be reported in most of the North Central farm states (Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Nebraska, and South Dakota); and in New Hampshire, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Utah, and Wyoming.

Nevada was the only state reporing an over-the-year decline of at least two percentage points in the unemployment rate in December of 1978. Earlier in 1978, as many as 18 states had over-the-year decreases of this magnitude.

By contrast, Alaska and Arkansas were the only states with major increase of more than 1.0 percentage point in their unemployment rate. Eight states have had consecutive over-the-year increases in their unemployment rates for the past three months (Alaska, Arkansas, Hawaii, Indiana, Kentucky, Tennesse, Virginia and Wisconsin).

Only Alaska had an unemployment rate in excess of 8.5 per cent. The national unemployment rate in December of 1978 was 5.6 per cent (not seasonally adjusted), compared with 6 per cent in December of 1977.

Aquacade Plans Are Underway

In an effort to make the Aquacade a community event, the Jaycees are asking the cooperation of other local organizations in planning their activities to coincide with Aquacade dates. Further information regarding the Jaycees annual event can be obtained by calling Will Essig at 681-7264 or Dave Olin at 681-7216. Next planning meeting for the Aquacade will be held March 13.

Regents Select New Museum Site In Duluth

Plan to use the Duluth mansion of the late Elisabeth Cogdon as a museum and a site for public tours for a three-year trial period was approved recently by the University of Minnesota board of regents.

The resolution was approved with the stipulation that $300,000 from private sources be raised during the next 90 days to cover costs of readying the 39-room mansion for operation by summer.

University of Minnesota, Duluth, provost Robert Heller said that $234,000 has already been pledged, and that members of the Congdon family are confident the additional money can be raised within the time limits.

Although the building is structurally sound, improvements must be made to bring the building into compliance with existing codes for public buildings, according to Donald Brown, university vice president for finance.

Brown estimated a deficit of about $66,000 for the first year of operation, despite a projected income of about $121,000 from 45,000 expected visitors and some special events.

Regent Erwin Goldfine of Duluth argued that Brown's figures were conservative. "That museum will generate more people at a higher price, and it will cost less to run (than Brown predicted)," Goldfine said.

By June of this year, about $149,000 will have been spent maintaining the building, Brown said. This money, which is coming out of university reserves, is considered a loan and will be paid back from the building's income.

The regents also heard a proposal for a major replacement of university hospitals that could be completed by 1986 at an estimated cost of $113 million. The replacement unit, which would be on the site now occupied by Powell hall along the East River road, would replace about 400 beds and ease what university officials called critical overcrowding problems in the old hospitals.

Brown told the regents' physical plant and investments committee that if the building is completed by 1986, it will cost $113 million. "On a project of this size inflation is an enormous factor," he said.

Brown said the project can be completed without any state money, and that asking the legislature for financial assistance would only delay the completion date. Bond sales would be used to finance the project, he said.

University hospitals director John Westerman told the regents that the hospital complex, much of it built in 1910, is cramped, overcrowded, and out-of-date.

He gave as examples of the severity of the problems four patients crammed in rooms designed for two, lack of space for teaching so that discussions must be held in hallways, patients' rooms and bathrooms, crowding in staff working areas, and lack of space for patient services. Storage facilities are inadequate, and supplies and equipment must now be stored in the hallways and in patient rooms, he said.

Chief of surgery John Najarian said that the conditions make it difficult for university hospitals to compete with other hospitals in research and patient care, and that some staff might leave as a result. "The teaching must be done in nursing stations, in the hallways, and worst of all in the patients' rooms," he said. "This is dehumanizing to the patients and to their families." The regents will hear several more such presentations before the project progresses, and the plan must be reviewed by a long list of local, state and federal groups before work can begin.

In other action, the regents approved further work on a $17 million civil and mineral engineering building on the Minneapolis campus. The building, which is being designed by the architecture firm of Myers and Bennett, will be partially underground and almost entirely energy independent.

Minnesota Zoo Passes Million Visitor Mark

Paul Dickson, a student from Edgerton elementary school, Maplewood, became one in a million March 2 when he was chosen to feed the beluga whales as part of ceremonies celebrating one million visitors to the Minnesota Qoo.

Paul and his fourth grade classmates were contratulated by Lt. Governor Lou Wangberg, zoo director Edward Kohn and zoo board member Mary Ann Scroggins in brief ceremonies highlighting not only the one million attendance figure, but also the success of the zoo's education program which will bring in over 100,000 Minnesota school children this year.

The Edgerton school children came to the zoo to participate in a sealife learning excursion, one of the learning tours available through the education program.

Minnesota zoo's education program is said to be the largest of its kind in the country, bringing school children from 80 per cent of the state's counties this school year. All groups receive advance learning materials as well as on-site guidance from staff and trained volunteers.

Winter attendance at the zoo is substantially higher than that of any other northern zoo. Traditionally a low attendance month, February alone brought more than 32,000 visitors to the Minnesota zoo. Attendance sailed over the million mark with the unexpectedly high February attendance. Projected attendance for the fiscal year July 1, 1978 to June 30, 1979 is 1.2 million, more than a quarter of the state's population. Few zoos nationally have done as well.

State Council On Handicapped Has Watts Line

State council for the handicapped recently became a participant in the state's new in-watts phone system.

The new toll-free number, 1-800-652-9747, replaces the direct line to the council. A capitol operator will answer and direct the caller to the council office. Callers on the former "hotline" will receive a recorded message with the new number.

The change-over was made to reduce the cost of long-distance calls to state agencies and to offer greater accessibility to the public.

The council has maintained a toll-free information line since late in 1977 when it was established to meet the growing need for a reliable and efficient means to provide information about services and programs for handicapped Minnesotans.

The line has proven to be especially helpful for informing consumers and advocates about legislative actions and is also used extensively to promote the council's access Minnesota campaign.

In addition, the line enables the council, as a co-sponsore of Handicap Awareness Week, May 13-19, to coordinate local awareness activities in over 45 communities statewide.

Use of the toll-free phone line has increased by over 400 per cent in the last year and a half and has been a source of valuable information for other states that wish to implement a similar program.

Increase 1979 Federal Crop Insurance Aid

Federal crop insurance program for Pennington county in 1979 will include increased protection for spring wheat, according to Amos D. Larson, agent for the county.

The all risk Federal crop insurance program for barley, flax, oats, sugar beets and sunflowers is similar to that offered last year, except there is a reduced premium rate in the form of experience discounts ranging from five to 25 per cent off the regular premium.

To protect wheat growers from inflating crop production costs, the price per bushel for wheat under the 1979 FCIC program has been increased from $2 to $3. Guaranteed bushels per acre has also been increased in many areas throughout Minnesota for this year's program and several selections of dollar amounts of coverage are available according to the district director.

Crop insurance is a self help program under the U.S. department of agriculture. Losses are paid out of premium dollars. It offers protection against the loss of crop production costs due to drouth, frost, wind, insects, hail, excess moisture, disease and other unavoidable hazards of nature.

For details and applications for this protection, the local FCIC office is at 406 N. Minnesota, PKM Building, Warren, MN 56762. Phone number is 218-748-8482.

Radio Shack Store To Open Near Kmart

Early March opening is being planned for a Radio Shack store to be operated by Northland Enterprises of Thief River Falls, Inc., on the north side of the new K-Mart store on highway 59 south.

Joel Carlson and Jack Petrillo have formed the corporation and leased 2,500 square feet of space in the new building which is being readied for the opening. Store merchandise will be heavy in Radio Shack materials, Carlson and Petrillo said, and will handle television and other large items.

The Northland Electronics store on Main av. N. will continue in operation, handling accessories and supplies and serving as the repair headquarters. Carlson has operated Northland Electronics for eight years and has handled Radio Shack materials for the past three years in the downtown location.

March 11-17 Is Dedicated To Older Workers

Experience has shown that older workers, people over 40 years of age, have less absenteeism, fewer job-related accidents and less turnover than younger workers, Marijo Olson, acting commissioner of the Minnesota Department of Economic Security, said recently.

Almost 40 million older workers are members of the workforce nationally and they, as a group, will be getting special attention March 11-17, National Employ the Older Worker Week, as proclaimed by Governor Al Quie and President Jimmy Carter.

Olson said the state job service offices, which always are concerned with older workers, will make special efforts during the week.

She pointed out experience has shown that older workers, in addition to stability, bring valuable experience to almost any job.

"Their job skills have been broadened and sharpened by years of experience," she said. "Capability, not age, is the true measure of a worker's worth."

She urged employers who are looking for workers, or workers who are over 40 and looking for a job, to contact the nearest state job service office. There are 21 offices in the Twin Cities area; more than 80 statewide. There are no fees for either employer or job seeker, she emphasized.

Blood Pressure Clinics Slated At Goodridge

Blood pressure clinics will be offered the second Monday of each month at the Lutheran church in Goodridge at 12:30 p.m. Inter-County nursing service encourages young adults as well as seniors to have their blood pressure checked.

Clinic will enable the public to increase their knowledge and awareness of risk factors related to blood pressure. Early detection leads to correction and provides the nursing service with an opportunity to provide guidance for healthy living.

The first clinic will be held March 12 at 12:30 p.m. Donation of $1 will be accepted for the service.

Planes Spray 1.85 Million Acres In State

Aircraft were used to control agricultural, forestry and urban pests and to provide other food crop production and public utility protection last year on 1,848,732 acres of Minnesota land, reports the state agricultural entomologist.

Dr. Dharma D. Sreenivasam's annual summary indicated that less than 4 of Minnesota's land surface received applications of various treatments intended to abate economic hazards and increase crops production.

State licensed and regulated aerial applicators treated 1,706,306 acres of agricultural land with approved pesticides for control of insects, weeds, plant disease, and brush, and to arrest the growth of potato vines and sunflower plants.

Non-agricultural applications of pesticides by aircraft in Minnesota last year included 6,892 acres of municipalities for mosquito control, 16,354 acres of ditches, forests, power, and telephone lines for brush control.

Weed control accounted for 1,171,467 acres of the aerial pesticide applications, all on farm land. Wheat accounted for more than one-third of that acreage.

Minnesota farmers also are utilizing aerial applicators to seed and fertilize their field crops. The 1978 report shows that aircraft spread fertilizers on 18,313 acres, and seeded 5,910 acres.

Farm Market Cash Receipts Up From 1977

Cash receipts from farm marketings during the first 10 months of 1978 grossed Minnestoa farmers an estimated $3 billion, $951 million, fifth highest among all states, agriculture commissioner Mark W. Seetin reported recently.

That represented an increase by $535.2 million or nearly 16 per cent more than Minnesota's farm marketing receipts for the same January-October period in 1977. The gross last year was almost 5 per cent of the $84.45 billion U.S. marketing receipts total through October.

Analysis of the national report just released by the U.S. department of agriculture revealed that Minnesota experienced the second highest increases over the previous year both in dollars and rate of gain. Iowa had a $731.5 million increase and Missouri showed a 22 per cent rate of gain.

Minnesota's major source of gross farm income continued to be from marketings of livestock, dairy, and poultry and related products: $2 billion, $158.8 million or nearly 56 per cent of the ten-month total receipts. That was an increase of $310 million or 17 per cent higher than for the same period in 1977. Rate of increase matched the national gain.

Gross receipts from 1978 marketings of field crops are estimated at $1 billion, $792.2 million, an increase of $225.1 million or 14 per cent higher than for January-October of 1977. Nationally crops receipts during the ten-month period of 1978 increased by less than 3.5 per cent. Estimated crops receipts are exaggerated, commissioner Seetin noted, because proceeds from price support loans are included to the degree these exceed support loan redemptions.

The four states ahead of Minnesota in gross marketing receipts are, California $7.65 billion, up 4 per cent; Iowa $6.57 billion, up 12.5 per cent; Texas $5.28 billion, up 1 per cent; and Illinois $5.24 billion, up 7 per cent.

Best Defense Against Theft Is Through I.D.

Every 18 minutes, a home or apartment was burglarized somewhere in Minnesota last year, reported the state department of public safety.

Residential burglaries have tripled in the last ten years and annually cost Minnesota homeowners and renters about $10 million in property losses. Residential burglaries in the state's rural areas have risen several times faster than in urban areas.

One of the best defenses against burglars is to join operation identification, a crime prevention program of proven effectiveness, said Charles Rix, coordinator of Minnesota crime watch, part of the public safety department.

"Anyone can join Operation Identification free of charge. Ask your local police or sheriff about Operation I.D. They will assign you a personal identification number and show how to permanently engrave the number on your valuable property," Rix said.

"It's a good idea to make a list of your I.D. number and the marked property, along with any manufacturer's serial and identification numbers for the items."

"Keep several copies of the list. Put one in a safe place at home and another in a safe deposit box. You may also want to file a list with the local police."

In case of burglary, Rix stated, the property list and I.D. number enable you to describe stolen goods quickly, which can help police recover them. The list lets you know exactly which valuables were stolen and can also make insurance claims easier.

"Also, display an Operation I.D. sticker on the front and rear doors of your home or business. This warns a would-be burglar that any goods stolen will be hard to dispose of because they are identified as yours.

"And if the marked goods are found in a burglar's possession, the I.D. numbers constitute solid evidence of guilt acceptable in court."

Rix said Operation Identification is a potent burglar deterrent. Studies show that residents using Operation I.D. suffer four times fewer burglaries than those who did not join the crime prevention program.

Police have reported residential breakins where burglars took only the property not marked with Operation I.D. numbers, said Rix. "The burglars left behind the numbered valuables, apparently not wanting to face the increased risk and problems of fencing the goods."

Offer Guide For Hearing Conservation

"U.S. government statistics indicate 15 million American suffer from measurable hearing losses, and the situation is likely to get worse unless effective hearing conservation measures are adopted," according to Lawrence M. Posen, director of the crusade for hearing conservation of a major electronics corporation.

Crusade is conducted by the corporation in order to build public awareness to the problems of noise pollution and the need for hearing conservation programs.

As part of its program the crusade has prepared a 12-page guide to hearing conservation entitled, "How You Can Conserve Your Hearing."

Based on the premise that exposure to excessive noise levels is the major cause of hearing impairments, the booklet explains hearing conservation measures that can be followed in five common environments — at work, in recreational activities, at home, in highway traffic and in the typical community. Also included is a 10 question quiz that could indicate a person might have an undetected hearing loss.

Single copies of the booklet are available without cost by writing: Crusade for Hearing Conservation, 4201 West Victoria Street, Chicago, Ill. 60646.

National Geographic To Feature "Gold!"

Gold.

In all of history no material has been cherished quite like it. Men have bought with it, fought and killed for it, and created exquisite art treasures from it.

Public Television kicks off its new season of National Geographic specials with "GOLD!", a fascinating look at this precious metal and the schemes men have devised to acquire and exploit it.

"GOLD!" airs Sun., Jan. 7, at 7 p.m. on Prairie Public Television, narrated and hosted by E.G. Marshall.

There are numerous strands of the gold story, and many begin in South Africa, the world's leading gold producer. "GOLD!" takes viewers deep inside the Harmony Mine in South Africa's Orange Free State, where, in a steamy, low-roofed rock chamber only three feet high at the working face, miners are filmed drilling out the gold-bearing rock.

"GOLD!" features a look inside the London headquarters of N.M. Rothschild & Sons Ltd., where twice a day the five members of the London gold market set the price for gold — a business ritual which affects investors, speculators and governments around the world. The scene at Rothschild's is quiet, staid, and dignified in contrast to the frenzied, boisterous activity at gold exchanges such as the one in Hong Kong, which has recently emerged as a major trading center. The rest of the world learns the price of gold immediately. The day's figures travel by sophisticated electronic equipment, but in some cases, by a more traditional method: In the remote Colombian village of Barbacoas, the town crier calls out the gold price news to the crowd attracted by the beating of his drum.

The news is important to Barbacoas, because families pan for alluvial gold at remote jungle sites in order to eke out a living. But that isn't the only way Colombians acquire the metal. "GOLD!" travels into the Colombian highlands with men called "guaqueros," who practice the controversial trade of digging up graves for the gold artifacts buried there.

The graves are those of Indians who died perhaps 1,000 years ago. But since gold will not tarnish or corrode, the treasures can be extracted in near pristine condition; a few lucky quaqueros have become wealthy selling such artifacts. Archaeologists deplore the practice. Though it is officially illegal to dig up graves, the Columbian government — licenses — a guaquero's labor union.

A highlight of the special is a tour of the Gori& Zucchi gold-jewelry factory in Arezzo, Italy where machines atuomatically mass produce miles of gold chain in contrast to the intricate, individually-designed pieces made by the company's craftsmen. The factory is the single largest consumer of gold, using each year roughly twice as much as the total annual tonnage mined i the United States.

An especially colorful facet of the gold story is one for which no official statistics are kept — smuggling. "GOLD!" examines the smuggler's trade with footage made in the tiny Middle East nation of Dubai, traditionally a starting point in international gold smuggling. Gold tola bars are stuffed into a vest for surreptitious shipment across the Arabian Sea to India, where importation of gold is illegal.

And in a dazzling display, "GOLD!" presents a stunning segment featuring some of the most famous works of art fashioned from gold. The sequence includes a close view of Benvenuto Cellini's saltcellar, the lavish work presented in 1543 to King Francis I of France. Now housed in the Kunsthistorisches Museum in Vienna, the saltcellar, with its ornate deities, "sea horses," and musical instruments, is overwhelming in its beauty and in its artistry — an appropriate symbol of how gold has dazzled man through the ages.

"GOLD!" is the first of four new National Geographic specials scheduled for Sunday telecasts on Public Television this season. Others will examine Hong Kong through the eyes of a Chinese family on January 28, the conflict between elephants and humans over living space in Kenya on March 4 and scholar-adventurer Thor Heyerdahl's latest voyage on April 1.

Employed And Unemployed Numbers Rise

Both employment and unemployment are expected to increase in Minnesota in 1979, a report by the Minnesota department of economic security indicates.

Med Chottepanda, acting research and statistical services director of the department, said that the situation, seemingly a paradox, can arise when the labor force is growing.

Minnesota's labor force is growing. Chottepanda said the total number of employed and unemployed who are 16 years or older (by definition, the civilian labor force) will grow about 2.5 per cent in 1979 to more than two million. Nationally, the gain is expected to be only 1.8 per cent.

He forecasts state employment will increase 2.3 per cent, against five per cent in 1978, while unemployment will increase two-tenths of one per cent.

"With more people in the labor force, more can be working but more also can be unemployed at the same time," Chottepanda said.

He anticipated the unemployment rate in 1979 will average about 4.1 per cent over the year as compared to 3.9 per cent in 1978. He predicted national jobless rate for 1979 as 5.8 per cent.

Unemployment rate for women will be higher than for men in 1979 — 4.6 per cent for the women, 3.7 per cent for the men. He said the higher rate for women can be attributed to the fact that "more women are looking for jobs than ever before."

Number of women in the labor force increased 3.6 per cent in 1978 to 40.3 per cent and an annual increase of 3.4 per cent is expected in 1979. However, the percentage of increase for men is expected to be only 1.9 per cent.

Increase in the number of women in the work force can be attributed to a number of factors, the report says. They include need for greater family income; increased numbers of divorced, separated or unmarried women; higher educational levels; decline in fertility rates; and the effects of anti-discrimination laws and the women's liberation movement.

Despite their increasing participation in the labor force, unemployment among women remains higher than among men. The jobless rate for women averaged 4.7 per cent in 1978 and is expected to be 4.6 in 1979. Projected 1979 rate for men is 3.7 per cent, an increase of one-tenth of a per cent over 1978.

More details about the Minnesota economy are contained in the department's report, "The Economic Outlook for 1979." Copies are available from the Research and Statistical Services Office, 390 North Robert Street, St. Paul, MN 55101, 612-296-6545.

Wabasso's Only Dentist Will Leave Practice

The only dentist in Wabasso has agreed to let the state board of dentistry permanently revoke his license to practice, effective June 1.

The board had formally charged the dentist, Louis Graca, with "gross ignorance and incompetence" in treating patients, with charging patients for work he hadn't done, with prescribing drugs which were "beyond the scope of his professional dental practice," and with conviction of a felony "related to the practice of dentistry." Hearings on the charges began last October, but were continued to December because of Graca's health.

On December 8, Graca formally agreed to let the board revoke his license without completing the hearings. Dale Forseth, the board's executive secretary, said final action on the charges otherwise wouldn't have been possible until after the June 1 revocation date.

Bulk of the board's case against Graca concerned the charge of incompetence. Forseth said the board had received many complaints about Graca's work, both from patients and from other dentists. Formal charges involved 15 of Graca's former patients, and Forseth said the board was aware of defective work in "about 15 more" cases.

Ten other dentists had agreed to testify that Graca's work consistently fell "below accepted dental standards." Defects included improperly prepared or fitted crowns, defective or incomplete root canal work, defective fillings or restorations, undiagnosed or untreated decay, and failure to properly diagnose and treat a variety of orthodontic problems.

The board also alleged that Graca had charged three patients for work not performed or not completed, and that on eight separate occasions while practicing in Wabasso he had prescribed drugs which had "no therapeutic value" connected with dentistry. Drugs included amphetamines, barbiturates and birth control pills.

Felony conviction mentioned in the charges was a 1977 verdict for aggravated arson, in connection with a fire that had destroyed Graca's north Minneapolis dental office a year earlier. Graca was spared a prison sentence when he agreed to set up practice in Wabasso, ending that community's four year search for a dentist.

Forseth said the board was less concerned about the fire than about its effect on Graca's patients. The board felt that a number of Grada's patients had, in effect, been abandoned after their dental records were lost in the fire. They included patients who were having crowns or bridges fitted, patients undergoing orthodontic treatment, and other patients requiring continued care. The board alleged that Graca made no attempt to contact these patients or make arrangements for their further treatment.

Beat the high cost of heat . . .

With a low interest loan from the Minnesota Housing Finance Agency and the Northern State Bank.

You can't get much better than that!

To be eligible, you must: own the property you're improving, be a reasonable credit risk, and have an annual adjusted gross income not exceeding $16,000.

If you are interested, here's how and where to apply:

—Decide what home improvements you want to make.
—Get bids from the contractor(s) you have selected or cost estimates of materials needed.
—Take this information to Northern State Bank, and they'll give you the appropriate application forms to fill out, and answer any questions you might have.

It wasn't the scores that provided the first round surprises in the 1979 Region 8AA Sub Region 4 girls high school basketball tournament; it was the match-ups.

Thief River Falls coach Sylvia Sjoberg and Bemidji coach Jim Wahl were under the impression that first round games would have Bemidji playing East Grand Forks at 7 p.m. and Thief River Falls meeting Crookston at 8:45 Monday.

As it turned out, the Lumberjills beat the Pirates 49-19 and the Prowlers got by the Green Wave 41-39.

"We played the wrong team but won," noted Sjoberg who said the Prowlers were "really surprised" when they entered the East Grand Forks gym and saw their supposed first game opponent, Crookston, playing Bemidji. "I nearly fell over backwards," she said.

Somewhere there was a communications gap.

It is certain, though, that Thief River Falls and Bemidji will face each other in tonight's (Wednesday) 7:30 p.m. championship game at East Grand Forks.

Miscellaneous

+ University of Minnesota sophomore Scott Malm, who set two Franklin middle school pool records as a member of the Fargo North team in the 1977 Thief River Falls Arctic Cat invitational, was a Big Ten runner-up in both the 100 and 200-yard backstroke events in 51.30 and 1:50.44, respectively, to earn a berth in the MCAA championships March 22-24 at Cleveland State. As a Spartan, Malm set pool records here in the 200-yard individual medley with a 2:07.3 and in the 100-yard backstroke in 55.4. That same year, Brainerd's Dave Monkman, now also a Gopher, set pool records here in the 50-yard freestyle with a 22.7 and in the 100-yard freestyle with a 49.8.

+ Bemidji high school athletic standout John Noga has indicated he will attend Bemidji State University where he'll have a shot at the Beavers' quarterbacking duties on the football field next fall. Cornerback Dave Evenson, tailback Bob Orgon and Center Randy Miller of the Lumberjacks also said they'd play football at BSU.

+Tom Grimes set a Bemidji high school wrestling standard with a 142-14 career record, capped by a Class AA state title at 132 pounds last week. Grimes was 132-10 with the Lumberjacks after beginning his career at Blackduck. He was fourth in the state meet two years ago and a runner-up last year. He is the fourth Bemidji state champion, completing the second championship brother act for the Lumberjacks. Nestle Grimes won in 1975. Jerry and Rickey Lee were the other Bemidji champs.

Prowlers Challenge Rams For Section 8 Title

Roseau, seeking its third straight title, and Thief River Falls, looking for its first crown since 1960, will meet Friday at 7:30 p.m. at East Grand Forks in the championship game of the 1979 Section 8 high school hockey tournament.

The winner will earn a coveted berth in the Minnesota state high school hockey tournament March 15-17 at the St. Paul Civic Center.

Roseau, now 20-2, moved into the championship game for the fourth straight year with a 3-0 semifinal victory over Detroit Lakes Monday. The Rams edged Crookston 2-1 in the tournament opener Saturday. Thief River Falls, 16-6, earned their first title shot since 1974 with an impressive 5-1 semifinal decision over Fergus Falls Tuesday. The Prowlers beat Bemidji 6-1 in opening round play.

Roseau beat Thief River Falls twice during the 1978-79 regular season. The Rams won by a 5-3 margin on Thief River Falls ice Jan. 20 and claimed a one-sided 8-1 decision in a rematch at Roseau Feb. 10.

"That second one we'd like to write off as a bad dream," said Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand. Roseau, playing an outstanding hockey game, scored twice in the first 85 seconds of that contest in which the Prowlers played without injured defenseman Mark Huot and then lost his replacement, converted forward Bob Fitzgerald, during the contest with an injury.

"Obviously Roseau is the favorite," admitted Grand. "But we think we can give them a good game. If we play as well Friday as we did against Fergus Falls it should be a good hockey game. We'll be right in there."

With 20 titles to its credit, Roseau has been by far the most successful team in the 34-year history of the Section 8-Region 8 hockey tournament. These 20 titles include five championship game victories over Thief River Falls: 3-2 in 1968, 2-1 in 1967; 3-1 in 1965; 5-1 in 1959 and 2-1 in 1955.

"If there is such a thing as a psychological advantage it goes to Roseau," acknowledged Grand. However, he said that psychological barrier could come down in a hurry with a strong Thief River Falls start. "I feel the first five minutes of the game can probably take care of something like that."

Thief River Falls owns two championship game victories over Roseau, winning 4-2 in 1956 and 3-1 in 1945. The Prowlers also won titles in 1954, 1952 and 1951, in addition to that 1960 crown when they beat Warroad 4-1.

Last Thief River Falls state tournament appearance came in 1965 when the Prowlers, after losing to Roseau, beat Duluth East 2-1 in the "back door" Region 3 playoff game matching the runner-up teams from Regions 7 and 8. That game was played at Hibbing.

After losing to Bemidji 2-0 in the 1974 Region 8 championship game, Thief River Falls squared off with Hibbing in the last of the northern Minnesota challenge matches, losing 7-2 at Detroit Lakes.

1979 Section 8 Hockey Tournament At East Grand Forks . . .

Rams, Prowlers Win Semifinals

Semifinal victories went to Roseau and Thief River Falls in the 1979 Section 8 high school hockey tournament being played at East Grand Forks. The Rams shut out Detroit Lakes 3-0 Monday while the Prowlers eliminated Fergus Falls 5-1 Tuesday.

Thief River Falls and Roseau will tangle in the Section 8 championship game Friday at 7:30 p.m.

Detroit Lakes 0

Detroit Lakes marksmen were most impressive Saturday when their deadly accuracy produced an 8-6 opening round win over Warroad. However, the Lakers' shooters were denied the opportunity to show their worth Monday when Roseau's puck-controlling play limited Detroit Lakes to just 16 shots on goal in the Rams' 3-0 semifinal victory.

Finest show of Roseau strength came during a second period Detroit Lakes power play when the Rams scored while killing off three minutes, 17 seconds worth of penalties that included a 43-second, two-man advantage for the frustrated Lakers.

Aaron Broten was brilliant on the scoring play as he picked up the puck at center ice, stickhandled around two Detroit Lakes skaters and beat goalie Rick Wallin from the point blank range at 8:53 for a 2-0 edge.

"We got beat by a helluva hockey team," said Detroit Lakes coach Ken Anderson. "Anytime you don't score when you've got the man advantage and hardly touch the puck, you know you're facing a good team."

Broten, playing the point on the power play, scored his second goal of the game at 13:36 of the second period on a long slap shot that put the game out of reach.

"Broten is worth two goals just to have his name in the line-up," noted Anderson. "We played as well as can be expected. We tried to play them even up, but they were too tough for us."

Sophomore Billy Yon opened the scoring at 6:46 of the first period. Set up in front, Yon got only a piece of the puck, but got enough of it to be effective as the shot crawled past Wallin.

There were a bundle of scoring opportunities for both teams in the first period, the best of which was Detroit Lakes' Jon Ahles breakaway at 10:25. His backhand was turned aside by Roseau goalie Jim Pelowski.

"Jim has been the secret to our success so far," mentioned Roseau coach Gary Hokanson. "But we've also played six of the best periods of hockey we've played all year."

Pelowski has received strong defensive support, too. "Give our defense credit," said Hoaknson. "They're doing a good job. They (opposition) get one shot and no rebounds. When you eliminate rebounds you're going to beat them."

Hokanson had special praise for the Rams' penalty killing efforts, led by Broten and Glen daMota. "Aaron and Glen seem to put out an extra effort when they're penalty skating," he noted.

Wallin was outstanding for the Lakers as he robbed the Rams' big guns time and time again as he made 33 saves through two periods. He left the game on a stretcher in the first minute of the third period with a painfull injury suffered as he stretched to make a save.

Detroit Lakes ended the season with a 16-7 record.

Fergus Falls 1

Bob Fitzgerald scored twice, including a game-opening goal at 1:24 of the first period, and Thief River Falls' defensive play was outstanding as the Prowlers handled Fergus Falls in surprisingly easy 5-1 fashion.

"We played very well," said Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand. "We did everything well. Right from the goaltender on out, the kids played well."

Jeff Ulrich provided Thief River Falls with a 2-0 first period edge on assists from Jim Thompson and Wade Hoppe at 12:28.

The Prowlers doubled the score in a quick 16-second span in the second period as Scott Sabo set up Fitzgerald at 6:07 and then scored himself at 6:23.

Hoppe made it 5-0 on an assist from Thompson at 10:02.

"We beat Fergus Falls to the puck all the time," noted Grand.

Goaltender Bill Jury lost his shutout bid late in the third period when Fergus Falls' Scott Denley scored on a power play at 11:32.

"Our defensemen played really well," mentioned Grand, praising the work of bluеliners Brian Ranum, Dave Geatz, Mark Huot and Joe Dee.

Jury finished with 17 saves, including an easy two-shot first period, before giving way to Bill Holmes after his shutout disappeared. Holmes stopped four shots, giving the Prowler netminders 21 for the night. Mark Hedstrom and Glen Oliphant had 28 saves in the Fergus Falls nets. Oliphant had a strong third period when he stopped 12 Thief River Falls shots.

The victory avenged a 6-2 Fergus Falls victory over Thief River Falls in the first round of the 1978 Section 8 tournament. The Prowlers edged the Otters 2-1 in the final game of the 1978-79 regular season schedule in a battle for second place in the point standings and a number two seed in the Section 8 tournament.

Fergus Falls ended the year 14-8.

Bemidji, TRF Girls Will Play For Sub Region Title

A decided underdog, Thief River Falls will tackle Bemidji tonight (Wednesday) at 7:30 p.m. at East Grand Forks in the championship game of the 1979 Region 8AA Sub Region 4 girls high school basketball tournament.

First round results Monday found Bemidji drilling defending champion Crookston 49-19 while Thief River Falls edged host East Grand Forks 41-39.

Bemidji will bring a 14-4 record into the game, best ever for the Lumberjills. Thief River Falls is 8-11, which includes one-sided 57-32 and 61-31 regular season losses to Bemidji. The victory over East Grand Forks snapped a four-game losing streak for the Prowlers who closed out the regular season with that 30-point loss to Bemidji.

Thief River Falls coach Sylvia Sjoberg hopes for a low-scoring game tonight. "The lower the score the better," she says. "We're really going to try to keep it low scoring. We know they can score, but I don't know if we can."

Key to tonight's match may be the Prowlers' ability to defense Bemidji center Linda Iverson, a strong 5-10 sophomore. She very effective with a turnaround jumper from about 10 feet.

"If we can stop that (Iverson's jumper) we have a pretty good chance to win," noted Sjoberg. "But I really don't know how we're going to do it." For starters, it'll be a 2-1-2 zone, with 5-9 Julie Easton fronting Iverson.

Offensively, Sjoberg said the Prowlers will "try to work the baseline; work that Bemidji zone down a little lower so we can get some good set shots."

Tonight's winner will move on to the 1979 Region 8AA tournament March 15-16 in St. Cloud. In first round matches Thurs., March 15, the Sub Region 1 champion plays the Sub Region 3 winner at 7 p.m. and the Sub Region 2 titlist meets the Sub Region 4 representative at 8:45. Championship game will be played Fri., March 16, at 7:30 p.m.

16 Lincoln Swimmers Enter Section 3 Meet

Intent on personal goals instead of a team title that appears well out of reach, 16 Lincoln high school swimmers will take part in the 1979 Section 3 swimming and diving championships Friday and Saturday at Bemidji State University.

"We've done a little switching," pointed out Thief River Falls coach John Kopari. "I think we're more interested in having individual success than team standings."

Even though they're expected to have few individual champions, team honors should go to either Fergus Falls or Brainerd because of their superior depth. Fosston, laden with individual talent, Bemidji and Thief River Falls are expected to conclude their season-long rivalry in a battle for third place.

Competition starts at 1 p.m. Friday with the swimming prelims. The diving prelims will be held at 7 that night. Swimming and diving finals will be held at 1 p.m. Saturday.

Top two swimmers in each event and the top four divers qualify for the 1979 Minnesota state swimming meet March 16-17 in Minneapolis.

Thief River Falls' top state meet prospects rests with its relay teams. The 400-yard freestyle unit featuring seniors Bruce Storhaug, Dave Beito and Kevin Murphy, along with junior Jon Pinkerton, a recent addition, owns the fastest time in Section 3 this winter. But Bemidji, Fergus Falls and Alexandria entries could make it a heated battle for those top two spots.

Fosston is expected to be a winner in the 200-yard medley relay, with Thief River Falls, Fergus Falls and Brainerd all looking at the state-qualifying number two spot. For the Prowlers, it's junior Dan Schoonhoven, Storhaug, freshman Keith Grochow and Pinkerton in the medley relay. Storhaug is a recent addition to the line-up.

Storhaug is also given a shot at a state berth in the 100-yard butterfly. He'll be joined in that event by senior Dan Winjum, considered the most improved swimming on the Thief River Falls squad.

Murphy is a contender in the 50-yard freestyle where Pinkerton may rate as the sleeper in Section 3. Junior Dennis Booth will give the Prowlers three 50-yard competitors. Eric Rustad of Fosston is the number one seed.

The 100-yard freestyle is also a possibility for Murphy, but he'll be battling Bemidji's Rick Fitzgerald and Jerry Will for a second place finish behind Rustad. Booth and sophomore Nate Gjovik will also swim the 100 for the Prowlers.

Other Thief River Falls Section 3 entries are Beito, junior Dan Thorstad and sophomores Mark Isaacson and Marty Pluth in the 200-yard freestyle; senior Carl Kuyath in diving; Beito, Isaacson and Pluth in the 500-yard freestyle; Schoonhoven and sophomores Tom Eckstein and Kevin Grochow in the 100-yard backstroke; and fast-improving Keith Grochow, sophomore Steve Poisant and Gjovik in the 100-yard breaststroke.

Kevin Grochow, Winjum and Poissant will serve as alternates for the medley relay and Booth will be an alternate for the 400-yard freestyle relay.

"Sixteen kids is a nice contingent of Prowler swimmers," noted Kopari. "It's their psychological readiness that depends on how well they do. If they're ready they can do well."

Fourth Quarter TRF Rally Topples EGF Girls 41-39

Pam Kotschevar led a fourth quarter Thief River Falls rally Monday that carried the Prowlers to a 41-39 come-from-behind win over East Grand Forks in the first round of the 1979 Region 8AA Sub Region 4 girls high school basketball tournament being played at East Grand Forks.

Trailing 31-26 entering the final eight minutes, Thief River Falls out-scored East Grand Forks 15-8, with Kotschevar, a 5-8 senior forward, netting six of her eight points during that game-winning surge.

A fourth quarter change in defensive strategy paid handsome dividends for the Prowlers. "We switched into a zone which helped because they can't score from the outside," reported Thief River Falls coach Sylvia Sjoberg.

The two teams, who split a pair of regular season decisions, played to a 10-10 first quarter tie. East Grand Forks led 22-17 at halftime.

Sophomore guard Ann Goodrich capped the strong Thief River Falls fourth quarter effort by making one of two free throws — her only point of the night — that provided the Prowlers with a 41-37 cushion in the final seconds. They surrendered an East Grand Forks basket with 10 seconds left and held on to the ball for the victory.

Roberta Engel, a 5-8 junior forward, led the Prowlers with 14 points, but the balanced effort also included Kelly Storhaug and Julie Easton with nine points apiece and Kotschevar with eight. East Grand Forks' Sue Thompson, a 5-1 junior, matched Engel for game-high scoring honors with 14 points.

While Thief River Falls' free throw shooting was hardly impressive, it won the game. East Grand Forks out-scored Thief River Falls 36-30 from the field, but the Green Wave, presented with just four free throw opportunities, made three of them, while the Prowlers, given 21 chances at the line, sank 11.

Thief River Falls shot 30 per cent from the field on a 15-for-50 showing. The Prowlers held a slight 29-27 rebound edge, with Storhaug pulling down eight caroms.

Grygla, Goodridge, Newfolden Girls . . .

Area Squads Advance In District Playoffs

Grygla and Goodridge were less than spectacular, but both advanced Monday in girls high school district basketball tournament play. The Eagles beat Strandquist 36-31 to reach the District 32 semifinals while Goodridge defeated Mount St. Benedict 45-29 to move into the District 31 quarterfinals.

Marshall County Central, meanwhile, played well in beating Greenbush 34-33 Tuesday to gain a spot in the District 32 semifinals.

Grygla — Strandquist

Held to 12 first half points, Grygla made use of an effective full court press defense after intermission to get by upset-minded Strandquist 36-31 at Newfolden.

Strandquist led 6-5 at the end of the first quarter and trailed only 12-10 at halftime before falling behind 22-14 in the third quarter.

"Our press started working for us," pointed out Grygla coach Bill Radeunz. "In the third and fourth quarters we got some turnovers from it."

Sharri Anderson and Debbie Warne led the Eagles with 13 and 10 points, respectively. For the Warriors, Vanette Lefrooth scored 14 points and Barb Berggren had 10.

Grygla will take a 16-2 record into Thursday's 7 p.m. District 32 semifinal match against Hallock at Newfolden.

Goodridge — MSB

Mary Kiesow scored 18 points to lead Goodridge past Mount St. Benedict 45-29 at Warren.

The Huskies built quarter leads of 6-4, 17-11 and 27-17, but coach Ken Ewertz wasn't satisfied.

"We didn't play like we're able to," pointed out Ewertz. "I don't know if it was tournament jitters or what. Our last three ball games we played very well."

Julie Deinl of Mount St. Benedict joined Keisow in double figures with 10 points.

Goodridge, 10-8, will play East Grand Forks Sacred Heart at 8:45 p.m. Thursday in the District 31 quarterfinals at Alvarado.

MCC—Greenbush

Jill Johnson sank five of six crucial free throw attempts in the fourth quarter to carry host Marshall County Central past Greenbush 34-33.

The two teams played to a 5-5 first quarter tie, with Marshall County Central taking an 18-13 halftime lead that disappeared when Greenbush went ahead 24-23 at the end of the third quarter.

"We played pretty decent in the fourth quarter," pointed out winning coach Tom Mjelde. "Clutch free throws at the end won it for us."

The Nordics built a 32-27 lead in the final two minutes before Greenbush converted a pair of Marshall County Central turnovers into four points for a 32-31 game. But two free throws by Johnson iced the game.

Denise Stokke of Marshall County Central and Shelly Taggart of Greenbush shared game-high scoring honors with 10 points apiece.

Marshall County Central will take an 11-9 record into Thursday's 8:30 p.m. District 32 semifinal game against Karlstad at Newfolden.

City League Hockey Features Lopsided Games

Jay Kverno scored 16 goals Sunday as Sullivan's blasted Dempsey 38-3 in men's city league hockey.

Old-Timers To Play Winnipeg Team Saturday

Still basking in the glory of an 8-5 win over the Tuxedo Colts of Winnipeg back in February, the Wennberg's Old-Timers hockey team of Thief River Falls is readying itself for battle this Saturday at 8:30 p.m. against the West End Barons on the local arena ice.

Wennberg's outfit lost twice last year to the Barons who are currently leading their Winnipeg Old Timers league. A reliable source who is close to the Thief River Falls aggregation reports that the Wennberg's team has embarked on a rigorous once-a-week training schedule and will be in as good shape as can be expected for the Saturday game.

"The boys have revenge in their hearts after losing twice to the Barons last year," the reliable source said. "They're aching for a win on the home ice before going to Winnipeg in April for return games with the Barons and Colts."

Anyone interested in seeing a group of aching Old-Timers with revenge in their hearts (and lead in their feet) try to beat a group of veteran Canadian hockey players at their own game is welcome at the city sports arena Saturday night.

Snowmobilers Will Meet In Detroit Lakes

Detroit Lakes Holiday Inn will be the site of the Region I Minnesota united snowmobile association convention Saturday. Region I is an area covering the 20 counties in the northwestern corner of the state.

Registration for the convention is at 9 a.m. with coffee and rolls being served. The meeting will be from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. with lunch available in the dining room. Following lunch, guided trail rides will be provided by the Sno-Fari snowmobile club, with a pit-stop for dinner at the Voyageur supper club where there will be a band for an evening of dancing.

All snowmobilers, whether you are an association or not, are encouraged to attend the meeting and give your input to snowmobiling.

MN.USA is the statewide snowmobile association started just over a year ago, representing Minnesota's nearly one million snowmobilers, with a voice in the state legislature, through lobbyist Doug Franzen, who also works with the DNR as a representative of MN.USA, and all snowmobilers.

MN.USA is working towards preserving our state parks for snowmobiling, acquiring abandoned railroad beds for trails and working with the DNR and the snowmobile industry towards having new snowmobile sound levels and safety features.

There is no charge for registration. However, lunch and dinner are your own expense. The guided trail rides are free.

HOW to Write a Person-to-Person Classified Ad that Sells!

STATE THE ITEM

Tell your readers exactly what you're selling right away. Don't bother with fancy features yet. They don't want to know it's "Wilson K28" until after they know it's a set of golf clubs.

GIVE ENOUGH INFORMATION

An ad that's too short becomes expensive if it doesn't sell your item. "Golf Clubs, 000-0000" leaves the reader with too many questions. What kind? What model? Condition? State the price or say "Make an offer"

GOLF CLUBS, Wilson K28, full set, with blue and white Atlantic bag, damaged number three iron, cost $400. Will sell for $225. Phone 000-0000 after 6 P.M.

2009 AUG'76 M.P. 36

BE HONEST

Don't omit obvious flaws or exaggerate the quality. "Never used" might get lots of calls but "damaged number three iron" may get more offers. Your readers want to buy from someone that they can trust.

MAKE SURE CUSTOMERS CAN REACH YOU

Just a phone number is enough if you will be home all the time the ad is running. If not, your caller may get discouraged and decide not to call back. By adding "After 6 P.M." your customer knows exactly when he can reach you.

GET TO THE POINT

Avoid long-winded language when short phrases will do. "Super deluxe, attractive blue and white Atlantic bag" can be shortened to "blue and white Atlantic bag." That way you can convey a lot of information while taking advantage of our low Person-to-Person rates.

A well-written classified ad will sell just about any item or service you're selling. The example above suggests a few ways to make your ad effective. But even the best ad won't do the job unless you put it in the right place. In our Classifieds. In the Classified, your ad will reach your best prospects at the lowest price. It will be read by ready buyers in your area, the ones most likely to come over and complete the sale. So when you're placing an ad for anything, make it count. By writing it the right way and putting it in the right place. In our Classifieds.

Seek Owners Of Abandoned Funds In MN

Twenty Pennington county residents are among 14,000 Minnesotans who have a total of five and a half million dollars in abandoned funds waiting to be claimed, according to state treasurer Jim Lord. Lord is attempting to return money that has been reported to his office as abandoned funds in forgotten bank accounts and other places.

Also listed as having unclaimed property are 15 Marshall county residents, 143 residents of Polk county, eight residents of Red Lake county and 20 Roseau county residents. Unclaimed funds range in value from $25 to $42,000.

The first step the state takes in attempting to locate owners of abandoned property or funds is to advertise the names of the eligible recipients in a local newspaper in each Minnesota county. List of those Pennington county residents with abandoned property appeared in the Monday, March 5, issue of the Times and will appear again in the Monday, March 12, issue in the legal section.

Since taking office, Lord instituted major changes in the enforcement of the unclaimed property law. One thrust was to exhaust every means possible to match the people with their money. Lord said, "In the cases where no one comes forward to claim the funds now, we will search probate court records, vital statistics, city directories and other sources to trace and locate the rightful owners. By doing this last year, we returned over $1 million to thousands of Minnesotans." Lord also indicated that money had been returned to 40 per cent of the people whose names were advertised last year.

The state's unclaimed property law which requires banks, insurance companies and others doing business in Minnesota to report money that has been lost or abandoned for more than seven years has been vigorously enforced.

Under the Minnesota law, the state treasurer advertises unclaimed property twice a year, in March and in July, to attempt to locate the owners. If no one comes forward, the state will hold the money in trust until a valid claim is made at which time the funds will be returned.

Lord encourages all residents to read the ads in Minnesota newspapers and cotact the state treasurer's office if they see their name or the name of someone they know. The list is being published in the Times March 5 and 12.

Toll-free number 1-800-652-9747 is available for this purpose.

REV. DONALD V. BOWMAN, director of youth and Christian education for the Minnesota district council of the Assemblies of God, will participate in services at the Thief River Falls Assemblies of God church March 10 and 11. Saturday, March 10, Rev. Bowman will conduct a training seminar for church personnel from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. The seminar will be based on the book entitled "We Hold These Truths", a survey of cardinal doctrines of the Bible and of the Assemblies of God churches. Cost of the textbook is $1.25 and a free will offering will be taken to cover the cost of the program. Rev. Boman will also be on hand to present the evening Gospel Hour Sunday, March 11, at 7:30 p.m. The public is invited to attend both events.

Normal Spring Could Produce Area Flooding

With normal precipitation during spring break-up moderate overflows could occur in the Red River of the North with heavy flooding downstream from Fargo, including the tributaries, according to the national weather service in its spring snow melt and flood outlook.

Snow melt and flood outlook assumptions based on near normal future precipitation, melting temperatures and river ice conditions show that the Red Lake river at Highlanding would crest at 10 feet — one foot over the flood stage of nine feet. Previous high recorded in the recent past at Highlanding was 13.4 feet on July 3, 1975.

"Heavy to very heavy snow cover is noted over the Red river valley basin," the weather service report states. "The occurrence and degree of flooding will depend at least in part on future precipitation, temperature and river ice conditions. Normal or above normal precipitation over the next several weeks followed by strong warming and or heavy rains would increase the flood potential. Below normal precipitation and intermittent freezing and thawing or very gradual warming conditions would decrease the threat.

"Heavy river ice, quite probably in many locations due to an unusually cold winter, will increase the likelihood and magnitude of flooding at many locations and may increase the crest state by three to five feet or more," the report said.

Reviewer Lauds Performance By Dance Troupe

by Doris Ballingrud

Thief River Falls concert series ended on a happy note Monday evening with the performance by Winnipeg Contemporary Dancers who proved that dance can be great art and great fun at the same time.

The twelve talented and disciplined dancers had something for every taste, weaving so many styles of dance into a coordinated whole. There were folk, jazz, modern, ballet and even a little soft shoe tap. There were a few dances with serious themes but the over-all feeling of the concert was one of joyous exuberance.

The one purely modern number, "Just About Us", was noteworthy because of its serious style and theme but mostly because of the excellent dancing of Rachel Browne, who is also the artistic director of the company. Every inch of her body danced and the tension and emotion came strongly to the audience through her.

Perhaps the favorite dancer of all was James Davis. His "Lonesome Rubin" was superb.

I thought the best choreography and costuming was displayed in "Gift To Be Simple", the final group of dances based on the religious life of the Shakers. With all the leaping, twirling and fast movement one never heard feet meet the stage floor and the fact they danced barefoot most of the time had nothing to do with it.

The dancers had the help of good taped music, but the stage was bare of drapery or scenery. They didn't need it. This final program should give confidence in bringing more dance artists to our series.

The only disappointment I had in this concert is the same one I have in every concert — we, the audience, never applaud hard and long enough.

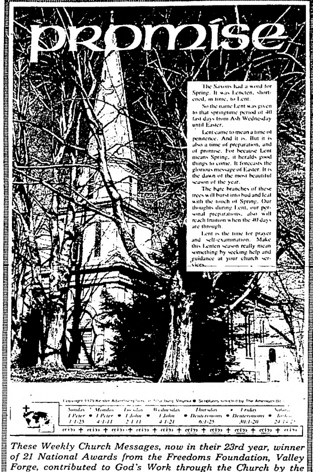
promise



The Saxons had a word for Spring. It was Lencten, shortened, in time, to Lent.

So the name Lent was given to that springtime period of 40 fast days from Ash Wednesday until Easter.

Lent came to mean a time of penitence. And it is. But it is also a time of preparation, and of promise. For because Lent means Spring, it heralds good things to come. It forecasts the glorious message of Easter. It is the dawn of the most beautiful season of the year.

The bare branches of these trees will burst into bud and leaf with the touch of Spring. Our thoughts during Lent, our personal preparations, also will reach fruition when the 40 days are through.

Lent is the time for prayer and self-examination. Make this Lenten season really mean something by seeking help and guidance at your church services.

Study Finds People Still As Intolerant

by Jeanne Hanson
University News

Look in the mirror. Are you an intolerant person? You'll probably say no.

But research conducted at the University of Minnesota and reported in the current issue of "Psychology Today" indicates that intolerance in U.S. society has not diminished since the McCarthy era of the 1950s. Although the targets of intolerance have changed, the potential for repression of unpopular groups remains, according to researchers John L. Sullivan, James Piereson and George Marcus.

Studies done in the 1950s on political intolerance concluded that as the level of education increased, the level of intolerance would decrease. "We're challenging that doctrine of progress here," said Piereson, a visiting professor of political science at the University of Minnesota, on leave from the University of Pennsylvania.

Although people today are more tolerant of such left-wing groups as the communists and socialists than they were during the '50s, they are now less tolerant of right-wing groups such as the John Birch Society and the Ku Klux Klan, he said.

Researchers found that about two-thirds of those surveyed would like to see some group of people outlawed. That proportion is nearly the same as was discovered in the 1950s studies.

"Everybody's supposed to be tolerant and mellow now," said Piereson. "It may be liberal chic to believe that, but it isn't accurate. Everybody seems to hate somebody sometimes."

To measure intolerance, the researchers offered a list of groups — including communists, socialists, fascists, atheists, pro-abortionists, anti-abortionists and the John Birch Society, Black Panthers, Ku Klux Klan and Symbionese Liberation Army — and an option to name any group not on the list, to a national sample of people and a sample of Twin Cities area people.

Those surveyed were to choose the group they liked the least and answer the following questions about them: Should members of the group be outlawed? Should they be banned from being President of the United States? Should they be allowed to teach in the public schools? Should they be allowed to make public speeches? Should their phones be tapped by the government? Should they be allowed to hold public rallies in the city?

About 70 per cent of the people in the national sample would allow a member of their least-liked group to make a speech and about 66 per cent felt the group should be outlawed outright. Some 59 per cent would not want the government to tap a group member's phone, and 50 per cent would allow the group to hold public rallies, Sullivan said.

Less than a fourth of the people surveyed would be willing to see a member of the group they dislike become President or teach in a public school. Twin Cities area residents were only slightly more tolerant than those in the national sample, said Sullivan, an associate professor of political science at the University of Minnesota.

Today's top objects of prejudice, chosen by 30 per cent of the people, are groups in the radical right — the Klan, fascists, and the John Birch Society. Communists came in next, followed by the Black Panthers and the SLA, together chosen by 14 per cent. Atheists, pro-abortionists, anti-abortionists and socialists were chosen as most hated by fewer people, Sullivan said.

About 3 per cent of the people named as their most disliked group one that wasn't on the list. These ran the gamut from the "Moonies" to homosexuals to "holy roller Baptists," "poor white trash and blacks," environmentalists, Hell's Angels, and the "gag bangers," Sullivan said.

People's personalities influence their level of intolerance, Sullivan said. Most intolerant people are those who are the least secure about themselves and those who perceive some threat, realistic or unrealistic, from the group involved. In contrast, studies have tied self-esteem, self-actualization, faith in people, and diminished fear of the group, to tolerance.

No difference in tolerance between men and women or between younger and older people was evident. Once they're allowed to choose their own objects of prejudice, people are equally intolerant, Sullivan said.

Diversity of the groups disliked and our fragmented political atmosphere in general are signs of hope, according to Pierson. "Probably no one group will be selected for repression, not even one of the groups that are themselves intolerant," he said.

According to Pierson, that is the challenge and the paradox: "Can a tolerant society tolerate intolerance?"

Coming: Good News For Vacationers

Although you may not be in competition with J. Hart Rosdail, the man who visited 221 countries—the most on record—you probably want to be sure you're getting the most for your money when you do go on vacation.

This may be easier if the government permits two efficient airlines to merge. The airlines are Pan Am, known primarily for its flights overseas, and National Airlines, best known for its domestic flights. Pan Am carries more people in summer; National, more in winter. The merger will help make the new airline more efficient—it can save space in airports and send out fewer half-empty planes, summer and winter. This increased efficiency will make it more competitive, and that translates into lower fares and better service for the flying public.

It also translates into more and better service to countries that a U.S. airline might not otherwise have covered, and that can help improve our balance of trade by increasing business and tourism here. A better balance of trade helps protect the public against inflation—your money goes further here and when you travel to other countries.

Your money may go further if two airlines get together.

Many people who want to know where their legislators stand on this issue are writing them at the House of Representatives, Washington, D.C. 20515, and the U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C. 20510.

North Dakota Park Offers Area History

More and more Americans are making the move back to nature when they vacation, and North Dakota state parks offer a variety of outdoor experiences. Those travelers that have begun to camp because it is less expensive or just for the fun of it will enjoy one or all of North Dakota state parks, according to the North Dakota travel division.

One such park is the Fort Lincoln state park located south of Mandan in central North Dakota. It is both scenic and historical as well as the state park headquarters. It was from this site in 1876 that Colonel George A. Custer and 600 men marched west to the ill-fated battle of Little Big Horn. Today, reconstructed blockhouses and the corner stones of the original buildings mark the old fort.

Most years if visitors come to the park in mid-July, they may see the present day 7th Cavalry perform the drills of the original 7th. This modern cavalry is made up of persons interested in preserving the heritage and traditions of the original 7th Cavalry, and they provide their own uniforms, horses and authentic saddles, sabers and firearms. There is a competition between individuals and cavalry companies that includes saber handling and a test of marksmanship skills with handguns and carbines.

Also at Fort Lincoln state park is the Slant Indian village, so named because of the slopping ground on which it sits. The original village contained 70 to 80 earth lodges, was occupied from approximately 1650 to 1764 and was in ruins when Lewis and Clark reached the spot in the fall of 1804.

Today, several lodges have been reconstructed on the same site. Visible circular depressions in the ground mark the ruins of many former lodges in the seven or eight-acre area of the original village.

Fort Lincoln is also a scenic area. Located at the confluence of the Missouri and Heart rivers, it is heavily wooded along the river banks. A modern campground is located in the wooded tract, as is a picnic area. A hiking trail runs through this area to the former fort location marked by the blockhouses. Campfire programs are presented each evening, covering the historical and natural aspects of the area.

Also located at Fort Lincoln state park is a museum dealing with the history of the region. Dioramas present visual reminders of the rugged west and a slide presentation informs viewers of the history, wildlife and attractions of the park.

Fort Lincoln state park offers visitors the chance to enjoy the outdoors and scenery of the rivers and woods through camping, picnicking and hiking. Through a visit to the blockhouses, Indian village, museum or by viewing the 7th Cavalry on maneuvers, one is able to experience a small segment of the history of the Old West.

Visibility Of Hazards Helps Avoid Injuries

Experiences in life have given many older Minnesotans a high awareness of safety, both in and out of the home. In spite of that awareness, however, slips and falls continue to take a high toll in injury and death to Minnesota's older citizen.

Floors and rugs, stairs, furniture, paved walks, roofs, ladders and scaffolds are all culprits which can cause older citizens severe injury and even permanent disability. The Minnesota Safety Council offers ten tips to avoid slips and falls:

(1) Light the way. The amount of light needed to see and read increases with age. Have proper lighting installed and use it. Nightlights should be used in bedrooms and bathrooms as well as in hallways linking the two rooms.

(2) Care for floors. Studies show that a properly applied and maintained coating of wax is often safer for hard-surfaced floors than the surface on which it is used. The harder and dryer the wax coating, the safer it is. Spilled foods or liquids should be cleaned up immediately. Between waxings, keep the floor clean with a dry dust mop.

(3) Get rid of throw rugs. Use only carpets with nonslip backing and be sure that the carpeting is tacked in place or placed on nonslip pads.

(4) It's a good idea to put things where they can be easily reached without climbing. If you need to climb, use a solid ladder only — no chairs or other makeshift devices — and have someone steady the base.

(5) Make stairways safe. Good lighting and handrails are a must. Use non-skid treads. Paint the top and bottom steps white or paint a white strip at the edge of each step. To lessen skids on outside steps, sprinkle sand in with wet paint.

(6) Wear proper footwear. Low, broad-heeled shoes with nonslip soles and heels are the comfortable, practical and safe footwear choice for everyone, including older citizens. Bedroom and house slippers should fit snuggly enough to step on without drooping or flopping. Avoid walking in stocking feet, especially on hard surfaced floors. For winter, buy good, well-fitting traction soled boots.

(7) Take care out of doors, too. Use well-lighted sidewalks for walking. Be sure your sidewalks, steps, etc., are in good repair. Remove wet leaves, water, sleet and snow from steps and walks; or spread salt, sand or cinders over them.

(8) Use a safe interior design. Arrange your furniture so that traffic patterns are straight and direct. Halls should be free of furniture of other obstacles. Good housekeeping is a must. Keep things off the floor; books, magazines, clothing, storage boxes and similar articles

(9) Learn how to fall safely. Paratroopers, acrobats, athletes, comedians, all learn to fall safely as a part of their jobs. You should, too. The secret is to crumple like a sack and roll on the fleshy parts of the body

(10) Be conscious of safety measures all the time. Preoccupation can lead to a trap of forgetting to turn on a light, running down the stairs or stumbling on an obstacle in your path. Safety experts agree that carelessness and lack of sensible precautions seem to be the major behavioral factors in falls.

4-H'ers 'Going To The Dogs'

4-H members are literally "going to the dogs" in the national 4-H dog care and training program.

Most girls and boys have an affinity for small animals they can lavish their affection on, explain the Cooperative Extension Service specialists who conduct this popular 4-H program. In return, they say, the pet becomes a trusted friend and companion.

But pets do not live by love alone—they depend on their owners to provide care and nutrition. That's why 4-H dog care projects and activities, supported by Purina Dog Foods Group, Ralston Purina Company, encourage young people 9-19 to learn-by-doing about proper feeding, health, grooming and handling practices.

What are some of the canine care basics? First, good nutrition is just as important for a dog as it is for a human. Most commercially-prepared dog foods provide a balanced diet, and it is a good idea to feed on a regular schedule. Always have fresh water available.

All dogs need exercise and some basic training for family living. Periodic bathing, combing to remove dirt particles, and clipping out mats and burrs should be part of a regular grooming schedule.

Outdoor dogs need a warm house, free of drafts and elevated to keep out water and dampness. Never confine a dog where he cannot reach adequate shelter.

Puppies need shots to prevent infections. Many communities have rabies vaccination laws and regulations on dog licensing and leashing. It is up to the dog owner to learn and obey these laws.

4-H'ers who demonstrate sound dog care and management practices may be eligible for awards donated by Purina Dog Foods Group and arranged by National 4-H Council.

These incentives include six $1,000 scholarships at the national level and 18 sectional trips to the 58th National 4-H Congress in Chicago Nov. 25-29. One 4-H'er per state receives a transistor radio, and four young people in each county earn medals of honor.

Winners are selected by the Cooperative Extension Service. More information on the 4-H dog care and training program is available from county extension agents.

Young people 9-19 are "going to the dogs" in the popular national 4-H dog care and training program. Supported by Purina Dog Foods Group, Ralston Purina Company, the program encourages 4-H'ers to learn-by-doing about canine feeding, health care, handling, grooming and fitting.

National Survey Shows Support For Saccharin

Close to 75 per cent of American adults continue to oppose a ban on saccharin despite the ongoing controversy concerning the only available non-caloric sweetener, a nationwide opinion survey has found.

About one-third of Americans age 18 and over consume saccharin, according to a study conducted by Market Research Group (MRG) of Southfield, Mich. which was sponsored by the Calorie Control council, an association of manufacturers and suppliers of dietary foods and beverages.

More than 80 per cent of those who do not consume saccharin choose not to for reasons of personal taste in foods and beverages, the survey found. Only 15 per cent of those not consuming the sweetener cite apprehension that the noncaloric sweetener might negatively affect their health.

Calorie Control council commissioned the survey to gauge public attitudes on saccharin, to check for public awareness of the recently published report of the National Acadmey of Sciences' saccharin committe, and to check the report's high estimate of young children consuming the sweetener.

Survey found that 15 per cent of children under 10 years old consume saccharin at least once every two weeks.

"This figure appears much more realistic than the 33 per cent figure mentioned in the report," Robert H. Kellen, council president, said. "Children generally do not eat a product sweetened with saccharin when they can choose one with sugar. Most of the reported consumption would probably be attributed to a small amount of an adult's food or drink from time to time, to diabetic children, or to chewing gum, which no longer contains saccharin.

"After all the heat that has been generated on the saccharin issue, virtually the only experiments that suggest anything negative are still the controversial tests in which rats were fed the human equivalent of 1,250 cans of diet soda daily over two generations. And then adverse results were eveident only in male rats.

"It is widely recognized in the scientific community that you cannot extrapolate these massive-dose results to human experience.

"Public support for saccharin has been consistent and broad-based," Kellen concluded. "American people and the health professionals who serve them judge it to be of great benefit. And the vast preponderance of research shows it to be a safe sweetener that should be available to the public without further restriction."

Calorie Control council is an association of more than 60 suppliers and manufacturers of dietary foods and beverages.

Pension For A Penny

This look at the national social security system was provided through a reprint in the Chokio Review but the original source is unknown:

In a typical con game, the con man promises the sucker he will double his money every ten months.

The sucker gives him $100 and he pays the sucker $10 "profit" each month. He can pocket $50 and still have enough left to pay the "profits" for five months.

The sucker tells all his friends and they come running, money in hand. As long as more and more suckers keep coming, he stays there, takes their money, and pays the early investors.

For every hundred past investors he needs ten new ones each month just to break even. Eventually not enough new investors show up to enable him to make his payments to the old investors so the scheme collapses. Those who invested in the beginning all made money. It's the latecomers who got burned.

The greatest, most fantastic con game of all time was the promise of a lifetime pension for a penny.

It started back in the 1930's. The con men who started it were U.S. politicians. They called it "Social Security."

The suckers were the American people who worked in "covered employment."

The essence of the scheme was "vote for me and I'll give you a lifetime pension for a penny."

The American people voted for them and the politicians started taking one penny out of every dollar of wages, plus an equal amount from the employers.

In the beginning, as with all con games, there was a lot of money. The maximum amount paid in by an employee was $30 a year from 1937 to 1949.

How could any reasonable person believe that $30 a year was enough to pay a lifetime pension large enough to live on?

Well, it was enough in 1940 when only one person was drawing benefits for every 145 who were paying into the scheme.

But by 1950 only 12 were paying into the scheme for each person drawing benefits. By 1960, four were paying in for each recipient. Now it is down to a three to one ratio.

As the ratio changed, the $30 a year wasn't enough. So, instead of letting the scheme collapse, the politicians raised the price. By 1959 the charge was $120 a year. By 1969 the charge was $374 a year. For 1976 it was $895 a year. Plus an equal amount each year from each employer.

Even with these fantastic increases social security is bankrupt. It owes trillions more than it has on hand. It pays out billions more each year than it takes in. It is the greatest fraud ever perpetrated in the history of man.

A Load of Rocks

Perhaps it is necessary to have adopted laws and regulations to safeguard the environment, but one begins to wonder if there isn't a bit of over-protection more often than not. Consider the following situation called to public attention in the Mahnomen Pioneer:

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers will be dumping a load of rocks along the Wild Ricer River bank in the near future to prevent further erosion near the city's well house. In order to dump the load of rocks, the corps had to issue a public notice and keep within the guidelines of at least nine federal laws: Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 (Public Law 88-352); Uniform Relocation Assistance and Real Property Acquisition Policies Act of 1970 (Public Law 91-646); Water Resources Development Act of 1974 (Public Law 93-251); Federal Water Pollution Control Act, as amended, 33 USC (U.S. Code) 1251, et seq.; National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (Public Law 91-190); Fish and Wildlife Coordination Act of 1958 (Public Law 85-624); Endangered Species Act of 1973 (Public Law 93-205); 40 CFR (Code of Federal Regulations) 230, Environmental Protection Agency 404 (b) Guidelines; and ER 1105-2- (Draft of October 1, 1977), Corps of Engineers, Environmental Considerations.

Well, I'm sure that most of the readers of this paper are like me: all those law numbers and codes don't mean anything, except that a lawyer has to work so many hours for the corps before the corps can do something as simple as dump a load of rocks. And that means extra tax dollars. How many other small jobs go through the same added tax dollars for the same insignificant reasons?

The reason that all these nit-picking laws are in existence is because many past manufacturers and citizens took the most inexpensive means to dispose of their wastes — they dumped their filth in the lakes and rivers. Those who took the cheap way of disposing of their wastes saved money a few years back, and manufacturers cut expenses too — but we're paying double for their bad habits now.

Then wonder why inflation is so rampant.

Poor Track Record

Following editorial is from the Storm Lake (Iowa) Register:

How often have you heard people say "he (or she) talked themselves into being sick."

In other words if you keep telling yourself that something is going to happen it quite often affects you mentally so that the imagined does happen.

So it is with this same psychology that some of our economic intelligensia are talking the US into a recession. How many times have you heard or read in the past two months that our leading economists are predicting a recession in late 1979.

As one of our printing trade publications noted recently: "The harbingers of doom have been sounding their notes about recession. I have yet to see any of them wearing sackcloth and ashes as he struts up to the podium."

"Few people and even fewer companies ever accomplished much all hunched over waiting for tragedy to happen. None of us grows to maturity without exercising a little caution here and there, but let's face it, that's a far cry from making a self-fulfilling prophecy out of every cautionary note."

Perhaps there is method to the government economists' predictions. They also keep saying that inflation will continue at about the same rate. Consequently the consumer goes out and buys in order to beat the increase in prices. This in turn stimulates production and helps avoid a recession.

As we see it, in our elementary economics, the government could be instrumental in reducing our problems. If the federal government would bring spending closer to income it would not have to go into the private money market to refinance the federal debt. This has been putting pressure on interest rates which are at record highs. Lower interest rates can stimulate buying by making more money available to the consumer at a price he can afford.

But the government economists like to think they can do a better job of balancing the economy. After years of trying their track record leaves much to be desired.

Anatomy Of A Farmer

Recently the Missouri Farm Bureau sent out this release entitled "The Anatomy of a Farmer"...

Top of head — always wears a hat. It eases the pain when beating his head against the wall.

Inside of head — works like a computer when it comes to figuring out his profit and loss financing.

Ears — can be bent, but only by another farmer.

Outside of head — shows pride in work he does.

Shoulders — both broad. Left shoulder slightly lower than right so he can see where he has been and look back at his mistakes.

Hands — right hand highly developed from daily chores he has to do. Left hand slightly underdeveloped because he crosses his fingers a lot.

Knees — caloused from praying for rain, then recalloused in praying for the rain to stop.

Legs — one longer than the other, depending on which side of tractor he gets in and out of.

Nose — red, bruised and peeling.

Mouth — usually smiling, no matter what.

Chin — very prominent. It has to be, because that's where he takes it all.

Belly — it can be big or little, but who can tell when wearing bib overalls.

Back — strong — to carry the burden of high costs and low profits.

Skin — approximately 10 minutes after he goes to work, skin is either dusty, wet, muddy, or cold depending on the weather.

Feet — usually strong from prolonged walks in fields looking at new crops or for cattle. Invariably fields are muddy. Big toe is enlarged — he kicks anything in sight when things go wrong.

FANCY THAT!

America has the busiest airlines system in the world. The average yearly miles flown for people in the U.S. is 770.6 per capita.

America may soon have a more competitive airline system if the government permits Pan Am and National to merge. The newly formed airline could compete more with other airlines around the world and offer passengers more services for lower rates.

Americans interested in this possibility are writing their legislators at the U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C. 20510, and the House of Representatives, 20515.

Warning Given Against Carbon Monoxide Gas

Carbon monoxide gas can kill within minutes and is an especially dangerous threat in the winter months, warned the Minnesota department of public safety.

In a vehicle tightly sealed against cold weather, a faulty exhaust system can leak enough carbon monoxide to kill you in the time it takes to drive around the block.

This gas is colorless, tasteless, non-irritating and nearly odorless. In Minnesota, 90 persons died in 1976 from carbon monoxide produced by motor vehicles.

Carbon monoxide poisoning from vehicle exhaust most often strikes as persons warm up their car in a closed garage, or repair their vehicle with the engine running in a closed-in area, or sit parked with the motor idling to keep the heater going.

Always keep aware of the symptoms of carbon monoxide poisoning. Most common are a tightening feeling across the forehead, and a headache, generally accompanied by nausea. Other symptoms can include dizziness, blurred vision, sleepiness, loss of muscle control, and increased pulse and respiration.

If you notice any symptoms, get fresh air immediately. By the time the symptoms appear, you are already close to losing consciousness.

One good defense against carbon monoxide is to never drive with your vehicle completely sealed. In both winter and summer, good ventilation is essential to avoid carbon monoxide poisoning. Leaving the wing windows open gives good cross ventilation with fresh air.

In stop and go driving, close the front air vents because they can suck in exhaust from other vehicles. In a station wagon, keep the rear windows closed because forward motion creates a partial vacuum which can draw your exhaust into the passenger compartment.

When in a closed area, never warm up the engine and avoid working on the vehicle with the engine running. To warm up the vehicle before leaving, drive it outside to idle awhile.

Another important precaution is to check your vehicle's exhaust system at least twice a year. A stone or ice chunk can put a hole in the muffler and let exhaust fumes escape to seep through the vehicle's floor into the passenger area.

One test of the exhaust system is to start the motor, hold a rag over the tailpipe end for a few seconds and listen for leaks. Then remove the rag and check visually around the pipes and muffler for soot or a bluish grey color.

Winter and expensive energy bills are upon us. Each year many citizens turn to the family hearth to provide a cozy atmosphere and heat to the home as well.

A fireplace supplies radiant energy that can bring quick warmth to a cold room. Fires can be more economical in dispelling early morning and evening chills than a large heating system primarily, because less fuel is consumed and a large volume of heat is produced quickly. However, do not be fooled in thinking your fireplace will automatically reduce your fuel bill. A fireplace may actually increase it.

Persons who wish to use a fire to produce heat may be interested in purchasing a home with a wood-burning stove or a fireplace designed with special venting ducts rather than a conventional fireplace. Conventional open fireplaces draw in large amounts of warm air from a home, replacing it with cold air from the outside. Modern wood-burning stoves are air tight and generally more efficient than conventional fireplaces because they contain draft controls that reduce the intake of warm air. Many types of these stoves are now readily available.

Wood for your fireplace or stove is most commonly sold by the cord. A cord of wood is a well-stacked pile of wood measuring 4 by 4 by 8 feet. When comparing prices, make sure that wood advertised as a "cord" actually measures 4 by 4 by 8 feet. Since few people burn wood in lengths of 4 or 8 feet, many persons sell what are known as "face cords." "Face cords" are stacks of wood 4 feet high and 8 feet long; however, their width is equal to the length of a log that has been cut to fit easily into a fireplace. A "face cord" of wood pieces 24 inches long is one-half the size of a standard cord.

In some areas wood is sold by weight instead of volume. According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, a ton of dry hardwood is approximately one-half a cord. When buying wood by weight, be sure that the wood is dry so you do not pay extra for water.

Selecting the kind of wood you want to burn is much the same as selecting a good wine, since each wood offers something different. Softwoods — usch as pine, spruce and fir — are easy to light and burn rapidly. They require a great deal of attention. Hardwoods — such as birch, maple and oak — are more difficult to light but burn much longer than softwoods and are good for occasions when you do not want to be tending a fire constantly.

The aroma that comes from burning of woods is another characteristic to consider in selecting wood. Woods from fruit and nut trees give off the aroma of the fruit. These woods may cost slightly more than woods with greater heating value, but fruit and nut woods are still very good heat producers.

To capture the benefits of all of these different woods, you might wish to mix them. For example, you could start with easy-to-light softwoods and move on to hardwoods for ease of the tending. Lastly, fruit or nut woods might be added for their aroma.

With the right wood and a little practice at building fire, you can enjoy the warmth and beauty of your fireplace all winter long.

If you have any questions about firewood or any other problem, contact the Consumer Protection Division, Office of the Attorney General, 102 State Capitol Building, St. Paul, Minnesota 55155.

Suppose you take your car to a garage for repairs. You go to pick up the car and pay the bill. Within a few days you discover the repairs were inadequate, faulty or unnecessary.

If you paid the repair bill with cash, you are out the cash and may have to bring an action in conciliation court to recover your money. If you paid the bill by check, it may be too late to stop payment on the check. Again, you may have to bring an action in conciliation court to recover your money.

However, if you paid the repair bill with a credit card, you have a tool to use in negotiating and additional time to discover that the repairs by the garage were inadequate, faulty or unnecessary before payment is made.

Federal law provides generally that when you purchase goods or services with a credit card, you have the same legal rights against the issuer of the credit card as you have against the seller of the goods or services. This means you have the right to withhold payment from the credit card company if you have the right to withhold payment from the store or shop that sold you the goods or services. You can withhold payments until you settle your dispute with the store or shop or the dispute is resolved in court. The credit card company cannot make you pay interest or penalty charges on the amount withheld until the dispute is finally settled. Neither can your credit card account be closed.

The right to withhold payment if you have a problem with goods or services purchased with your credit card applies to all credit card transactions in which the company issuing the credit card owns or operates the store or shop. For example, this might be the case if your car is repaired at a gas station and you use an oil company credit card to make payment.

Federal law does not always give you the right to withhold payment in other credit card transactions. If the store or shop that sold you the goods or services is not owned by the company issuing the credit card, two conditions must be met before you can withhold payment from the issuer of the credit card.

The store or shop must be in your home state or within a hundred miles of your current address, and the price of the goods or services must be more than $50.

If you are going to withhold payment from the issuer of a credit card, you must take several steps in all cases.

+ You must try to work your problem out with the store or shop that sold you the goods or services.
+ You must send a letter to both the credit card company and the store or shop. In the letters you must list the date the goods or services were purchased, the credit card used, your credit card account number, a description of why the goods or services were unsatisfactory and a statement of what you want in settlement of your dispute.

It is a good idea to send the letters by certified mail with a return receipt requested.

If you receive a settlement offer from the store or shop, remember that a compromise under which you settle for less than you paid may be appropriate. A reasonable offer of less than you paid is better than nothing at all. Nothing at all is what you will get if the store or shop sues you and you lose.

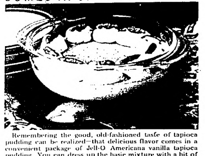
The issuer of a credit card or store or shop cannot report you as delinquent if you withhold payment, but you can be reported as disputing a charge. Therefore, you should know your rights under the U.S. fair credit reporting act.

Under the act you can find out what information is in your credit file and, can challenge any information you think is incorrect. If the credit bureau cannot prove the information is true, it must be removed from your file. You also have the right to have your side of the story added to your credit file.

Remember, if no settlement is reached, the store of shop may bring an action in court to collect the bill. If this happens, you will probably want to consult a lawyer.

If you have any questions concerning any consumer problems, please contact the Consumer Division, Office of the Attorney General, Room 102, State Capitol Building, St. Paul, Minnesota 55155.

OLD-FASHIONED TASTE COMES IN SMALL PACKAGES



Remembering the good, old-fashioned tasfe of tapioca pudding can be realized—that delicious flavor comes in a convenient package of Jell-O Americana vanilla tapioca pudding. You can dress up the basic mixture with a bit of brown sugar and an egg yolk. More brown sugar flavors the beaten egg white which is used to form dollops of meringue. A quick baking browns the meringue and this Butterscotch Tapioca Pudding is ready to serve.

BUTTERSCOTCH TAPIOCA PUDDING

1 package (3-1/4 oz.) vanilla tapioca pudding
2 tablespoons brown sugar
2 cups milk
1 egg yolk, slightly beaten
1/4 cup butter or margarine
1 egg white
2 tablespoons brown sugar
2 tablespoons pecan halves, split

Combine pudding mix and 2 tablespoons brown sugar in saucepan. Stir in milk and egg yolk, blending well. Add butter. Cook and stir over medium heat until mixture comes to a full boil. Remove from heat; pour into 1-quart baking dish. Beat egg white until foamy throughout. Gradually beat in 2 tablespoons brown sugar. Continue beating until mixture will form stiff peaks. Drop by spoonfuls onto pudding; arrange nuts on meringue. Bake at 425° for about 5 minutes, or until meringue is lightly browned. Serve warm. Makes 5 servings.

Cancer Answers

"Cancer Answers" is a weekly column sponsored by the Red River Valley Medical society, the Red River Valley unit of the American Cancer society, and the Thief River Falls Times. Questions may be mailed to the editor, Thief River Falls Times. All questions will be answered, and those of a general interest will be published in "Cancer Answers."

Dear Cancer Answers:

My wife had a mastectomy a few months ago. The operation went well and the doctor says she's fine now, but lately her arm has been swollen. Can this be a sign that the cancer has come back? Is there anything she can do to decrease the swelling?

G.R.

Dear G.R.:

About half of the women who have a mastectomy for breast cancer experience some swelling, called lymphedema, of the arm after surgery. During a mastectomy the breast, the nearby lymph nodes, and sometimes the underlying muscle and other adjacent tissue is removed. The extent of the surgery depends upon the location of the tumor and whether or not it has spread, or metastisized. When the lymph nodes are removed some of the lymph passageways that normally drain fluid from the arm are blocked. If too many of these lymph channels are affected fluid may collect in the arm causing swelling. In some cases this condition is temporary and gradually improves during the first months after surgery, while in other cases swelling can become a chronic problem. In either instance, lymphedema is usually not an indication that the cancer has recurred.

Exercise is important after a mastectomy in order for the arm muscles to retain their range of motion and flexibility. Sometimes, however, excessive use of the arm too soon after surgery can cause or aggravate lymphedema. It is usually not a good idea to exercise the affected arm for more than 30 minutes at a time. Heat may also cause more swelling. It is important to avoid puncture wounds, cuts, and scratches in the arm because any resulting infections will further inflame the lymph channels.

Your wife should of course discuss this problem with her doctor who can evaluate her and recommend some things she could do to help reduce the swelling. Sometimes elevation, massage, or wrapping in elastic bandages can help. The doctor will be able to determine what is best for your wife.

Dear Cancer Answers:

Everytime I turn around, I hear about something else that causes cancer. Pretty soon we won't be able to eat or drink at all! Hasn't anything been proven not to cause cancer?

Janet

Dear Janet:

Many things you eat, drink and breathe have been proven not to cause cancer! The problem is that such "negative" reports are not given much attention. A report that something does cause cancer seems more exciting and is given more space in newspapers and magazines and more time on radio and TV. Therefore you hear more about those substances that do cause cancer. Furthermore there frequently are premature reports about substances that are suspected of causing cancer long before there is proof that they actually have ever caused a single human cancer.

The National Cancer Institute is conducting a review of the evidence about some of the substances previously thought to be unsafe. The committee has given an "O.K." to the following: vitamin C, caffine, monsodium glutamate, (a flavor enhancer), licorice, sugar, nutmeg, mace and caramel used as color.

This is just a small sample of the hundreds of harmless substances that we eat and drink every day. If you have a question about some specific substance, ask your doctor about it or call the Minnesota Cancer Information Service, 1,800-582-5262.

Dear Cancer Answers:

Could you tell me which color additives cause cancer? It seems like I heard a lot about the danger of red dyes some time ago but never heard any final report. Have these dyes been banned?

Val

Dear Val:

A number of color additives, including some of the red ones, have been withdrawn or placed under restricted use by the Food and Drug Administration. This action has been based on evidence that these substances are or may be hazardous.

Following is a partial list of color additives which the federal government has banned or limited in foods, drugs, cosmetics. Only those known or thought to be cancer-causing are listed below although there are others which are prohibited due to inadequate information on safety.

Violet No. 1 — Prohibited for use in foods, drugs, and cosmetics. Carcinogen (cancer-causing substance)

Red Nos. 10, 11, 12 and 13 Prohibited for use in drugs and cosmetics. Colors could contain carcinogens.

Yellow No. 1 — Prohibited for use in externally applied drugs and cosmetics. Could contain carcinogens.

Yellow Nos. 9 and 10 Prohibited for use in externally applied drugs and cosmetics. Could contain carcinogens.

Graphite — Prohibited for use in cosmetics. Might contain polynuclear aromatic hydrocarbons, some of which could be carcinogenic.

Orange B — Caused cancer in test animals. Ban proposed

If you have questions about other color additives, you may wish to contact the Food and Drug Administration, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, Maryland 20857.

Dear Cander Answers:

Do cancer patients usually have to be hospitalized for long periods of time? What is the overall medical cost of cancer for an individual? I've been considering buying some cancer insurance so these questions have come to mind. Is cancer insurance a good idea?

Irene

Dear Irene:

The cost of cancer treatment varies so widely that it is difficult to cite any typical figure. Nevertheless, a recent Consumer Reports study placed an approximate average price tag of $20,000 per case on the medical services involved in treating most cancers except minor forms of skin cancer.

The cost to a patient and his family can differ enormously depending on how advanced the cancer is when it is diagnosed. Even basic hospital charges are high; they are often in the range of $200 a day, and Consumer Reports says an average hospital visit for a cancer patient is 15 days. At that rate, a hospital stay costs $3,000, not counting repeat visits and the additional costs of surgery, other therapy, nursing services, etc.

Medical insurance is a vital concern, something each person should be aware of. If you currently have insurance coverage for catastrophic illness, you should confer with your insurance agent to make sure you understand existing benefits and their limits before purchasing additional insurance.

One expert suggests you check your policy for the following features:

+ The number of days of hospitalization — A policy should cover at least 30 days in the hospital.

+ Out-patient services — Vital cancer treatments such as chemotherapy and radiation therapy are often given on an outpatient basis. Policy coverage for these services is spotty.

+ Home health benefits — Many plans offer some payment for the services of visiting nurses and homemakers.

+ Deductibles (the percentage of costs the individual has to pay) — Generally, policies that have a larger deductible have better long-term coverage. Most people are able to pay the first $500 or $1,000 of expenses, so a policy with a deductible for the first $500 of expense may be a good one. It is far better to have a policy that requires you to pay some percentage at the outset but that continues to cover you for catastrophic illness.

+ Coinsurance — This is a provision which requires that an individual pay a share of the costs after a certain number of hospital days have been used or a total dollar amount has been covered by the basic insurance benefits.

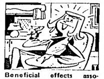
The Benefits Of Drink

"Here's to your health" as a drinking toast may be more than just good cheer now that various studies show benefit in moderate drinking.

Three drinks or fewer per day may reduce the risk of heart attacks and seem to lessen symptoms of exhaustion and discomfort.

This was one of the findings that were part of a comprehensive overview recently published by Dr. William J. Darby, professor of bio-chemistry at Vanderbilt University where he established the Division of Nutrition in the Vanderbilt University School of Medicine.

For purposes of comparison, a drink is shown to be the amount of any beverage that contains approximately 12 milliliters of alcohol: a one-ounce jigger of 80-proof spirits, a 3 1/2-ounce glass of table wine, a 12-ounce glass of light beer or a 10-ounce glass of ordinary American beer.



Beneficial effects associated with drinking in moderation are increasingly being established through scientific research.

A recent study of the Kaiser-Permanente Medical Center in Oakland, Calif., observed that 464 patients who had been hospitalized with a first heart attack included an unusually large proportion of teetotalers. Going on to evaluate the medical histories of 120,000 patients, researchers found that moderate alcohol users were 30 percent less likely to have heart attacks than nondrinking patients or high-risk people who suffer from diabetes, hypertension, obesity or high serum cholesterol.

Another analysis of 84,000 men and women showed those taking two or fewer drinks per day had similar or slightly lower blood pressure, than teetotalers or persons who take more than three drinks a day.

Although the dangers of too much drink are well known to almost everyone, it seems that for those who can handle it, a relaxed moment with a pre-dinner drink might have a beneficial effect.

Americans Must Adjust To Chinese Guests

American hosts will have to adjust to visiting scholars from the People's Republic of China as much as the visitors will have to adjust to the United States, according to Josef A. Mestenhauser, director of the international student adviser's office at the University of Minnesota.

"Most make the assumption that you have to orient the students to us," he said. "We really are not paying much attention to the problems we are going to have as hosts of the Chinese."

Mestenhauser spoke at one of the small-group workshops last weekend at Spring Hill Center where officials from the University of Minnesota discussed the prospects of developing exchanging programs with the People's Republic of China.

"Our own students are utterly unprepared for the Chinese students," he said. "We assume that we know what these people want or need but we have no precedent in international student programs for the types of problems that the Chinese will have here."

Chia-wei Woo, chairman of the physics department at Northwestern university, said that the Chinese may be surprised and confused by what they see. "Cultural shock is not so much seeing things that are unfamiliar but it is difficult to become accustomed to things that do not seem rational," Woo said.

"Chinese are a very frugal people," he said. "They will be confused as to why a people as successful as Americans are could be so wasteful."

Financial problems will likely affect exchange scholars and a "reception" center will be needed to help arrange housing and other services for the groups, Mestenhauser said. Reception center for foreign students was lost during recent University budget cuttings, he said.

Health insurance for visiting scholars is hard to get, he said. "It's expensive and it's inadequate. High costs of housing and medical insurance are going to stagger the Chinese."

Chinese who visit the United States will be advanced scholars who will not qualify for student health care or faculty fringe benefits.

Health care is provided to residents of China free by the government, and it will be hard to explain to them that they will not be covered for illness or accident when they visit the United States, he said.

Housing situation could raise a different set of problems, most caused by the much higher costs of living in the United States, he said.

"There is an important question that's not being handled and that is, 'How do we prepare the community, the minorities, other foreign students for the reception of Chinese students?'" Mestenhauser said.

Although there will be special problems aggravated by university budget cuts and the position that all foreign students should be treated equally, Mestenhauser said he is excited by the prospect of a long-term exchange program with China.

TECHNOLOGY ON THE MOVE

The U.S. Army Gets A New Helicopter

The brand-new UH-60A BLACK HAWK is the most technologically advanced troop-transport helicopter in the world. It was designed for the U.S. Army by the Sikorsky Aircraft division of United Technologies Corporation.

The BLACK HAWK can carry 11 fully-equipped combat troops plus a crew of three at cruise speeds more than 167 miles per hour. Because of its large cabin, it can also be used for secondary missions such as medical evacuation, troop resupply, and reconnaissance.

The first production BLACK HAWK was delivered to the U.S. Army late last Fall. The U.S. Army plans to buy more than 1,100 of the new aircraft during the years ahead. Delivers will continue through the mid-1980's.

The BLACK HAWK is designed and built to operate in the battlefield environment with lower maintenance costs, than current helicopters. This should result in lower total costs during the life of each helicopter.

Stangeland To Oppose Moving Forest Agency

Congressman Arlan Stangeland says he is "upset and discouraged to see that President Carter is going ahead with plans to move the forest service agency from the department of agriculture to a new natural resources department under the department of interior.

"This reorganization plan will work against the timber industry," he said. "Timber is a natural resource, but it is one that can, and is, being replanted and regenerated following harvest. We shouldn't treat it as a natural resource that is facing extinction, as is expected to happen under the new department of natural resources, we need to treat lumber as a crop or a product that can be planted and harvested just like wheat, corn and soybeans."

During the past three years, the eastern region of the forest service agency which includes Minnesota has made regeneration cuts (need to reforest) in 145,800 acres, and has initiated reforestation activities (planting, seeding and site preparation for natural regeneration) in 55,161 acres.

Minnesota papermaking companies account for 30 per cent of the wood harvested in the state, and the total forest product industry for the state employs about 40,000 people.

"The timber industry is important to the Seventh District," Rep. Stangeland said, "and this is exemplified in the Hennepin Paper comapny plant in Little Falls, the Superwood corporation facility in Bemidji and the Potlatch corporation plant in Brainerd. Recently, the Potlatch Corporation announced plans to build a $30 million building board plant in the Bemidji vicinity in 1981.

Opposition to the administration's reorganization plan has been voiced by the House and Senate agriculture committees, the timber industry, agriculture organizations, Farm Bureau, Grange, state and industry forests, the construction industry and labor groups.

Applesauce Meringue Pie

Applesauce is a good buy in supermarkets and it's available in a variety of styles and containers. This recipe for Applesauce Meringue Pie uses 4 cups, so buy a large jar (35 ounces) and you'll save opening another container. Either smooth or chunky styles of sauce may be used. And the filling goes well with a pastry crust or a crumb type crust made of gingersnaps.

Applesauce pie has a custard-like consistency. Raisins and slivered almonds offer a pleasant texture contrast. The filling may be topped with meringue or whipped cream. To intensify apple flavor the sauce is cooked first about ten minutes before adding other ingredients. Use a skillet or shallow saucepan as the wide top surface speeds up evaporation of juice. Then add egg yolks, lemon rind and salt and cook so egg yolks can finish the thickening process. Add raisins. Pour the filling into a pastry or crumblined pie pan and add the meringue.

APPLESAUCE MERINGUE PIE

- 1 pastry-lined 8 or 9-inch pie plate
- 4 cups canned applesauce
- 2 egg yolks
- 1 tablespoon grated lemon rind
- 1/8 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup raisins
- 2 egg whites
- 1/2 cup confectioners' sugar
- 1/2 slivered almonds

Cook applesauce for about 10 minutes, stirring to evaporate the juice. Separate eggs. Beat yolks with a fork and add salt and lemon rind. Add to the applesauce and cook until quite thick—a custard consistency. Add raisins and pour filling into prepared pie shell. Beat egg whites, gradually adding confectioners' sugar to make a stiff meringue. Cover surface of filling with meringue and sprinkle with slivered almonds. Bake at 425 degrees about 10 minutes or until golden brown. Cool before serving. Serves 6 persons.

Have A Gourmet Spring Celebration

Celebrate the bursting of the first crocuses through the snow by giving a gourmet dinner party for family or special friends. Fillets of sole, white wine and grapes blend in this light festive dish. Set off the meal to perfection with Reine Pedauque Pouilly-Fuisse, a dry white Burgundy wine with a delightful nutty aroma, imported by the Dennis & Huppert Company.

Serve a spinach salad and crisp French bread. Elegant Pears Cardinale flavored with currant jelly, lemon and orange rind hint at summer fruits to come: the perfect finale to your first party of the season.

SOLE VERONIQUE

- 6 fillets of sole, flounder or haddock
- Salt
- Freshly ground pepper
- 1 cup water
- 1 cup Reine Pedauque Pouilly-Fuisse dry white wine
- Juice of a lemon
- 1 small onion, chopped
- 3 tablespoons butter
- 3 tablespoons flour
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 1/2 cup light cream
- 1/2 pound seedless grapes

Wash and dry fillets. Wrap up jelly roll style, fasten with toothpicks. Place on a buttered baking dish and season with salt and pepper. In a saucepan, bring the cup of water and the cup of wine to a boil, add the lemon juice and chopped onion and boil 2 minutes. Pour liquid over fillets. Cover baking dish tightly with foil and bake in a preheated oven at 350° F. for 15 minutes. Reserving the liquid, transfer fillets to a hot serving platter; remove toothpicks and keep fish warm. In a heavy saucepan, melt the butter and add flour, stirring well. Strain the liquid and slowly add to the butter and flour.

Season to taste with salt and pepper and, stirring constantly, bring to a boil, making sure there are no lumps. Lower heat and simmer 3 to 5 minutes. Add the cream and grapes. Stir continuously until the grapes are warm, then pour over poached fillets. Serve immediately. Serves 6.

PEARS CARDINALE

- 1 cup water
- 3/4 cup sugar
- 2 cups Reine Pedauque Pouilly-Fuisse dry white wine

SOLAR HEAT COLLECTOR installed by the Bob Ohlhauser home at 420 Sherwood av. S. in Thief River Falls is a new concept in solar heating. Translucent plastic transmits the sun's rays onto black plastic and the heat collected is transferred to the house through a six-inch duct. Air from the house is also brought into the unit through a similar duct. Ohlhauser said the unit is being commercially produced for retail at less than $500 and monthly operational cost would be about 60 cents to operate a blower motor. The second day he had the unit installed, he said, it maintained interior house temperature at 69 degrees until 10:30 p.m.

Solar Collector Helps Heat Ohlhauser Home

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

People driving past Bob Ohlhauser's home at 420 Sherwood av. S. may wonder why he has a king size air mattress leaning against the south wall. To the uninformed, that's what a Solar Pak II solar heat collector looks like.

Despite the questions he receives about the contraption, Ohlhauser is enthusiastic about the opportunity to use winter sunshine to cut down his fuel bill and do his bit to help conserve dwindling supplies of fossil fuels.

"It was invented by a farmer in southern Minnesota and is really quite a new concept in solar collectors," Ohlhauser said. "Purchase price is under $500 and operational cost is about 60 cents a month for electricity to run a blower motor. It took a total of about six man hours to make the frame and install the unit."

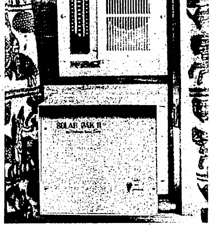
Bob said the unit is designed so that it can be folded up and stored in the garage in the warmer months of the year. In this way his lawn will be free of any obstructions which would get in the way of lawn mowing and there will be no unsightly materials around the house.

"This unit seems to produce as much heat as other units that cost up to $7,500 and will likely be available to the public through local dealers in the near future," Ohlhauser said. "The first day of operation at my home, the unit brought warm air into my house at 124 degrees through a six-inch duct with the temperature outside hitting a high of 12 degrees. Since that time I have had a high temperature of incoming air of 143 degrees."

The unit has no heat storage unit of any type, and so produces heat only during the day. But Ohlhauser notes that on the first day of operation in his home the unit maintained 69 degrees in the house until 7 p.m. when the furnace started. On the second day the house maintained 69 degrees until 10:30 p.m.

The solar unit can be installed in a double-hung or casement window in the same manner as a portable air conditioner. That is the way it is installed at the Ohlhauser home. It can also be connected to furnace ducts in homes with forced air heat or run into the basement or crawl space of a house.

Ohlhauser said the unit has created quite a bit of conversation since he installed it a short time ago and that he will be happy to answer questions about the way it performs.



SIMPLE INSTALLATION is one of the features of the solar heating unit now in use at the Bob Ohlhauser home. It can be installed in any double-hung or casement window like a portable air conditioner. On the first day after installation, the unit brought sun-heated air into the house at 124 degrees when the outside temperature hit a high for the day of 12 degrees.

Older Workers Benefit From "Green Thumb"

Program which matches older workers with community needs is the Minnesota Green Thumb project, funded under Title IX of the older Americans act and is sponsored by the national Farmers Union. The program employs 11 people in Pennington county, 15 in Marshall, [illegible] in Polk, 12 in Red Lake, [illegible] in Roseau and 17 in Beltrami.

During the present contract year in Minnesota, the program budget is $3,011,000 which will benefit more than 850 employees and 400 rural sponsors in 53 counties. In northwestern Minnesota's economic development region one, older workers will receive $350,610 in wages for fiscal year 1979.

Workers in the Green Thumb program earn the federal minimum wage while working an average of 20 hours a week. Some work on crews which renovate and upgrade community facilities and parks while others serve in a variety of capacities with public agencies such as schools, historical societies, nutrition and senior centers, developmental achievement centers, weatherization program, home chore services, foster grandparents and others.

In Pennington county the program's $41,470 in funding provides the following positions.

Two custodial aides to clean halls, rest rooms and classrooms in the public schools and one shop aide to check tools in and out and clean industrial arts classrooms; a driver to transport participants to the senior meals site in Thief River Falls; a craft aide to display and sell craft articles; a maintenance aide to clean the community center and clean and mow city parks at

Foundation Has $48,914 In Student Loans

Thief River Falls foundation closed its fiscal year with 39 student loans totaling $48,914 outstanding, according to the annual report presented by secretary-treasurer Ronald Hanson at the foundation's annual meeting Thursday.

During the year the foundation received $7,037 in principal payments and $1,367 in interest payments on loans while loaning out $7,050 in new loans to students. The foundation also contributed $200 in scholarships to the area vocational-technical institute and $200 to Northland community college in addition to donating $25 to the college's revolving fund.

Officers of the foundation were reelected and include Randall Noper, president; Marvin Lundin, vice president; and Ronald Hanson, secretary-treasurer. Reelected as directors for five-year terms were James Winjum and Orville Hanson.

The foundation directors voted to increase the interest rate on loans from the existing four per cent to six per cent, effective on all new loans or additions to existing loans. The increase was made to bring interest rates closer to commercial rates and to provide additional funds for future student loans.

Thief River Falls foundation is a non-profit corporation founded to help provide financial assistance to area students seeking to receive post high school education. Donations to the foundation are tax deductible and assist the organization in helping more students to obtain advanced education.

Financial report of the foundation is published in today's issue of the Times.

Rentals Are Problems For Renters, Landlords

DROOPING CEILING in this one bedroom apartment unit in Thief River Falls would have to be repaired if a complaint were made to the city building inspector Bob Bregier by the renter. One of a number of substandard items found in the facility which rents for $150, the drooping ceiling is a potential hazard and the tiles have been gradually hanging lower according to the renter. Problems such as these are not generally reported by renters who fear retaliatory eviction by their landlords or a raise in rent following repairs.

by Kim Blaeser
Times Reporter

"Decent places to live within a reasonable price range are practically nonexistent," is the comment of one Thief River Falls renter.

"I like to make $25 a house," a local landlord states. "That's the return I want. But it is getting so you cannot do that anymore. You can't come out on a house anymore. If I could sell out tomorrow, I'd sell out tomorrow."

"We have a lot of state regulations in regard to housing," city personnel explain, "but no way to enforce them because of lack of manpower."

A 1976 survey taken by the department of housing and urban development (HUD) indicated that of an estimated 3,468 housing units in the city of Thief River Falls 1,219 were rentals. That means that over one third of the housing facilities available within the city are rental units.

The survey also indicated that approximately 53 of those 1,219 rental units are substandard, showing visible signs of dilapidation such as cracked foundations, window and door frames, inadequate shingles, etc. City planning staff indicates the number of sub-standard units is actually somewhat higher.

The 1976 edition of the "Uniform Housing Code" has been adopted by the city of Thief River Falls as the official city code for housing facilities, including rentals. Although the purpose of the code is "to provide minimum requirements for the protection of life, limb, health, property, safety and welfare of the general public and the owners and occupants of residential buildings," it is believed the majority of the [illegible] rented facilities could not meet the code requirements.

Does this mean the rental units in the city of Thief River Falls are unfit for habitation? Should the code be strictly enforced? What would the results be if it were? This is the first in a series of articles examining the conditions of rental facilities available, the complicated relationship between tenant and landlord, the local enforcement of the uniform housing code and avenues for legitimate complaints about rental facilities.

Average small two-bedroom house in Thief River Falls rents for $165-$200 a month with all utilities paid. Such a unit would meet minimum safety requirements although probably not all code items. It would be liveable but not necessarily likeable in the eyes of a tenant.

A renter would probably be required to place a $50 to $75 damage deposit with the landlord and would likely have to give a month's notice before vacating if he didn't wish to forfeit the deposit. It is unlikely that pets would be allowed and if they were an additional deposit might be required.

In such a facility appliances, excluding a washer and dryer, would be furnished by the landlord and the house would be partly furnished. The average unit would include a air plug-in but no garage. The house would be older and the need for constant repair and maintenance would be a headache for both the tenant and the landlord.

A person would probably decide to rent such a house until he or she "can afford something better."

The type of rental facilities available to a person of average income in Thief River Falls is down somewhat in quality from the type of facilities available in the same rent bracket in other towns. One citizen explained this, saying, "Thief River is really new in the apartment house business. They used to have apartments for people who were working, but they never used to have the large vocational school and the large junior college population to supply. They just have too many (rental units) that are too new. People have just suddenly decided to make apartments out of what was once their house or out of the upstairs of their house and they are doing it in the cheapest and quickest way possible."

This sudden conversion into

APARTMENT HOUSE FACILITIES in the city of Thief River Falls would be most likely to meet uniform housing code requirements if the code were to become strictly enforced. This kitchen area in one local apartment is both safe and convenient. In older houses throughout the city however, rental units may be safe but convenience is sacrificed for lower rent. In Thief River Falls there are housing facilities available specifically for the elderly and for students but a 1976 survey indicated that on an average there are only three rental units standing vacant. So because alternate facilities may not be available or because a tenant cannot afford to pay the rent required for a safe, convenient living area he may opt to accept a substandard facility.

February 14 featured the Home's annual Valentine party with Melvina Gulbranson, 89, reigning as queen and Roy Adams, 95, as king. Valentines from staff and residents were distributed from a decorated Valentine box. After lunch, which included strawberry cake with strawberry ice cream, open-face sandwiches, and coffee, the residents danced to the accordion music provided by Art Stordahl.

Showing films during the month were Mary Numedahl, R. N., who showed slides of her family's trip to Disney World in California; Ben Erickson, a resident, who showed slides of Chicago, its parks, shopping centers and Lincoln Park zoo; and Jim Koch, missionary, who showed slides of the history and work of the American Sunday school union.

Of special interest was a display of wooden carved birds shown by Gunder Legvold, and a program led by Lynnae Halvorson, a member of Oakland Park's staff. She was accompanied by "Citizens for Christ," a group of 15 young people from the Zion Lutheran church parish of the Viking and Newfolden area. They presented a program of hymns.

Other events included bingo with members of the VFW and the Eagles auxiliary assisting the residents; and a visit from the FHA girls, who visited the home and distributed fruit to the residents.

The traditional Sunday dinners, with members taking turns in inviting members of their families, were also held in February. Hosting the dinners were Ida Hanson, February 4, with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. James Tostrup and daughter, as guests; Ragna Efteland, February 11, with her son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Efteland as guests; Olga Ellingson, February 18, with her son, Orville Ellingson, and a son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Merlyn Adamson, as guests; and Myrtle Engelstad, February 25, with her son-in-law and daughter Mayor and Mrs. Robert Carlson, as guests.

Thief River Falls

Sauerkraut Hot Dish

1 quart sauerkraut, drained and rinsed in cold water
1 cup quick brown rice
¼ cup wild rice
1 pkg. Spanish rice mixture, together with the seasoning in the envelope
4 lbs. lean ground beef, browned and seasoned with all-in-one seasoning salt
1-32 oz., jar of plain spaghetti sauce
2-14½ oz. cans stewed tomatoes

Method: Combine all ingredients, mix well and pour into a well-greased baking pan or casserole. Bake in a 375 degree oven for 1½ hours or until rice is cooked. If it seems to be getting dry, add some tomato juice.

Mrs. Jensen, known to her friends as Ruthie, lives at 501 South Duluth where she gives piano, organ and accordion lessons, and also operates a doll shop. In addition she serves as co-organist and accompanist at St. John Lutheran church and is involved in choir work. Although she has never known a time when she wasn't interested in music, she does have other interests.

She is a gourmet cook, altering recipes to suit her taste. When asked for the recipe for the hot dish that she had brought to a recent church dinner, she asked, "Do you want the original recipe, or the way I make it?" (The above recipe is the way Ruthie makes it.) She also enjoys flower gardening and various crafts, such as making costume dolls that are available in her shop.

She said that, "through personal experience (which included the deaths of her daughter and husband, and the sale of her home to make room for the medical clinic) I have learned that keeping busy is the best way to fight depression."

Congress Faced With Debate Over SS Taxes

First time around, in 1935, Americans hardly felt the initial bite that social security taxes took out of their paychecks, amounting to only $30 a year or a little less than 60 cents a week.

Under the circumstances, the fact that congress voted to exempt itself and public workers from the social security act and the payment of these new taxes did not strike people as terribly out of line or inequitable.

But what about today when millions of Americans pay out more in social security taxes every year than they do in regular income taxes?

Outgo and income of the huge system, now covering 90 per cent of the U.S. workforce, almost offset each other, so that everyone contributes for somebody else's retirement support.

The question raised is: Should social security now include members of congress and be expanded to cover about 8 million workers in separate public retirement systems, similar to the way that social security and private pension systems work together?

The proposal to consolidate the systems under the social security act, known as "universal coverage," is likely to become a major issue before the new 96th Congress, which is expected to bear the brunt of public reaction to the staggering increases in social security taxes voted by the last congress in 1977.

These taxes rose sharply Jan. 1 and will add $19 billion to fiscal 1979's payroll taxes and $22 billion in fiscal 1980. For most workers the true impact of the increases will not come until later in the year, when the deductions, instead of stopping at $17,700 will continue to be taken out of paychecks up to a maximum of $22,900.

The issue of universal coverage almost came to a head in the last congress when the House Ways and Means committee recommended that both private and public workers be brought under the system. The House rejected this recommendation, but congress voted to establish an independent study group to examine the feasibility of universal coverage.

The study group, which now is conducting public hearings, must make its report to congress by the end of 1979.

One of the leading advocates of universal coverage, the chamber of commerce of the United States, believes the plan would have both short and long-term beneficial effects. In the short run, the chamber believes, the infusion of new revenues would permit congress to roll back part of the increases voted by congress in 1977. In the long run, the business group says, the net result would be a more equitable system of protection for all workers with benefits in keeping with lifetime earnings and contributions. Both the social security and public employee systems also would be far better off, in terms of future financing, particularly the public systems which are notoriously underfunded for their future needs.

"We see no reason why any working American should be exempt from supporting and participating in social security which is, in reality, an income transfer system in which today's workers are taxed in order to supplement the incomes of those who have completed their working careers or who are widows, orphans or disabled," a spokesman for the chamber, Richard W. Hutson, said in recent testimony before the study group. Mr. Hutson, a partner in an Illinois employee benefit consultant firm with 500 consultants who work with 2,000 employers, added:

"It should not be a question of whether. . .(but) rather it is one of how it might be promptly extended to everyone, especially members of congress and federal employees, for whom coordinated coverage under social security and existing staff-retirement systems would assure that total benefits are reasonably related to a worker's lifetime earnings and contributions."

Two questions of paramount significance face members of congress as the vital issue of universal coverage heads toward a congressional decision:

Can members of congress who are exempt by virtue of a decision made when social security taxes were a pittance close their eyes to the fact that in today's economy social security taxes will cost many American workers as much as $1,403 for 1979 alone, the maximum tax due from a worker earning $22,900 or more. Members of congress, who earn $57,500 a year, would fall into that class.

Further, since members of congress over the years have not had to share the burden of rapidly increasing social security taxes, they will rise by almost $200 billion in the next decade, can they vote the true desires and best interests of their constituents?

We shall see.

MN. Engineers Honored For New Discovery

Three Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) employees have been honored by the transportation research board (TRB), national academy of science, for a breakthrough in the area of bituminous pavement recycling.

After developing the breakthrough process, the employees authored a paper entitled, "Minnesota Heat Transfer Method for Recycling Bituminous Pavements." The treatise was singled out from about 1,000 papers presented at the transportation research board's annual meeting in Washington, D.C., on January 17. For their efforts, they were presented the K. B. Woods award which is given each year for the best paper in the area of design and construction of transportation facilities.

Mn-DOT employees honored are Richard Ingberg, physical research engineer; Richard Morchinek, support services engineer; and Ronald Cassellius, research assistant. Ingberg originated the idea that resulted in the heat transfer concept.

In the nearly pollution-free, heat transfer process, hot, clean aggregate (gravel or crushed stone) is mixed with old unheated crushed blacktop material. A relatively small amount of new liquid asphalt is then added to help bind the materials together. The mixture produced is used to construct new asphalt pavement.

In 1976, 20,000 tons of recycled asphaltic hot-mix were used in Minnesota on a street construction project in the city of Maplewood. During 1978, 15 times this amount was used on five construction projects. This year, it is projected that 600,000 tons of the mixture will be used on seven construction jobs. In 1980, twice this amount is planned for use in blacktop construction.

In 1978, Minnesota accounted for nearly half the national total of recycled asphalt materials.

The Minnesota heat transfer method has worldwide implications. Since it involves less energy consumption and reuse of existing asphalt and aggregate, this development is most timely in an age requiring conservative use of resources.

List Benefits Of Employing Older Workers

"Profit by experience" is the theme for National Employ the Older Worker week, March 11 to 17. Everyone profits from the experience of middle-aged and older workers.

Repeated studies have shown that by every common measure of job performance older workers are at least as effective as younger people. Studies show that workers hired after the age of 40 tend to attain higher performance ratings within a shorter period of time than do those hired before the age of 30. One survey found that workers reach their peak performance between the ages of 51 and 55; another that they do so between the ages of 56 and 60.

Number of work days lost for all reasons decrease with age. Workers in every age group over 50 years lose fewer scheduled workdays than those in any age group under 50.

—Survey of several thousand clerical workers showed that older employees had a steadier rate output than younger ones; the work of the two groups was equally accurate.

—Comparison of company records showed that production workers aged about 65 had better attendance, health and injury records than workers in the same stablishment averaging 20 years younger.

—Study using precise productivity measures found that older semi-skilled operatives are just as productive as younger ones.

Workers age 45 and over quit their job far less than half as often as younger workers do; they are only half as likely to change jobs as are persons age 25 to 44 years old.

Employers looking for a worker or persons looking for a job should contact the Job Service in person or call 681-1100.

Marshall Co. History Meet Rescheduled

Marshall county historical society has rescheduled its March meeting for Warren at 2 p.m. on Thursday in the courthouse. Last week's meeting was canceled because of bad weather. Interested persons are encouraged to meet with the society board members to discuss the upcoming centennial celebration of the county which will be the main topic of business.

Included on the business agenda will be moving of the Soo Line depot in Warren to the fairgrounds historical site. And ideas for dedication of the newly constructed visitor center adjoining the three turn-of-the-century buildings already on the fairgrounds will be discussed. Nelder Broten, machinery curator for the visitor center, encourages residents with restored antique farm equipment to contact him if they to display their antiques at the old time settlers fair — the mini-fair at the Marshall county fair in July.

Hillman Construction company, the contractor for the visitor center, will resume work on the turn-of-the-century store units this week. Planning for future expansion of the 1900's reconstructed village will be considered at the annual meeting. This summer; in addition to the depot, the old Llewellyn post office from New Solum township will be added to the site.

Nancy Solum and Phyllis Haynes are in the process of contacting folk artists and participants for the crafts portion of the settlers fair. Groups or individuals interested in selling ethnic or old-time foods are asked to contract Jean Larson of Argyle, Solum of Haynes at the county courthouse; they will be assigned food booths on a first come basis. Neil Mattson, society president, has appointed several members-at-large in addition to Larson to assist the society at fairtime.

Area Farmers Receive Top Co-op Awards

At its annual meeting earlier this month in Minneapolis, Land O'Lakes, Inc. presented quality awards of excellence to six of the regional cooperative's top producers and plants who scored high on a specific set of demanding criteria.

Turkey quality award was made to Eldor Lorenson and his wife, Charmaine, of Strathcona, Land O' Lakes producers who raise one flock of turkeys each year on their farm in northwest Minnesota. This marks the third time in the past five years the couple has captured the award.

The award winner is selected on the basis of seven criteria which are designed to provide equal opportunity for both large and small producers. Points are accrued on grade, percentage of condemnation, flock size and sex of turkeys produced.

The Lorensons' birds are processed at the Land O' Lakes plant in Thief River Falls. They purchase their poults from Land O' Lakes and obtain their feed supply from the Land O' Lakes mill in Detroit Lakes.

Grade A milk quality award was made to Robert Brinkman and his wife Dorothy, of Roseau. This marks the second time in three years the couple has captured the award. Their dairy herd is consistently among the top 100 herds in the state.

The Brinkmans have a herd of 40 Holsteins. They milk about 34 head in their tie stall barn which is equipped with a pipeline milker and a 500 gallon bulk tank. Their 1978 herd production average was between 18,000 and 19,000 pounds of milk per cow with an average of 719 pounds of butterfat. The milk is shipped to the Land O' Lakes receiving station at Roseau.

On their 525 acres, they raise oats, wheat and flax. The Brinkmans have been farming on his family's farm all 22 years of their married life.

Plaques of recognition were presented to winners by North Dakota commissioner of agriculture Myron Just and Land O' Lakes senior vice president Art Jepsen.

The awards ceremony was held in downtown Minneapolis March 1 in conjunction with the 58th annual meeting of Land O' Lakes, Inc.

Obey Speed Limit To Save Gas And Lives

American motorists face a new fuel crisis by this spring and summer as gasoline supplies tighten and prices rise, according to state and federal officials.

Gasoline will cost $1 a gallon within a year and drivers can again expect long lines at service stations, due to the disruption of Iranian oil production, predicted Sen. Henry Jackson (D-Wash.) earlier this month.

President Carter has warned that gasoline pumps may be shut down on Sundays to discourage fuel use. And federal gasoline rationing plans are reported to be ready to go into effect if needed.

In Minnesota, motorists will see increased emphasis on the 55 mile per hour speed limit as a major way to conserve gasoline and lives, said Chief James Crawford of the state patrol, a division of the state department of public safety.

"Patrol will step up enforcemment of the 55 speed limit this year in a concerted effort to hold down average highway speeds which have been creeping up gradually in recent years.

"But for the 55 mph speed limit to be effective, law enforcement alone isn't enough. We need the full cooperation of the driving public. All drivers should do their best to voluntarily comply with the posted speed limit," he said.

Driving 55 can make a difference, said Crawford. Cars can get 17-40 per cent better mileage by driving at 55 mph rather than 70. Truck tests show that driving 55 mph gives 27-33 per cent better fuel economy than driving 65 mph.

"Obeying the 55 mph speed limit can also help save lives," he said. "No other single traffic safety measure has shown such impressive success in saving lives."

Minnesota in 1973 experienced one of its highest traffic tolls ever when 1,024 persons died. In 1974, after the 55 mph speed limit came in, the traffic deaths dropped to 852. And in 1975, Minnesota recorded 777 fatalities.

For the United States in 1973, families lost 54,615 men, women and children to vehicle crashes. For 1974, the toll dropped by almost 9,000 — the most dramatic drop in fatilities since World War II.

Crawford said, "The 55 mph speed limit, if drivers actually follow it, is one of the most effective ways to cut the loss of lives in traffic crashes."

ARMY RECRUITER for Pennington, Marshall, Roseau, Kittson and Red Lake counties, Charles T. Stroup, was recently promoted to army staff sergeant. Captain Benny Paulino, commander of the Fargo army recruiting area, presented the sergeant with his new chevrons with the assistance of Stroup's wife, Kristi. Sgt. Stroup joined the army in February of 1974, received his basic training at Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri and airborne parachute training at Fort Benning, Georgia. Prior to becoming a recruiter, he was an army photographer in the 18th Airborne Corps public affairs office at Fort Bragg, N.C. Charles, who lives in St. Hilaire with his wife and daughter, has been a recruiter at the Thief River Falls office since July of 1978.

In this world we experience living and dying. Children fear death, and parents, by avoiding the subject, tend to enlarge the fear. Parents do not know all the answers about death, but with help from the clergy and even the funeral director, frank discussions should take place when children are inquisitive.

Costume originality was epitomized by the Viking at right in the top photo who used a rug for his coat, a woman's wig for his beard, and a plastic waste basket and two oil spouts to create a helmet.

Predict Year Of Growth In 9th Reserve Dist.

Researchers at the Federal Reserve bank of Minneapolis are predicting another year of comfortable growth for the Ninth federal reserve district even if the U.S. economy suffers a mild recession. But according to an article in the winter issue of the bank's "Quarterly Review", they also think inflation will remain fairly high.

Noting that what happens in Minnesota, the Dakotas, Montana, northwestern Wisconsin and Upper Michigan depends a lot on the national economy, the bank's researchers used a regional econometric model to see what effect continued moderate growth or a mild recession in the U.S. economy would have on the district in 1979.

The model showed that if the Minneapolis bank researchers' optimistic forecast is right, and the U.S. economy grows moderately in 1979, the regional economy should match that growth. The 2.1 per cent predicted increase in national employment would mean a 2.3 per cent increase in regional employment in 1979.

If more pessimistic forecasters are right about a U.S. recession, the researchers found that the regional economy will grow somewhat slower in 1979, but it will still grow. Even with two quarters of slightly declining production and essentially no growth in employment nationally, regional employment would still grow 1.2 per cent.

Unfortunately, the researchers said, the inflation outlook is not quite as bright. Everyone seems to expect U.S. inflation to average about eight per cent in 1979. This translates this into regional inflation around 8.5 per cent — much lower than last year's 11.4 per cent, but still uncomfortably high.

Two factors, according to the "Quarterly Review" article, could help make the district resistant to recession.

One is the strong outlook for the district's construction industry. District building activity is not likely to follow a national slide this year. The commercial building boom is likely to carry into 1980, and district residential building, which traditionally lags national downturns, is relatively busy too. The 1979 outlook for regional farm income is also quite good. Nearly all the rural bankers responding to the bank's January survey expected farm incomes in the next three months to be the same as or greater than a year ago.

District livestock farmers are already getting much higher prices than a year ago. Crop farmers may be helped by this winter's bad weather: heavy snow could delay spring planting, but right now it is protecting the winter wheat crop, and it will be providing soil moisture. While district farmers won't necessarily be better off than other farmers in 1979, the researchers said, agriculture contributes a larger share of total income to the district than to the nation as a whole. And farm income generally isn't influenced much by the business cycle, so if the U.S. economy starts to sink into a recession, the ag industry could buoy the district economy.

Heart Attack Victims Needed For Research

Volunteers are urgently needed to help combat America's number one killer, atherosclerosis. This disease is primarily responsible for heart attacks, strokes and related fatal diseases that account annually for some one million deaths or 53 per cent of all deaths in the United States.

National heart, lung and blood institute is conducting a program at three participating medical institutions, including the University of Minnesota, to determine whether lowering blood cholesterol levels will reduce the risk of heart attacks. University is seeking persons 25 through 59 years of age, who have had only one heart attack in the part five years. All such persons are asked to call the University of Minnesota hyperlipidemia study collect at 612-376-4494 for more information.

New Enlistment Bonus Approved For Army Guard

All units of the Minnesota army national guard received Pentagon approval Thursday, to begin payment of bonuses to high school graduates and seniors enlisting in the army guard. Cash bonuses of $1500 or educational assistance of up to $2000 will be offered to new six-year enlistees during a three-month test period, beginning March 15.

The Minnesota Guard, with units in 66 state communities, is now at it's lowest strength since the start of the Vietnam war era. Currently, there are openings for 2,000 additional guard troops in the state.

To qualify for the bonus or educational assistance, young Minnesotans must meet medical and physical requirements for enlistment. Program applies only to new guard members.

Captain Elwyn Kropuenske, army guard state recruiting officer, said the program hopefully will provide a "shot in the arm" for local recruiting efforts. "Guard has always been attractive because of it's schooling and wide variety of skill experiences," he said. "Now we can offer bonuses to help encourage young people who hadn't quite made up their minds." He emphasized that the special bonuses and educational assistance will only be paid through June 15, "with no guarantee that the program will continue beyond that date."

Guard armories across the state can provide additional information on the special program, the first time it's been available statewide in Minnesota.

Inflation Cuts Budget Repairs To Co. Roads

Financial condition of Minnesota's county highway program was described as "shaky" by 59 per cent of the county engineers responding to a January survey conducted by Minnesota Good Roads, Inc. (MGRI).

Sixty-nine of Minnesota's 87 county engineers participated in the survey, according to MGRI president Larry Schaub, county engineer for Stevens and Traverse counties. Of this number, 88 per cent laid the blame for their problems on inflation.

Schaub, in testimony before the Minnesota House Transportation committee, explained that county highway budgets are generally divided between maintenance and construction. County engineers Pat Murphy (Carver county), Earl Welshons (Winona county) and Bernie Lieder (Polk county) echoed Schaub's concern that both maintenance and construction budgets are facing serious problems. Attempts to cut costs by reducing services have not succeeded in keeping maintenance needs in line with dollars available, making it necessary for some counties to transfer money from construction to maintenance.

"Robbing from Peter to pay Paul is not the answer," said Schaub. "The long-range result will be the deterioration of our hard-surfaced roads."

Eighty-four per cent of the engineers reported that more than half of their total budget is funded from the Minnesota road user found or state aid funds, with 16 per cent of the counties deriving the bulk of their budgets from the general mill levy. A referendum to raise the mill levy or state aid bonding were options considered by 44 per cent of the county boards.

An overwhelming percentage of respondents to the survey, 94 per cent, support a variable tax on motor fuels. The gas tax, currently a fixed cents-per-gallon amount, is the primary source of dollars for the road user fund. A variable or ad valorem gas tax, tied to the cost of living, would in effect be "inflation proof." In the last month, both MGRI and the Minnesota County Highway Engineers Association have publicly supported the variable gas tax and the Minnesota legislature is expected to consider a bill during this session.

"From the standpoint of the county road system, we have only two choices," said Schaub. "Either we find the money to do the job or we let the roads revert to gravel, not a very popular choice with the motoring public."

Minnesota Good Roads is an association of 1,500 concerned citizens working together to insure adequate funding to maintain the quality of Minnesota's road system.

Seminar On Rural China Set At UMC

Four authorities on Sino-American relations will headline a penetrating examination of rural mainland China at a seminar on the University of Minnesota — Crookston (UMC) campus. The conference on "Agriculture, Rural Life and Changing Values in China: Implications for Americans" will open on Friday evening, March 16, and continue on Saturday morning and afternoon, March 17. General sessions will convene in Kiehle auditorium and small group discussions will be held in Dowell hall.

Principal speakers for the conference, the first in a series of similar events on various university campuses, include four scholars who have closely studied and personally observed the transformation of traditional cultural and social values in rural Chinese villages.

Opportunities for audience participiaon and small-group input are planned after each presentation.

Conference is being administered by the office of special programs of the University of Minnesota. Further information and forms for pre-registration are available from the local (UMC) conference coordinator, Dr. Richard Christenson (phone number 218 281-6510, ext. 288). Christenson is director of the international student program at UMC.

Girl Scout Week Observed March 11-17

Girl scout week is being observed by the St. Hilaire and Thief River Falls girl scouts March 11-17 with the theme for this year's celebration being "Find the Gift in Every Child." The week's activities will include a banquet Monday night at Redeemer Lutheran church for all brownies, girl scouts and active leaders with an attendance of 250 expected. The banquet will begin at 6:30 p.m. and the program will be built around Girl Scout law.

Broadcasts are also planned on KTRF and cable TV with Knox third grade brownies, Washington 4th grade juniors and cadette troop 72 making appearances. Girl scout troops from Mark Twain elementary are in charge of a display at Northwest regional library.

Associate chairperson of the Thief River Falls girl scout association, Mrs. Jeanne Olson, indicated that the association has an enrollment of 221 girls in the brownie, junior and cadette levels and 40 leaders who work actively with Washington, Northrop, Mark Twain, Knox, St. Hilaire and St. Bernards troops and the cadettes. Eighteen additional adults are registered on troop committees and 11 people serve on the Camp M.O.E. committee. Our Time Is Coming

Looking forward to something that is going to cost us money — probably a lot of money — isn't a very pleasant prospect. For the Thief River Falls school district, however, a substantial outlay of funds for buildings must be considered inevitable. Perhaps we can stall for a few years, but we must look forward with resignation to a large scale building project in the not too distant future.

Let us put to rest right off the bat the idea that local school board or administration is interested in monument building or in saddling the district with any more expense than is prudently necessary. Personally, we have never experienced any of those tendencies in any of the boards or school administrators we have worked with in 25 years in the news business.

More likely, the board and administration would prefer to avoid the issue entirely. Ignoring the problem, however, will not make it go away. We feel this board and administration recognizes the existing situation and has an eye to the future when the trend to decreasing enrollments will be reversed and building space will again become a major problem.

The board should waste no time this summer in proceeding with the removal of the old Washington building. It is a hazard and should be demolished. Most of the rest of the Lincoln complex remains useable, but how much longer the wooden parts of the structures can be expected to hold out is open to question.

Even the "newer" facilities, such as Washington elementary school and the AVTI addition at Lincoln are now 25 years old. Northrop and Knox elementary schools must be considered to have limited life expectancy and both for some years have lacked what we consider in this day and age to be proper heating and ventilation.

Other than removal of old Washington, we know of no plans in the wind for any program involving school construction or replacement. We only wish to call the existing situation to public attention so that it will be given some thought and so that general discussion of building programs, when it does come, will not come as a surprise.

Actually, it is not as bad as it may seem. Our school district's indebtedness is quite low for its size because it has held building to a minimum in recent years. As a result, however, the cost of maintenance and repairs has been fairly high. When the time comes — as it inevitably must — to issue bonds and build buildings, the burden should be softened by the low debt load and the hoped-for reduction of necessary extensive repair.

Curious about our comparative costs, we were able to obtain some statistics. While debt service (repayment of bonds) in the Thief River Falls district is $48 per student, the state average is $84 per student and figures at area schools include $67 at Bemidji (which is considering a major building program), $175 at Crookston, $190 at East Grand Forks and $63 at Roseau.

Maintenance averaged $34 per student at Thief River Falls (compared to a state average of $15 statewide) while operational expense in this district was $158 (compared to $120 statewide).

Thief River Falls district residents have been able to watch in recent years as other districts around us have struggled with school building problems. Some have defeated bond issues a number of times; others have passed them by wide margins. Take notice now: our time is coming.

Speaking Legalese

In the effort to cover all eventualities, legal documents often become quite complicated and difficult to read. Those who prepare legal documents may also have a tendency to follow that format in everyday life, according to Robert Mundheim, general counsel of the U.S. treasury department.

Mundheim notes that the average person who wants to give another person an orange would simply say, "Here's an orange for you." When a lawyer makes the same gift, Mundheim quips, he does it as follows:

"Know all men by these presents that I hereby give, grant, bargain, sell, release, convey, transfer, and quit claim all my right, title, interest, benefit, and use whatever in, of, and concerning this chattel, otherwise known as an orange, or citrus orantium, together with all the appurtenances, thereto of skin, pulp, pip, rind, seeds, and juice for his own use and behoof, to himself and his heirs in fee simple forever, free from all liens, encumbrances, easements, limitations, restraints, or conditions whatsoever, any and all prior deeds, transfers or other documents whatsoever, now or anywhere made to the contrary notwithstanding, will full power to bite, cut, suck, or otherwise eat the same orange or to give away the same, with or without its skin, pulp, pip, rind, seeds, or juice."

TRF In The News

Thief River Falls made the Chicago Sun-Times in mid-February, if only in a letter to the editor by one Oliver Goldsmith.

"There was one bright spot in the city's bungling snow operation," he wrote. "It came from the imported men who really knew how to remove snow. The fellow who worked our street, from Thief River Falls, Minn., removed more snow in one hour than the city chaps had between Jan. 1 and Feb. 6.

"Soon it will be April, and we won't forget the follies perpetrated by our public servants during the winter of '79 when we go to the polls to vote for mayor."

Yes, Thief River Falls people should know how to remove snow — there has been plenty of experience gained this winter and the end has not yet arrived.

Worldwide "Alcohol Problem"

Following editorial is from the Christian Science Monitor:

A new study in Britain and a vote by the Massachusetts House of Representatives to raise the legal drinking age to 21 provide strong reminders of the very real struggle being waged in many countries to curb what is generally called "the alcohol problem." In Britain whiskey consumption is reported to have quadrupled as its price has dropped as a percentage of disposable personal income.

Among the findings by the Royal College of Psychiatrists are that at least 300,000 Britons have a "serious alcohol problem," and that the number of arrests for drunkenness and the medical costs stemming from alcoholism and alcohol-related road accidents have soared. They come on the heels of reports that the Soviet Union too is seeking to combat alcoholism and the consumption of hard liquor. Various Soviet studies have cited that alcoholism annually costs the Soviet Union at least 10 per cent of its sorely needed production.

Similar concern about the destructive impact of liquor consumption has been voiced in Sweden and France as well as in the United States. Massachusetts is the latest of several states to move toward raising the legal drinking age amid rising concern over increasing alcohol problems in high schools and over the number of highway fatalities linked to teenage drinking.

A recent Gallup poll of American teenagers found that nearly one in five surveyed called liquor a major cause of trouble in his or her family. The US Marine Corps, concerned about excessive drinking, has taken steps to curb liquor consumption on its bases.

The most effective role for government in curbing alcohol abuse may be open to debate. Regulation of sales and higher prices through taxes are among the options. For political reasons, taxes on liquor in Britain have not risen as much as they have on other items, and the new study argues persuasively for, at a minimum, keeping liquor prices up with the cost of living. But there can be little doubt that keeping the legal drinking age at 18 only encourages more teen-age drinking and provides the "connection" for high-school youngsters under 18 to obtain liquor.

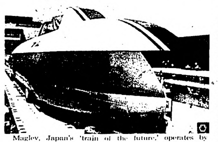
Liquor is a poor social crutch at any age, and the best place to start a campaign against its subtle and destructive influence on family and society is in the home; parents should set the proper example of pursuing higher and more lasting values than those embodied in alcohol dependency. The TV networks and movie producers who constantly hold up the deplorable example of liquor as an integral and necessary part of "average" family life are not helping.

The US Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms has launched a public education campaign to alert the public to medically proclaimed health hazards of too much alcohol. It reportedly is considering a requirement for warning labels on liquor as well. Such steps might help alert a too complacent society to the seriousness of the "alcohol problem."

Borrowed Nonsense:

One man to another: "I knew I was in trouble the day after I got married when my wife's mother and father sent me a thank-you note."

Japan's Super Fast Magnetic Train



Maglev, Japan's 'train of the future,' operates by means of magnetism. The wheels touch the rail only when the Maglev starts or stops. During normal operation the vehicle floats above the rail. Japan's National Railways began research on the revolutionary vehicle in 1962. Last year the Government took over the project, pledging an investment of $500 million over the next six years. It is expected that the Maglev will be in operation in seven or eight years.

At a test run last summer, the new train reached a record speed of 337 kilometers per hour (more than 200 miles per hour). Researchers predict that the train will soon reach a speed of 500 kilometers, or more than 300 miles per hour. At this high speed, the Maglev would be able to make the journey between Tokyo and Osaka, Japan's two largest cities, in a little more than one hour. The new trains produce virtually no noise or vibration because they do not make contact with the rails over which they travel. This feature, coupled with the Maglev's speed and smooth ride, will make it the ideal vehicle for future inter-city travel.

Dieselhol Is Not Feasible For Farm Use

Using a blend of grain alcohol (ethanol) and diesel oil to power farm tractors is not feasible technically nor economically, say scientiests at the University of Minnesota.

Agricultural engineers John Strait, J.J. Boedicker and Kevin Johansen used various dieselhol blends to operate farm tractors doing field work and diesel engines in a laboratory. All engines were unmodified. They found that with dieselhol, fuel consumption increased, horsepower decreased, engines were noisier and the fuel did not burn as well.

"No performance characteristic of the diesel engine was improved with dieselhol," Strait adds. "There appears to be no valid technical reason to recommend that farmers use the mixture in their tractor engines to replace diesel oil."

A team of university economists also finds that dieselhol is not economically feasible, even when fuel consumption is assumed to be the same as diesel oil. Since consumption is higher for dieselhol, the blend is even less feasible.

The engineers say that absolute ethanol (200 proof) and diesel oil could be mixed at cropping season temperatures without fuel separation. If water is present, spearation is likely to occur.

Strait advises that it is possible dieselhol with 10 per cent ethanol (200 proof) can be used in tractors during the cropping season, "providing the mixture is kept essentially free of water and the owner is willing to assume the risk of possible accelerated wear of the engine cylinder surfaces and fuel injection system components."

Two Ford 7600 diesel tractors rated at 84 horsepower were tested performing a variety of farm operations. One was run on a blend with 10 per cent ethanol and 90 per cent diesel oil. The other burned 100 per cent diesel oil.

Tractors performed duplicate tasks from June 12 through mid-October at the university's North Central experiment station at Grand Rapids. Fuel consumption records were kept on nearly a daily basis.

For almost every task performed, fuel consumption of the tractor burning dieselhol exceeded that of the tractor running on diesel oil. In most cases, the difference exceeded 10 per cent.

In the laboratory, the engineers tested the fuels on a 1978 John Deere 219-cubic-inch engine and a 1962 Ford 172 cubic-inch engine. Engines are not modified nor adjusted in any way.

Fuel consumption was measured in terms of the amount of work done. For all load conditions, the amount of work done per gallon of fuel decreased as the ethanol content increased. Decrease was greater with lighter loads.

'U'M Receives $50,000 Farm Safety Grant

A one-year, $50,000 pilot project to develop educational training packages for agricultural safety and health has been awarded to the University of Minnesota agricultural extension service.

U.S. department of labor's occupational safety and health administration (OSHA) grant will also fund training workshops for agricultural educators throughout the state. At these workshops county extension agents, vocational agriculture teachers and others will gain technical information and presentation ideas to aid in using the safety and health packages.

"We hope this program will help agricultural educators fit additional safety and health training into their existing programs," says Robert Aherin, extension safety specialist. "With their help, this loss prevention information should reach thousands of agricultural workers."

Farm safety demonstrations are also planned. They will be open to the public.

Project's ultimate goal is to cut the high agricultural accident rate in Minnesota. Project may become a model for other state agricultural safety programs.

OSHA recently awarded grants totaling $6.4 million to 86 non-profit business, employee and educational organizations for devloping stronger job safety and health programs in high hazard industries. "OSHA hopes this new approach will strike a balance between safety education and regulation," Aherin explains.

Land O' Lakes Sales Reach $1.49 Billion

Land O'Lakes, Inc., the Minneapolis-based farmer cooperative, reports sales in 1978 at $1.49 billion, up six per cent from a year earlier. Net margins jumped 59 per cent to more than $28 million. In 1977, Land O'Lakes' sales totaled $1.4 billion and margins $17.7 million.

Patronage equities paid in cash to members in 1978 totaled $9.3 million. Payment included $4.5 million, representing 30 per cent of the allocated margins for 1977, and $4.8 million for the revolvement of the cooperative's oldest outstanding patronage equities and the settlement of estates.

Commenting on the cash payment, Land O'Lakes president Ralph Hofstad said, "The decision to return this amount to members clearly indicates the board of directors' concern about meeting the cash requirements of the members, while recognizing also their needs for increased marketing and supply services which require additional investments by Land O'Lakes in plants, receivables and inventories."

The yearly financial report was made to the cooperative's membership February 28, on the opening day of the three day Land O'Lakes annual meeting at the Radisson hotel in Minneapolis. Nearly 3,000 farmer-owners and managers of member cooperatives from six upper midwest states attended the meeting.

In the past business year, the cooperative invested $29 million in new additions and equipment to serve members' anticipated farm production and food marketing requirements. Largest amount expended — $11.4 million — was for the acquisition of the property, plant and equipment of Spencer Foods, Inc. which has beef processing plants in Spencer, Ia. and Schuyler, Neb. That purchase in October, 1978, marked Land O'Lakes' entry into the red meats business. Land O'Lakes also invested over $8 million in interregional cooperatives last year, resulting in total 1978 investments in future services of more than $37 million.

Land O'Lakes is owned by 862 member cooperatives and 8,670 individual farmer stockholders. Over the past 10 years it has made cash distributions to its member-owners in excess of $96 million. Assets are $453 million.

Offer Farmers Certification Training Course

A four-hour training course for farmers who have not previously completed the requirements for private pesticide applicator certification is being offered by the Pennington county extension service on Thursday, March 22 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the courthouse meeting room.

The course, taught by county extension director Terry Courneya, will provide those attending with a certificate that verifies completion of the environmental protection agency requirements to enable them to purchase restricted use chemicals for pest control in crops and livestock. An example of a chemical on the list for restricted use is lindane which is commonly used in seed treatment for wire worms and external parasite control in livestock.

President regulations call for renewing the certification every three years.

Safety Belts Need Proper Maintenance

Safety belts need regular inspections and maintenance to keep them in top condition to withstand the sudden, severe stress of a vehicle crash, said Chief James Crawford of the state patrol, part of the Minnesota department of public safety.

"Too often safety belts are taken for granted, even by the minority of drivers (less than 20 per cent nationwide) who consistently buckle up. Hazard is that the belts can become so worn that they may break away in a collision."

Periodically, check the condition of all your safety belts, not just the one for the driver's seat, said Crawford. "If the belts show damage or signs of weakening, install replacements as soon as possible."

For replacement belts, he advised using seatbelt assemblies that comply with current federal motor vehicle safety standards. These replacement belts should be available through an authorized dealer handling you make of vehicle.

Weak spots can develop when belts are pinched in car doors, abraded by seat edges, or corroded by salt, grease and road grime.

"In Minnesota, de-icing chemicals are also rough on safety belt anchor points," said Crawford. "Look for weakened anchorages which might pull loose in a crash. If you see serious rusting or other defects around the anchors, have these points reinforced or replaced."

Consider Phone Location When Doing Building

If you're building a new home, remodeling or planning a room addition, Northwestern Bell suggests you take the location of phone outlets into consideration when making your plans.

Al Bacon, manager, said the best time to pre-wire a home for phone service is after the rough-in electrical work is completed and before the sheetrock or plaster is placed.

"If you call us a week or so before the electrical work is due to be completed, we'll dispatch a technician to pre-wire a home for phone service and install outlets, at the right time," the manager said. "There is no charge for this service."

Before the technician arrives, the exact location of each outlet should be indicated, including the distance from the floor. Northwestern Bell has stickers that can be used for this purpose. However, a piece of paper or any marking device may be used.

"We recommend one outlet in every room," the manager said. "It is not necessary to activate each outlet initially but the additional outlets allow for adding phones or changing locations of phones."

The only cost to a new home builder is an installation charge that is made at the time each outlet is activated and phones are installed.

Pre-wiring during the construction stage eliminates the need to cut holes in walls after the home is completed and makes for a cleaner appearance.

Blood Pressure Clinics Reveal Hypertension

An estimated 336,000 Minnesotans currently have hypertension, approximately half of whom are not aware of their disease. Significant numbers of these people do not exhibit early symptoms, but all are susceptible to stroke, kidney damage, coronary heart disease, a greatly increased risk of a heart attack and a very reduced risk of recovery from a coronary.

Goal of a community hypertension control program is to identify the possible hypertensives in the community so that they may be referred for medical evaluation and care.

If detected early enough hypertension can be treated and controlled through proper medical management. Primary target group for detection is in the age range from 18 to 65.

Blood pressure clinics are offered in the Inter-County nursing service office in the Pennington county courthouse in Thief River Falls the first and third Wednesday of each month from 10:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

That was an outstanding show put on by Roseau and Thief River Falls Friday in the championship game of the 1979 Section 8 high school hockey tournament. The Rams, with standout Aaron Broten scoring twice, won it 4-2 over the Prowlers, hampered by a shoulder separation suffered by captain Scott Sabo in a 5-1 semifinal victory over Fergus Falls Tuesday.

"Not having Sabo at full strength really hurt us," admitted Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand. Even playing hurt Sabo drew admiration from the likes of Tom Yelle of "Let's Play Hockey." A healthy Sabo might have matched Broten.

However, Aaron is obviously an outstanding hockey player. "His style is a lot different than the average hockey player," mentioned Roseau coach Gary Hokanson. "He can control the play — speed it up or slow it down — whenever he wants to."

It was, however, the best Section 8 championship game in several years (Roseau winning 8-1 over Fergus Falls in 1978 and 9-2 over Mount St. Benedict in 1977), and it was maybe the closest Thief River Falls' frustrated hockey program has come to landing a coveted state tournament berth since the Prowlers edged Duluth East 2-1 in the now extinct Region 3 "back door" playoff game in 1965 at Hibbing after a 3-1 loss to Roseau in the Region 8 championship game.

Thief River Falls did reach the Region 8 finals in 1974, but Bemidji's strong defensive club controlled things that night en route to a 2-0 win. Second period slap shots by Andy Kannenberg and Bill Himmelright won it for the Lumberjacks that night, with goalie Jeff Wizner earning the shutout.

The Prowlers challenged the Rams for a full 45 minutes Friday, before an open goal by Glen daMota in the final seven seconds decided the issue.

"We're all done," sighed Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand, "but we stretched it as long as we could."

Miscellaneous

+Five Northland community college players were named to the 1978 MJCAA Northern Division academic football honor squad announced last week. Runningback Mike Wiebolt, linebackers Don Dicken and Murray Semanko and defensive linemen Joe Ranum and Ed Vatthauer were the Northmen selected. To be eligible players had to carry a 10-credit fall quarter class schedule and have a 3.0 or B accumulative average. Vatthauer is from Plummer, while the others are Lincoln high school graduates. Twenty-four players were named to the squad.

+Ralph Anderson of the Detroit Lakes Tribune reports that Detroit Lakes high school hockey coach Ken Anderson "who reportedly is under fire in some circles despite an excellent (16-7) season, deserves congratulations for a job well done, as does the entire Laker team. The 1978-79 season certainly will be remembered as one of the best in Detroit Lakes high school hockey history."

+After his team lost to Roseau 3-0 in the Section 8 high school hockey tournament semifinals, Detroit Lakes coach Ken Anderson told the Detroit Lakes Tribune, "If you had taken (Aaron) Broten away from them, we were about their equal. We just didn't have that one player who could take the bull by the horns and put the game away." Anderson called Broten "by far the best forward I've seen this year."

+Cliff Morlan expects the Bemidji high school girls basketball team to repeat its Region 8AA Sub Region 4 championship performance again next winter. "I don't see Crookston, East Grand Forks or Thief River Falls as any threat in Sub Region 4 next season," he wrote following the Lumberjills 43-23 title game victory over the Prowlers Wednesday.

+An all-opponent team selected by members of the Northland community college basketball squad included Dave Trost, Golden Valley Lutheran; Jeff Erickson, Lake Region; Jon Olsen, Brainerd; Todd Audio, Vermilion; and Tim Olson, Mesabi. The Northmen said their toughest opponents were Golden Valley Lutheran, Lake Region and Mesabi.

District 31 Title Game Is Slated Tonight

Warren will play Fisher tonight (Monday) at Stephen in the weather-delayed District 31 tournament championship game to complete the field for the 1979 Region 8A girls high school basketball tournament scheduled to be held Thursday and Friday at Newfolden.

First round Region 8A games Thursday will have District 29 champion Akeley playing either Warren or Fisher at 7 p.m., with District 30 winner Fertile-Beltrami facing District 32 representative Hallock at 8:30.

District 29

Bagley defeated Nevis 46-36 in Saturday's consolation game.

Fertile-Beltrami repeated as District 30 champion with a 54-46 title game win over Fosston Friday at Mahnomen.

Fellowship of Christian Athletes, Plummer Hartz and Northwestern Hospital failed to make the playoff field.

Games are scheduled for 7 and 8:30 p.m. tonight. Spectators are welcome.

AN EASY goal was the prize for Roseau wing Aaron Broten (10) when Thief River Falls goalie Bill Jury was caught out of the net in the second period of Friday's Section 8 high school hockey tournament championship game. Thief River Falls defenseman Joe Dee (7) couldn't get to Broten in time to stop the goal, his second of the game. The Rams beat the Prowlers 4-2.

Rams Hold Off TRF At Start, Win Section 8 Hockey Title 4-2

On the Chinese calendar this is the year of the Ram. It's also the year of the Ram in northwestern Minnesota as the Roseau Rams earned a Minnesota state high school hockey tournament berth with a hard-earned 4-2 Section 8 championship game win over Thief River Falls Friday.

But, then, it was also the year of the Ram in these parts in 1946-47-53-55-57-58-59-61-62-63-64-65-66-67-68-69-71-75-77. That's 20 Region 8-Section 8 titles for Roseau in the 35-year history of the tournament. Thief River Falls was gunning for its first championship trophy since 1960.

"It was a game effort by the underdog Prowlers who put heavy pressure on the Rams at the start, but failed to score. They then ended up playing catch-up hockey most of the night.

"That's been a recurring problem for us all year," reported Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand. "We had some exceptional opportunities early. And being an underdog like we were, when you get those opportunities like we did you have to take advantage of them."

Best of those early chances came in the opening seconds of play when Bob Fitzgerald's backhand slid to a stop a mere inches short of the goal line, near the right post, behind Roseau goalie Jim Pelowski with just 18 seconds gone.

Roseau recovered from the early Thief River Falls attack to score at 3:20 of the first period as center Glen daMota won a face-off just to the left of Thief River Falls goalie Bill Jury, getting the puck to Aaron Broten who quickly rapped it past Jury.

"I felt fortunate we came out of the first two minutes without being scored upon," admitted Roseau coach Gary Hokanson. "We were really tight. You could see it."

Thief River Falls gained a 1-1 tie at 8:24 of the second period when Tom Bjorkman's long rising wrist shot sailed over Pelowski's left shoulder.

That tie didn't last long, though, as the Rams, as so often is their custom, responded almost immediately. Predictably it was Broten who happened to be in the right place at the right time to rebuild the one-goal Roseau lead just 63 seconds later. It was a defensive blunder by the Prowlers who covered Billy Yon with two men but left Broten all alone on the right side. Yon slipped his starry wing the puck and he had the easiest of goals since Jury was also busy watching Yon and was not in position to offer even token resistance to Broten who had several seconds to savor the moment before shooting.

It became 3-1 late in the second period when Thief River Falls had trouble clearing the puck out of its own end. Yon scored by lifting up a backhand at 13:42 after Jury had stopped Broten's stuff try from behind.

The filled-to-capacity East Grand Forks arena was turned on when Thief River Falls pulled within 3-2 on Fitzgerald's quick shot from in front at 5:32.

From that point on, every stoppage of play — toward the end every little lull in the action — an arena full of eyes focused on the scoreboard clock.

The tension didn't break until daMota iced the decision with an open net goal at 14:53. A flurry of activity centered around Pelowski as the loudspeaker announced "One minute remaining in the game." However, the Prowlers weren't able to get Jury off the ice in favor of an extra attack until a mere 11 seconds remained. And it took daMota just four seconds to capitalize on the situation as he once again won a key face-off — this time just outside the Roseau blueline — and put a long shot from center ice into the open net to complete a seven-point night for his line.

Thief River Falls out only 12 shots on goal — just two in both the second and third periods — but Hokanson praised the work of Pelowski who gave up just three goals in three Section 8 tournament games.

"We're getting excellent goaltending," said Hokanson. "Maybe not many saves, but some key ones. And without a doubt, we're getting a lot of help from our defensemen. They're clearing the puck; only allowing one shot."

Jury finished with 28 saves, 14 in the second period.

Roseau will take a 21-2 record into this week's state tournament where the Rams will take on Section 7 champion Grand Rapids in Thursday afternoon's opening round play. Thief River Falls ended the year 16-7.

TOP INDIVIDUAL performers in Friday's Section 8 high school hockey tournament championship Friday at East Grand Forks were Aaron Broten (10) of Roseau and Scott Sabo (18) of Thief River Falls. Broten, trying to skate around Sabo here, scored twice to lead the Rams past the Prowlers 4-2.

Jury Named To 1978-79 Section 8 Hockey Team

Junior goaltender Bill Jury of Thief River Falls was named to the 1978-79 Section 8 high school hockey all section team by a vote of coaches conducted by KTRF radio.

Forwards on the annual post-season honor squad include seniors Aaron Broten of Roseau and Mark Perreault of Crookston, along with junior Eddie Christian of Warroad.

The first team defensemen were senior Steve Lundeen of Fergus Falls and junior Mark Huglen of Roseau.

Jury finished the 1978-79 regular season schedule with a 2.9 goals against average. Playing in all 20 Thief River Falls games, he faced an even 500 shots, allowing 56 goals for a 90 per cent save figure.

Christian finished the regular season with 35 goals, 22 assists and 57 points, Perreault 29 goals, 25 assists and 54 points, and Broten [illegible] goals, 24 assists and 53 points.

The bluеliners also showed a penchant for scoring as Huglen finished with 20 goals, 16 assists and 36 points and Lundeen scored 17 goals, [illegible] assists and 35 points.

Broten was the only first team repeater from a year ago. Lundeen was a second team selection in 1977-78.

Named to the second team were goalie Jim Pelowski of Roseau; defensemen Matt Baab of Mount St. Benedict and Kyle Young of Bemidji; and forwards Scott Sabo of Thief River Falls, Bob Landry of Detroit Lakes and Dennis LaCoursiere of Red Lake Falls.

Receiving honorable mention honors were Dave Geatz, TRF; John Brekken, MSB; Eric Olson and Chris O'Neil, Brainerd; Scott Pieper and Darryl Hanson, Lake of the Woods; Bob Clausen, Crookston; Howard Beito, Hallock; Bucky Hajostek, Moorhead; Mark Cole, Fergus Falls; and Glen daMota, Roseau.

TRF 400-Yard Freestyle Relay State Qualifier

Fergus Falls Depth Wins Section 3 Swimming Meet

Thief River Falls' 400-yard freestyle relay team of Bruce Storhaug, Jon Pinkerton, Dave Beito and Kevin Murphy qualified for the 1979 Minnesota state high school swimming meet with a runner-up finish Saturday in the final event of the Section 3 swimming and diving championships held at Bemidji State University.

Those four Prowlers, after swimming a school record 3:28.43 in Friday's prelims, turned in a 3:26.58 in Saturday's finals for a second place finish behind Fergus Falls' 3:24.10.

Top two finishers in each event, plus the top four divers, qualified for the state meet scheduled to be held Friday and Saturday at the University of Minnesota Cooke Hall pool in Minneapolis.

That last relay win was the only Fergus Falls first place finish. But as expected, the Otters used their superior depth to win the team title, finishing with 257 points. Alexandria was a surprising second with 187 points, followed by Brainerd 185, Fosston 149, Thief River Falls 127, Bemidji 123, Staples 61, Sauk Centre 36, Little Falls 29, Park Rapids 16, Moorhead 15, Melrose 14 and Detroit Lakes 10.

There were nine new Section 3 meet records set, with another mark being tied. That left only one existing standard unscathed during the two-day meet.

There were three double event winners in Cal and Cahill Collins of Alexandria and Eric Rustad of Fosston.

Cal Collins won the 200-yard freestyle in 1:49.38 after swimming a record 1:48.48 in the prelims and then won the 500-yard freestyle in a record 4:58.32. Cahil Collins set a record in winning the 200-yard individual medley in 2:05.91 and also won the 100-yard butterfly in 56.17. Rustad took the 50-yard freestyle in 22.75 after matching his own record 22.37 in the prelims and also won the 100-yard freestyle in 48.98, failing to better his own mark of 48.66.

Alexandria also won the 200-yard medley relay to finish with five victories.

Scott Daniels joined Rustad as a Fosston winner by swimming the 100-yard backstroke in a record 58.83.

Brainerd had two winners in Matt Vrudny with a record 1:02.97 in the 100-yard backstroke and diver Tim Frazer with a record 369.35 points.

The meet's other record went to Steve Irgens of Alexandria who swam a 55.51 in the 100-yard butterfly prelims, but finished second to Cahil Collins in the finals with a 56.45.

Storhaug made the butterfly one of the meet's best races with a 56.52, a school record that was just a fraction short of beating Irgens for a state meet berth.

Thief River Falls coach John Kopari said he was "really happy" with the performances turned in by the Prowlers. "I think just about everybody swam their best times. The only disappointment was that they weren't able to place higher. But the Competition was just so terribly keen."

DNR Meeting Will Be Held Here April 16

A Department of Natural Resources public information meeting to discuss possible regulations for the 1979 hunting and trapping seasons will be held April 16 at 7:30 p.m. in the Thief River Falls city auditorium.

It'll be one of ten DNR meetings that will be held throughout the state in April to give Minnesota citizens an opportunity to express their views on the status of game animals and the kinds of regulations they would like to see implemented during the fall seasons.

Other meetings are planned April 3 at Rochester, April 4 New Ulm, April 5 Carlton, April 9 Bemidji, April 10 Little Falls, April 11 Fergus Falls, April 17 Grand Rapids, April 18 Minneapolis and April 27 St. Paul.

New Licenses Are Needed By Sportsmen

Department of Natural Resources reminded sportsmen today that their 1978 hunting, fishing and trapping licenses expired Feb. 28 and they need new licenses to pursue these activities starting March 1.

The department's "license year" is March 1 to March 1, so that 1979 licenses purchased now will be valid until March 1 of 1980.

Bemidji 43-23 Title Game Winner Over Lincoln Girls

When a poor shooting team faces a strong rebounding team, the latter will most likely be a winner. That was the case Wednesday as the Bemidji high school girls beat Thief River Falls 43-23 in the championship game of the 1979 Region 8AA Sub Region 4 basketball tournament played at East Grand Forks.

Thief River Falls shot just 24 per cent and Bemidji built a 34-15 rebound advantage to land a berth in this week's Region 8AA tournament in St. Cloud with a 15-4 record. The Prowlers finished the year 8-12, which included three losses to Bemidji where the Lumberjills out-scored them 161-86.

"Like I said before the game, in order for us to win we'd have to shoot 40 per cent, and we didn't," pointed out Thief River Falls coach Sylvia Sjoberg.

Bemidji began the game with a 10-0 lead. Thief River Falls didn't get on the scoreboard until Pam Kotschevar hit a short turnaround jumper from the lane with 1:54 remaining in the first quarter that ended 10-2.

The Prowlers played the Lumberjills even in the second quarter, but that's not good enough when you're facing an eight-point deficit. Bemidji came out of the first half with a 23-14 lead that climbed to 33-20 in the third quarter.

Thief River Falls' zone defense, set up to stop 5-10 Bemidji center Linda Iverson, worked well as the Prowlers limited the talented sophomore to just four points. However, guard Kathy Kirkvold more than picked up the slack with a hot hand from the outside that produced 17 points.

"We were trying to sag on Iverson and it left us open on top," acknowledged Sjoberg. "I was afraid that (Kirkvold's scoring) would happen. She's an awfully good shooter."

Forward Ellen Prigge also found enough gaps in the Thief River Falls zone to score 14 points. Kotschevar and Kathy Beito scored eight points apiece for Thief River Falls. Beito, a 5-8 junior, played well in place of starting center Julie Easton who picked up her third foul with a 1:10 remaining in the first quarter and didn't return to the game until the start of the final period.

Thief River Falls made 10 of 42 goal attempts for its 24 per cent shooting figure. Bemidji connected on 21 of 51 shots for 41 per cent. The Prowlers were 3-for-6 at the free throw line where the Lumberjills were 1-for-6. The two teams split 30 turnovers.

Turkey Hunt Winners Have Been Notified

Successful applicants for licenses to hunt turkeys this spring in Minnesota have all been notified by the Department of Natural Resources.

In other words, said officials, if you applied for a license but haven't been notified that your name was selected in the drawing — forget it.

There were more than 11,000 applicants for the 840 licenses to be issued for this year's hunt. Names of the winners were chosen through a computerized drawing.

Record Brook Trout Stricken By State DNR

A brook trout listed as Minnesota's state record at nine pounds has been stricken from the record book by the Department of Natural Resources.

The fish was reported to have been caught in 1959 by Frank House of Ray in the Ash river, located in northern St. Louis county.

"Further investigation into the supposed catch of this fish revealed that neither the species or the weight was confirmed by anyone competent to do so," said fisheries supervisor Charles Burrows," and none of the sources of information actually witnessed the catch or the fish."

"As a result, we are now listing a five-pound, seven-ounce brook trout caught by Byron Lynn in 1946 in the Isabella river as the state's official record for this species."

Last year, the DNR announced that a previously declared record muskellunge of 56.9-pounds caught in Lake of the Woods in 1931 was discovered to have been taken in Canadian waters.

Its place in the record book was taken by a 54-pound specimen known to have been caught by Art Lyons of Bena in Lake Winnibigoshish in 1957.

Hallock — Grygla

Laura Nordling sank a long base line jump shot with just three seconds remaining in a three-minute overtime period to lift Hallock over Grygla 33-31 Thursday in the District 32 semifinals.

It was the only scoring of the overtime after the two teams played to a 31-31 tie in regulation time.

Grygla led 8-6 at the end of the first quarter and was ahead 16-11 at halftime before falling behind 25-24 in the third quarter.

Jill Saurdiff of Grygla and Joy Pearson of Hallock both finished with 10 points.

Grygla shot 55 per cent from the field (14-for-25), but "we didn't take enough shots," said head coach Bill Raduenz. "We had our opportunities to win it, but we couldn't put it away."

Karlstad — MCC

Karlstad overcame a 23-18 third quarter deficit to edge Marshall County Central 32-30 in District 32 semifinals Thursday.

Vickie and Gaylene Hjelle scored 14 and 10 points, respectively, for the winners while Denise Stokke and Jill Johnson scored 10 points apiece for the Nordics who led 6-4 at the end of the first quarter and enjoyed a 15-10 halftime lead.

Grygla — MCC

In two overtimes, Grygla claimed the District 32 consolation trophy with a 35-34 win over host Marshall County Central Friday.

Grygla led 6-3 and 16-12 at the first two quarter stops. Marshall County Central went ahead 23-22 in the third quarter but it was tied 30-30 at the end of regulation time and it remained deadlocked, 32-32, after one three-minute overtime.

Grygla's Sherri Anderson, with 10 points, was the game's only double figure scorer.

The Eagles ended the year 17-3. The Nordics finished 11-11.

Gas Fumes Can Be A Hazard For Campers

More Minnesota families enjoy winter camping each year. Ice houses, back packing tents, pick-up campers and trailers are commonly used with an ever-widening array of recreational heaters.

Normally safe, these heaters can be hazardous if used in a tightly enclosed atmosphere. Just like your furnace or fireplace at home, these heaters need oxygen from the air to burn properly. Without fresh air, carbon monoxide gas, an odorless poison can be produced.

Already this year several Minnesotans have died in enclosures so tightly sealed that the heater produced carbon monoxide.

Surest way to protect against carbon monoxide (CO) is to read the heater manufacturer's instructions. Open the doors, a window or a tent flap for adequate fresh air. Never use charcoal as a heat source indoors.

For more information on carbon monoxide safety, write the Minnesota Safety Council at 145 Hamm Building, St. Paul, Minnesota 55102.

"Gave me the practical skills I needed to get started!"

Seth Schmidt, who is the news editor of the Cottonwood County Citizen in Windom, says this about the Annual Newspaper Skills Course:

"I have a history degree, but I think my graduation from the 1975 Newspaper Skills Course meant more to my publisher when he hired me than my four years in college."

"I'm glad I have that degree, but the NSC was what I needed to get started. It gave me the practical skills I needed to get into newspaper work. I recommend that anybody who has a vague idea that he or she would like newspaper work but lacks the skills should apply for the course."

Seth is one of about 90 students who has taken the course and who has found a job on a newspaper.

This summer, from June 4 to June 29, the Minnesota Newspaper Association will conduct its 11th annual Newspaper Skills Course at the Anoka-Hennepin Area Vo-Tec School.

MNA will also conduct an Advertising Skills Course and a Photography Skills Course simultaneously on July 9-13 at Anoka AVTI.

To qualify for the NSC you need [1] a high school diploma, [2] successfully to pass several literacy tests, [3] the ability to type at least 35 words a minute, and most importantly [4] a deep and serious interest in newspaper work.

Cost of the course is $60 for Minnesota residents, plus a fee for supplies. Students will be required to have their own 35mm single lens reflex camera w/ self contained light metering system for the NSC and PSC. Scholarship loans are available.

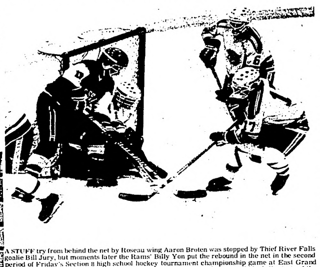
WITH HELP from defenseman Dave Geatz (4), Thief River Falls goalie Bill Jury was able to stop Roseau wing Billy Yon (7) even though defenseman Mark Huglen of the Rams was draped all over the netminder during Friday's championship game in the 1979 Section 8 high school hockey tournament played at East Grand Forks. Roseau won the game and the title 4-2.



A STUFF try from behind the net by Roseau wing Aaron Broten was stopped by Thief River Falls goalie Bill Jury, but moments later the Rams' Billy Yon put the rebound in the net in the second period of Friday's Section 8 high school hockey tournament championship game at East Grand Forks. Trying unsuccessfully to clear the puck were Todd Trickle (17) and Mark Huot (6) of the Prowlers. The Rams beat the Prowlers 4-2.

Beaver Trapping Season Will Open March 17

A beaver trapping season will be held in Minnesota this spring, the Department of Natural Resources announced. The season will open March 17 and will close April 30 statewide except for the Mississippi river south of Hastings. The otter trapping season will be closed.

Because of an early winter with deep snow, very few beaver were taken during the winter season. Therefore, some additional harvest is necessary, officials said.

Federal waterfowl production areas in Ottertail, Grant and Douglas counties will also be closed. Closed, too, will be all state parks and Voyageurs national park.

Trapping in most state-owned game refuges and wildlife management areas will require a permit from a state game manager. Permits will also be required to trap within the Tamarac and Agassiz national wildlife refuges. The other national wildlife refuges will be closed.

Beaver may be taken by traps between the hours of 6 a.m. and 6 p.m. and there is no limit on the number that may be taken during the season.

Trappers are reminded that all beaver licenses for the spring season must be purchased on or before March 19. Trappers are also reminded to keep their licenses because they will be valid until February 29, 1980, and there may be a winter season next year.

Hopefully, said officials, trapping conditions next winter will be better and a spring season will not be necessary in the forested part of the state.

Officials cautioned beaver trappers that there are many rules and regulations governing trapping and that they should become familiar with them before setting their traps. Copies of the commissioner's order setting forth the regulations have been distributed to county auditors, to state conservation officers and to DNR field offices.

TIGHT DEFENSE by Bemidji's Linda Iverson (55) and Ellen Prigge trapped Thief River Falls forward Roberta Engel during Wednesday's Region 8AA Sub Region 4 girls high school basketball tournament championship game played at East Grand Forks. The Lumberjills beat the Prowlers 43-23.

Federal Programs Aim To Save Disappearing Wetlands In U.S.

This year marks the 50th anniversary of the migratory bird conservation act. Enacted by Congress on February 18, 1929, the act established a migratory bird conservation commission to review and approve proposals for the purchase or lease of land and water areas as refuges for migratory birds.

Two conservation-minded agencies, the U.S. Department of the interior's (USDI) Fish and Wildlife Service (FWS) and the U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Soil Conservation Service (SCS), are working together to protect migratory birds and their wetland habitats. But their battle is far from being won.

Because of its responsibility to protect migratory birds and their habitat, FWS acquires wetlands that are especially important to waterfowl. Wetlands may be acquired through withdrawal from public domain lands, purchase, or by lease from private owners. Wetland easements are also purchased to prevent drainage. These wetlands then become part of the national wildlife refuge system, either as refuges or as waterfowl production areas. Of the 34 million acres now included in the national wildlife refuge system, more than one-third are wetlands. Although most of these wetlands were acquired specifically for waterfowl, they also preserve habitat for many other species.

In 1962, FWS began an accelerated habitat acquisition program. Wetland habitats have been separated into 33 categories with priority given to areas where birds breed or winter and to wetlands of value to declining species. Particular effort is being made to preserve areas of high wildlife value that are in danger of being destroyed in the near future. Under this program, about 2 million acres of wetland habitats have been preserved, and the nationwide goal is to preserve another 1.95 million acres. Most of these areas are being paid for with "duck stamp dollars" from hunters and conservationists or from loans to be repaid from duck stamp funds. All refuge areas must be approved by the migratory bird conservation commission.

An important means of preserving wetlands — and an alternative to fee purchase or perpetual easements — is the USDA's water bank program. In more than a dozen states where waterfowl areas are most vital, landowners take wetlands and adjacent upland acres out of farming in return for payment and technical help to improve these habitats. As of December 1978, about 519,000 acres of wetlands and adjacent areas were under agreement in the program.

SCS is involved in many fish and wildlife projects designed to enhance existing wetlands and to create additional wetland habitat for waterfowl. SCS works with state and local governments to improve and expand waterfowl habitat by creating waterfowl impoundments, food plots, level ditches, and upland nesting cover. A major part of the nation's wetlands must continue to be provided on private lands, usually in close association with agriculture. These wetlands in private ownership not only provide valuable wintering, migrating, and breeding habitat for waterfowl, they also provide habitat for many other species of fish and wildlife.

One of the first steps toward preserving wetlands is to identify where they are and what options are available for preserving and managing them. FWS and SCS are working together to locate and describe wetlands throughout the United States.

FWS is now conducting a national wetlands inventory to collect information about where wetlands are, what types of habitat they provide, and how they are changing. Wetlands are mapped from aerial photographs and each wetland is described according to a new classification system developed to improve the definition of different types of wetlands. All information for each wetland is stored in a computer data bank for easy retrieval. The inventory's design allows for regular updating, important for detecting changes in areas where population, industrial, and agricultural pressures are greatest.

SCS is obtaining statistical information about wetlands from its erosion inventory of America's non-federal lands. SCS, in cooperation with state and federal agencies, is also making a complete geographic inventory of soil resources in its soil survey program. An SCS employee is working with the national wetlands inventory team to provide information about wetland soils. SCS and FWS have also worked together to make information from their respective inventories compatible.

The joint efforts will enable both agencies to complete more detailed and accurate wetland inventories and will give scientists, local planners, and others quick access to wetland information.

Many types of water development projects, from construction of drainage, irrigation, or navigation facilities to erection of large dams can contribute to the degradation of wetlands.

With assistance from SCS and other agencies, FWS is developing a habitat evaluation procedure for measuring the impacts of such water projects on fish and wildlife resources. SCS is assisting with development of the system and efforts to field test it when planning watershed projects.

SCS and FWS have also jointly issued nationwide guidelines to minimize the impact of stream channelization in small watershed projects on fish and wildlife. The guidelines help personnel of the two agencies evaluate the potential effects of channel modification on wetlands, streamside vegetation, and other fish and wildlife habitat and identify alternatives to channel modification.

SCS also is moving to increase the amount of conservation land treatment such as terracing, fencing areas critical to erosion control, and establishing ground cover before structural measures such as dams can be installed. SCS is working to design future projects in which watershed aims can be achieved with principal emphasis on non-structural measures.

FWS reviews other types of projects that require federal permits to divert or deepen channels or otherwise modify streams and wetlands. Such projects run the gamut from large federal projects constructed by the Army Corps of Engineers or the bureau of reclamation to private construction of docks or piers in navigable waters. FWS also reviews requests to discharge dredged and fill materials into waters of the United States, which require federal permits under the clean water act of 1977.

FWS advises on the consequences of these projects to fish and wildlife and recommends measures to mitigate or prevent damage. In the past these recommendations have included using pilings for ducks and piers, rather than placing them on solid fill; retaining minimum flows in streams; and locating and designing pipeline, highway, and transmission corridors to reduce damaging environmental impacts.

Runoff from farms, mines, and forestry operations can severely disrupt wetland ecosystems. Under the clean water act, both SCS and FWS work with State and local governments and private individuals to plan ways to eliminate such non-point sources of water pollution.

FWS is also working closely with state agencies under the coastal zone management act to develop plans for protection of coastal marshes and wetlands which contribute to the maintenance of the sport and commercial fisheries of our coastal and marine environments. FWS works with the environmental protection agency (EPA) in administering EPA's wastewater treatment facility grant-in-aid program to either locate sewage lagoons outside of wetlands or to minimize the effects of sewage lagoons on wetlands.

As part of the effort to place greater emphasis on preserving wetlands, FWS recently established a new position of wetland coordinator to provide information on and guidance to wetland programs. By establishing a single source of information about wetlands for government and private agencies and concerned citizens, FWS can facilitate the exchange of data about wetlands and help identify steps that can be taken to preserve these resources.

USDA is well along in developing the first appraisal and program under the soil and water resources conservation act of 1977 (RCA). Wetlands are an important concern identified by the conservation districts and more than 159,000 citizens who attended public meetings to discuss conservation problems.

The revised USDA land-use policy issued in October 1978 incorporates wetland protection and floodplain management more fully into USDA's overall policy of making and advocating land-use decisions that preserve the resource base and are responsive to the needs of the American people. Under the new strategy, USDA will step up its assistance to local and State governments and individual land users to meet their needs for growth and development, to protect the natural environment, and to assure adequate supplies of high quality food fiber, wood and water.

Many other programs by federal agencies, states and private organizations have been established to protect wetlands. But in spite of these efforts, destruction of wetlands continues to outpace protection. Public support for wetlands preservation is a must if we are to maintain our remaining wetlands for the future.

Dave Goltz is now the fourth winningest righthanded pitcher in Minnesota Twins' history. His 82 victories trail only Jim Perry (128), Bert Blyleven (99) and Camilo Pascual (88).

BATHROOM FACILITIES pictured here are in one part of a large house converted to apartments. The cramped bathroom is tucked in one corner of a bedroom in a unit which rents for $150. It contains only a stool, no sink, tub or shower and there is no door on the bathroom. A shower is tucked in the alternate corner of the bedroom and is closed off from the room by a plastic curtain. Uniform housing code, which has been adopted by the city of Thief River Falls, requires bathroom facilities to have a tight-fitting door, to have a sink and at least cold running water and to have a bathtub or shower. To construct a bathroom that would meet standards, the landlord of the facility estimates it would cost $1,000 excluding labor, an amount he cannot afford to invest at this time without increasing rent.

COMMON PROBLEM in a number of the older homes serving as rental units in Thief River Falls is faulty wiring. Out dated fixtures, frayed cords and inadequate number of outlets are all potential fire hazards. Yet for a landlord to rewire an old house, add outlets in a room or replace fixtures expenses would run high and would have to be made up in additional rent revenue. The fixture pictured protruding, exposing the wiring here is in an apartment unit in the ground floor of a house which rents for $150.

Rentals Are Problems For Local People

rental facilities can result in inconveience for the renter and, in some cases, even safety hazards. Photos accompanying this article display some of the problems that exist in units renting in the $150 bracket. They include drooping ceilings, make-shift bathroom facilities and faulty wiring. Also common in the older houses rented is the lack of adequate electrical outlets that can lead to a power overload. Inadequate heating systems and lack of proper insulation are two more complaints frequently made about older units. It is not uncommon for a three or four-room facility to be heated entirely by one space heater.

Although the uniform housing code requires a sink and running water in both the kitchen and bathroom facilities (hot and cold in the kitchen and at least cold in the bathroom), the bathroom facility pictured in this issue has only a stool, no sink; and another rental unit known to this writer has no running water in the kitchen. Bathroom facilities are also to include a bathtub or shower and have a tight-fitting door. The pictured bathroom, located in the corner of a bedroom, has no door and a shower, tucked in the opposite corner of the room, has a plastic curtain for privacy.

These facilities are definitely substandard but the owner of the rental unit indicates that it would cost approximately $1,000 to install a proper bathroom, excluding labor. If he had to invest that type of money into the unit the rent would probably go up, perhaps out of reach of the present renter.

Such a situation raises numerous questions and puts the city building inspector, who is responsible for housing code enforcement, in a touchy position. Should the code be strictly enforced even though it would likely result in a sharp decline in the number of rental units available in the $150 to $200 range? If so, what happens to the renter who can't afford to pay a higher rate? Should a person be allowed to rent out a unit that is safe but not necessarily up to codes?

One local renter stated, "The things that I think are really important are the things that can start endangering your life. There are rules that are made for convenience and they aren't really that important. Some things are an inconvenience but they are not a hazard, but when you start having wires that overload, etc., that's a hazard.

"There is substandard as far as annoyances and there is substandard as far as unsanitary and unhealthy. Uusually when you get into something like wiring it gets pretty expensive but there are a lot of things that make a place unsanitary that aren't really that expensive to fix."

It should be noted that not all units in the $150 to $200 range are substandard. But of the 1,219 units available, according to the 1976 survey, only three units were found to be vacant on an average. This indicates that the demand for rental units is such that someone is going to have to settle for substandard living conditions until something else becomes available.

"The problem that renters have," one Thief River Falls woman commented, "is that it is really a hassle to move and when they get someplace, even if they can find another place, after so long they just get tired of going from one place to another place and finding out they are going to have, if not exactly the same problems, they are going to have some problems that are just as bad. And they end up just taking it."

(Wednesday's Times will carry an article dealing with the problems of the landlord in the rental operation and his opinions on code enforcement.)

Rosewood

Mrs. Bert Kron, R.R. 1,
Newfolden, 523-3573

This community like all those in this part of Minnesota, has been plagued by bad roads, drifting snow, deep, deep snow to contend with in farm yards and fields and on the roofs of buildings. The roof of one of the turkey sheds on the turkey farm formerly known as the Hagen turkey farm collapsed due to heavy snow. Families and neighbors are helping each other out by clearing snow on farm buildings and homes. Neighbors are also helping each other in clearing yards or pulling out stuck vehicles and in other weather related problems. This is getting to be a long winter with little planned activities being enjoyed by the community.

Families have observed birthdays during the month in several homes. Karen Holmstrom celebrated her 16th birthday on the 2nd with Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Bring, Jeff, Michael and Jason of Strandquist, Mr. and Mrs. Steve Holmstrom and Mrs. Jim Pederson and Tricia bringing greetings to her that Friday evening. Mrs. Clifford Johnson also remembered Karen with a visit and a beautifully decorated birthday cake and Mrs. Tom Molskness of St. Hilaire had birthday cake with her on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Orland Roppe and Nicholas of Winger brought birthday greetings and had a birthday lunch with Leonard Kron on Tuesday evening, Feb. 13.

On Sunday, Feb. 18, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lambert and Harley, Mrs. Opha Lester of Minneapolis, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Rost of Erskine and Ida Ferden of McIntosh celebrated the 90th birthday of Mrs. Ole Paulson at Valley Home. Mrs. Paulson is the mother of Mrs. Lambert and Mrs. Lester.

The same day Elmer Kron was honored on his birthday at his home with a supper served to Ray Krohn, Chester Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Al Bacon, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Kron, Larry Kron, Colleen and Bill.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Nelson brought birthday greetings to their granddaughter, Nancy Nelson on her 17th birthday on the 23rd and enjoyed having birthday cake with her.

On February 25 Mr. and Mrs. Engvald Dahl celebrated the second birthday of their granddaughter, Sheri Gjovik at the Bert Gjovik home near Strathcona. Her birthday was the following day. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dahl, Jeff, Brenda, Randy and Kelly, also were among the guests.

This winter Mr. and Mrs. Russell Nelson and Mr. and Mrs. Mike Johnson and Wayne also remembered Mrs. Christine Johnson in Thief River Falls on her birthday with a visit.

A week ago Friday evening Mr. and Mrs. Art Swenson walked over to the Walter Lambert home for a visit.

SUPERSAW
HUSQVARNA 162

Everything about Husqvarna's 162 is dynamite. A power-to-weight ratio that gives you more power than any other saw in its class in a 13 pound package (less bar and chain). Slim design that makes it handle easier than any other chain saw you've seen.

Husqvarna's exclusive muffler design keeps it quiet. Husqvarna's exclusive vibration damping makes it the smoothest operating saw in its class. CD ignition is standard. . .as well as all those famous Husqvarna safety features. You can even get the optional electrically heated handles and a Swed-O-Matic chain brake.

Husqvarna 162. No wonder they call it SUPERSAW!

AWARD WINNING CREW of the resident engineer's office of the Minnesota department of transportation in Thief River Falls displays a plaque won from the state for outstanding performance in 1978 concrete paving projects. The Thief River Falls office was cited for work along highway 2 at the Fisher rest area northwest of Fisher, a project judged in the 10,000 to 25,000 square yard category. The project was judged best in the state for that size on the basis of road rideability, construction joints, surface texture, appearance, construction difficulty, specification compliance and general evaluation. Contractor on the job was Progressive Contractors, Inc., of Osseo. Member of the staff pictured above include, left to right, front row, Milt Burstad, Gordy Markstrom, Dick Bergland and John Besserud; Cliff Larson (resident engineer who accepted the award at ceremonies in St. Paul), Adolph Ulvin, Don Jorde, Les Larson, Bob Helland and Don Lokken.

School Board Cuts $140,000 In Budget

Cutting of approximately $140,000 in current expenses from the proposed 1979-80 budget of School District 564 in Thief River Falls took place when the board of education met for its regular meeting Monday evening. The board also voted to hire John Roszak as board negotiator for all employee negotiations.

Bulk of the cuts came in the Lincoln high school ($40,000), Franklin middle school ($15,000) and elementary schools ($14,000) and buildings and grounds ($16,500).

Increase income to offset expenses was approved in food services where a boost of 10 cents in the price of meals for students in kindergarten through grade 12 will take place next year and in transportation where the charge back for all activities using buses would be at the rate of 82 cents per mile rather than the present 60 cents per mile. Food service price increase would generate approximately $31,000 and the change in bus rate charge back would add about $8,000.

Cuts approved for Lincoln high school included the following:

Two-fifth science teaching position, $3,675; intramural sports, $655; debate, $1,800; bowling, $269; softball, $269; home economics contract, $120 (plus salary); business education, $7,000; speech assistant, $323; Lincoln Log, $430; boys' assistant golf, $630; 40-day reduction in school nurse service, $1,200; music, $6,000; cross country, $2,200; Prowlins, $430; wrestling, $6,000; and miscellaneous, $2,800.

Also approved for Lincoln was a $17.50 charge for classroom driver education and $10 increase in behind the wheel training. Reports were ordered from the principal on physical education transportation for such activities as curling, skating, swimming, bowling and golf and possibilities for the A and B squad baseball teams.

Cut at Franklin were boys' basketball, $1,591; girls' basketball, $1,030; boys' football, $1,076; girls' volleyball, $538; yearbook, $430; assistant boys' athletic director, $702; assistant girls' athletic director, $446; transportation, $750; athletic supplies, $2,000; and athletic substitutes, $500. Replacement of Larry Golden as shop instructor is anticipated to cut salary expense by $6,000.

Cuts in the elementary program include $3,000 in activities, $1,000 in elementary swimming, $3,000 in part-time music; $400 in vouchered administration; $5,000 in replacement for an early retirement position; and music, $1,500.

Music cuts in the elementary and high school levels would be effected by the sale of instructors' time to Northland community college where instructor Les Torgerson will be on a leave of absence next year.

An $8,000 cut in food services is projected from a plan to serve noon lunch at Knox school from meals prepared at Lincoln and transported to Knox. Similar satellite programs are now operated at other schools in the district.

Buildings and grounds cuts of $16,500 result from no replacement in a custodial position at Lincoln and reduction of $3,000 in seasonal employment.

Also approved was the transfer of the summer music program for summer school state aid reimbursement. Tuition rate of $2 per half hour last year generated less than $2,000 in revenue, school administrators informed the board, whereas state aid would cover almost all costs of the extended contracts.

Tabled for study by the AVTI adult education advisory committee was a tuition schedule for that program.

Supt. William Corliss said that the cuts and charges approved Monday will "give us a good leg up" on the $550,000 budget problem which the district will face for 1979-80. Together with new income from state aids, interest and other sources and use of accumulated surplus, the cuts

Smiley Voters Reject Zoning Ordinance

Smiley township voters defeated a zoning ordinance for the township by a resounding vote of 43 to 9 at the annual election held Tuesday. Approximately 25 per cent of the eligible voters in the township went to the polls, according to Mrs. Barb Lendobeja, town clerk.

Also at the annual meeting Dennis Nelson was reelected to a three-year term as supervisor and Mrs. Jean Bruggeman was elected to a two-year term as treasurer to succeed her husband, Dave.

Peterson And Dr. Martin On Advisory Group

Congressman Arlan Stangeland announced today that Dr. George Martin and Norman Peterson, both of Thief River Falls, have been selected to serve as members of a newly formed Seventh district health care advisory committee.

The purpose of the committee is to assist Congressman Stangeland by providing valuable information and suggestions on health care issues. "By working with district people who are employed in health related fields," he said, "I will increase my ability to conserve the constituents of the Seventh district. Members of the advisory committee deal with health care issues on a practical basis everyday."

Landlords Sympathetic... But Realists On Rentals

by Kim Blaeser -
Times Reporter

"I like to make $25 a house," explains Jerry Wetch, local landlord. "That's the return I want. But it is getting so you cannot do that any more. You can't come out on a house any more. If I could sell out tomorrow, I'd sell out tomorrow."

(This is the second in a series of articles examining the conditions of rental facilities available, the complicated relationship between tenant and landlord, the local enforcement of the uniform housing code and avenues for legitimate complaints about rental facilities.)

Jerry Wetch owns approximately 50 houses in Thief River Falls which contain a total of about 85 apartment units. Recently he has sold some 20 houses to his tenants. Why? "You can't come out on a house any more. Anyone with a small like four-plex, they are getting out of it because they just don't want the hassle. The return is too small for the hassle.

"We're in a real bad time now. Everybody in general is hostile. People are being pinched. Your cost of living is going up but your wages aren't going up accordingly. So who do they take it out on? The landlord because they feel the rent is too high. I'm hostile because gas is going up to 79 cents a gallon."

Steve Seglem, another local landlord who owns 25 houses with approximately 35 rental units in them, says, "We figured out one time that we lose an average of $40 to $50 a house and the only thing that keeps us alive is the duplexes. Out of 25 houses I'm just breaking even each month if I'm lucky. Maybe in 10 or 12 years, if I don't have a breakdown, I can sell it out and come out pretty good; but I'll tell you by then I've damn well earned it."

"Like a dummy, when I sold one (house), I'd buy back two," comments Wetch. "Now when I sell one, I'm going to sell two."

"Last year I lost about $600 but I did a lot of work on the houses," says Tom Kalinoski, who has only in the recent years invested in three houses and is trying his hand at landlording. "It should come out about even," he says, "but last year's books show I'm losing $50 a month."

So why are Wetch, Seglum and Kalinoski in the rental business? "You make your money when you resell it," states Kalinoski, "that's the only thing. Each month you are making $200 payments on them (the houses) but you're not making any money in your pocket now. But in 10 years they will be paid off and that's where you make your money."

"There is no money in rent," says Wetch. "The money to be made is in riding inflation. It's like the farmer: he farms his whole life, starves to death out there, doesn't make anything, raises his family, just survives. He finally accumulates himself 300 acres of land. The day he sells he is a rich man. The same thing in the housing business. There is no money the years you hang onto it — most of the time you go in the hole. Where you are making the money is the day you sell. Then you ride the interest if you sell on a contract."

The objective of the landlords is to just break even every year and hang on until they get the houses paid for or until they sell. But inflation, which is what pushes the value of their property up over the years, is now rising faster than they can raise their rent and it is increasingly difficult to maintain the property still breaking even or getting a small return.

Outlining monthly costs of an average two-bedroom house that rents for approximately $185, Jerry and Steve include $7 for insurance, $35 for taxes, $30 for utilities, $50 for gas, $100 for house payment, $10 for loss of rent (averaged out over the year) and $20 for maintenance and repairs (replacing carpeting, furniture and drapes and paying for furnace and plumbing repairs, etc.) These costs total $252, showing a $67 loss a month to the landlord. To make the $25 a unit profit Wetch indicated you want as a return, rent for the small two-bedroom facility would have to go to $272 a month.

"To be perfectly honest with that," commented Seglem, "you are gaining some equity in your payment. But you can't eat equity. Another problem is, you make your money on equity, but this year for example I've put in a good $10,000 in insulating homes. In order to do that I had to borrow against the equity. So now I'm using up equity — the only thing I'm making."

What is it in recent years that has put the landlord of houses in a position of not being able to come out on his investment, not being able to break even each year? "I think the thing that has hurt the worst is that taxes and heat are going up faster than you can put the rent up," Seglem said.

With gas going up to 79 cents a gallon and rumors of it rising to $1 a gallon, with talk of a fuel shortage and possible rationing, a landlord cringes when he sees a screen door wedged open because a tenant didn't shovel his steps, when he sees a window opened, storm windows pushed out and plastic coverings slit. An accompanying photo shows one house with both the screen door and an upstairs window open. After spending $10,000 and $20,000 respectively this year in insulation to increase energy efficiency, Seglum and Wetch are rightfully enraged by such tenant actions.

Mary Ann Wetch, sister of Jerry who owns two buildings with a total of six units, commented, "If a person could only instill in their renters economy and saving for the sake of saving."

"I could lower rent," says Seglum. "I'm not kidding. I could lower rent 15 per cent around the board if tenants would only conserve like they would if they were paying for the heat."

Taxes are another sore area for landlords. Non-homestead taxes are anywhere from 50 to 75 per cent higher than taxes on homesteaded property, depending on the valuation of the property.

"Renters are penalized for being renters," said Steve. "The state cuts the homestead taxes in half; they are not hurting the landlord. The landlord has to get that back in rent. Who rents? People who can't afford to buy a house. So they are penalized because they can't afford to buy a house. The state of Minnesota comes out and says we give renters an income rent credit because of that. The joke is that one out of 10 actually even use that — not because they neglect it, but because they are making so damn little money they don't pay income tax anyway. So what good is it if renters don't benefit." Seglum indicated that only two out of his approximately 35 renters used the renter's credit form.

The other headaches of a landlord include tenants failing to live up to their leases or damaging the rental property; pets, parties and repairs.

Seglum explains, "On the bottom of my lease it says, 'There are no exceptions to this lease so if you don't agree to everything in this lease please do not sign it as not to cause hard feelings in the future.' My wife hands them the lease, they read it. She takes the lease, reads the lease back to them." An efficient method that should result in understanding and a clear agreement. But it is human nature to consider ourselves an exception, to believe we have a valid excuse. So tenants still expect their deposit to be refunded even though they didn't give the required 30 days notice; they can't believe that the part that said no pets included their harmless little kitty.

Damages to property include everything from accidental breakage of a window to intentional valdalism. An accompanying photo shows a wall which served as a target for renters' knife throwing. Tenants take off, give no notice, leave no heat on and pipes freeze up and burst. Carpet must be replaced after only four months when it is used by a tenant's cat to exercise its claws.

"The people who do the damage are a small percentage of renters," says Jerry. But the destruction is aggravating for the landlord and expensive both for himself and for his tenants who must make up for the loss in increased rent.

Once a tenant rents a facility the landlord has no control over that person's

HIGH HEATING COSTS, one of the biggest problems of landlords in Northwestern Minnesota, are compounded when tenants do not observe basic energy saving principles. This photo shows one rental unit with both a screen door and upstairs window open. The small percentage of tenants who do not economize on utilities increase not only their own rent but that of renters who try to conserve energy. One local landlord stated, "I could lower rent 15 per cent around the board if tenants would just conserve like they would if they were paying for the heat."

POPULAR ACTIVITY for the girls attending the annual banquet of the Thief River Falls Girl scouts Monday evening was a game called "Find a Match". The girls were given slips of paper with instructions to find people who could provide the information requested on the sheets. The project required the girls to mix and mingle with those from other troops in order to get the information needed. In the top photo, several girls ask questions of Junior troop leader Janice Henrickson. In the bottom photo, several girls compare information and fill out the sheets.

Holiday, First Street Projects Get Attention

Separate council actions at the group's Tuesday meeting gave the go ahead to the First street projects and requested a slow down in Holiday's efforts to get its new station-store project started.

Having received a resolution from the county board which stated that the county intends to undertake the First street bridge widening with county funds covering engineering costs and approaches and to participate in the signalization project provided the city undertake the widening of First street at no cost to the county, the Thief River Falls city council passed a resolution acknowledging the county's resolution and voicing the city's agreement with the proposal. The council resolution also instructed the city engineer to proceed with plans for the widening of First street.

Previous estimates listed probable costs at $52,500 for the bridge widening and $42,000 for the street widening with the participation in the signalization project determined by the number of city and county roads which intersect at the thoroughfares where the signals are being installed. Total city participation would be approximately $63,500 with county participation estimated at $93,500.

Informed by city planner Jack Quinlivan that the city was on the verge of granting a building permit to Holiday Stationstores for construction of a new service station at the disputed location on the corner of First street and highway 59, council voted to request that Holiday not ask for issuance of the permit until after the March 19 hearing on requested zoning changes in the highway 59 and First street area.

The planning commission hearing is set for 7 p.m. Monday, March 19, and will consider rezoning of various

Pastors Discuss Basic Christian Themes On KTRF

Area pastors will discuss common Christian themes next week on KTRF at 7 p.m.

Themes to be discussed are: "What Is the Church?" on Monday; "Jesus of Nazareth-Who is He?" on Tuesday; "Sustaining Christian Life" on Thursday; and "Christian Unity-Where Is It?" on Friday.

After a 15-20 minute period of discussion, the phone lines will be open for listeners to call in and ask questions. Questions should be related to the theme of the evening and will be answered by the panel as a group.

Participating pastors are Duane Pribula, Frank Armstrong, Jim Hagemeister, Barrie Henke, Jonathan Law, Richard Larson, Eugene Enderlein, Curtis Anderson, James Bernauer, Marden Wickman, Jim Mattson, Keith Prekker, Ernest Dobkins and Berton Hushagen.

Serving as moderators for the panel will be Don Knudson of Redeemer Lutheran church and Mark Johaningsmeir of the United Methodist church. Four pastors plus the moderator will make up each evening's panel.

This series of panel discussions grew out of interest on the part of the Thief River Falls Ministerial association to sponsor an activity in the name of Christian Unity. Don Knudson, Mark Johaningsmeir and Ernest Dobkins, committee members, formulated the program.

Holiday, First Street Projects Get Attention

lots in property bounded by highway 59 on the west and First street on the north at the request of area residents. Petitions submitted by the residents to the city council ask for R-2 (residential) and C-1 (neighborhood commercial) classifications for the areas presently zoned C-2 (highway commercial).

Holiday has an option for the parcel of property presently housing the Highway 59 Fixit shop, has paid down on the property and has proceeded with site plans and other paperwork necessary to obtain a building permit for the proposed stationstore. City building inspector Bob Bregier, who has the authority to issue building permits, cannot legally withhold a permit if all necessary requirements are met, including the submission of building and site plans. He is presently waiting for three items he requested from the corporation. Should they arrive prior to March 19 and the building inspector is satisfied that everything is in order in the application, he must issue a permit.

If a permit is issued, the legal position of Holiday is strengthened in any hearing procedure considering rezoning, specifically downzoning. The hearing would no longer be a general planning question of what is the proper zoning for the area but will then be use-specific, considering the operation of a gas service station in the area.

The council's action to request Holiday to refrain from obtaining a building permit until the hearing is completed, was taken in hopes of preventing the issue at hearing to become something other than a planning question and to assure that the residents were heard before any further action was taken by Holiday for which the company might later seek compensation should the area be down-zoned.

In other business, council members were brought up to date on the remodeling of the new occupational development center by director Chris Twomey. Twomey indicated that the ODC, which presently had 42 client employees, expects to have the remodeling completed in the old Gamble Robinson building by June. The building, which was purchased partly with contributions from the city, county and JOBS, Inc., has required approximately $100,000 of remodeling.

A joint use agreement between the city of Thief River Falls and public and parochial schools was approved by the council in a seven to one vote with alderman Bill Penning dissenting. The agreement provides for use of each party's facilities at no cost to the other parties with the exception of the city arenas.

Final report to the city on the sale of the reserved seat sections of the Thief River Falls city sports arena by the local sports boosters club was received and indicated that revenue totaling $3,879.05 was earned for the city in the venture. The sale was turned over to the sports boosters by the city in an effort to make up a $5,000 cut in arena rental fee received for 1978-79. For their efforts the boosters received 30 per cent of the gross receipts from ticket sales.

An amendment to the city ordinance, passed at Tuesday's meeting added a provision for a fee for inspection of mobile home installation and altered various other building permit fees. At the recommendation of the airport committee the council set a landing fee of $1 per 1,000 pounds for charter aircraft with credit to be given to those users who also purchase fuel from the FBO. Permission was granted for the use of the Floyd B. Olson parking lot on June 11-12 for Northwest dairy day.

Council agreed to pay 90 per cent of a bill for the painting of the city water tower. Remainder of the bill is in dispute since the job was undertaken following a bidding process and the contractor exceeded its bid by 10 per cent.

Mortgage On Grains Reaches All-Time High

Farmers in Minnesota had an outstanding debt of over $661 million in federal price support loans on field crops at the end of January, agriculture commissioner Mark W. Seetin reported recently. Mortgage on grains and oil seeds is believed to be an all-time high.

Reports of the state and federal agencies of the U.S. department of agriculture administering the price support loan programs show that Minnesota farmers had over 335.5 million bushels of grain and oilseeds under outstanding obligations on January 31.

Commissioner Seetin said that Minnesota continues to be one of the top three states participating in the federal loan and grain reserve program.

Minnesota farmers have contracted a total of 170.42 million bushels of feed grains and nearly 55 million bushels of wheat in the national grain reserve. That represented almost 18 per cent of the January 31 national total in the reserve, and over two-thirds of Minnesota's total outstanding volume of grain and oilseeds under federal price support.

Corn accounts for over 61 per cent of Minnesota's total volume under federal price support. This includes 144.58 million bushels in the reserve and an additional 60.5 million bushels also under outstanding loans for a total corn mortgage of over $387.5 million. Although three years of corn crops contribute to the volume, the 205 million bushel total is nearly one-third of Minnesota's record 643 million bushel 1978 crop.

Wheat under price support obligations at the end of January totaled 72.9 million bushels representing a debt of $171.5 million.

Other outstanding Minnesota price support volumes and estimated loan debt at the end of January include: 26.9 million bushels of barley, $42.8 million debt; 21.7 million bushels of oats, $21 million debt; 8.5 million bushels of soybeans, $37.5 million debt; 478,000 bushels of rye sorghum, $836,500 debt.

Show Film At Our Saviour's Church Sunday

"Corrie: The Lives She's Touched", the film which tells the life of Corrie ten Boom, will be shown Sunday at 8 p.m. at Our Saviour's Lutheran church, 401 St. Paul av. so., Thief River Falls.

Residents of Haarlem, Holland, Corrie and her family were involved in the Dutch underground following Hitler's invation. They are credited with saving the lives of scores of Jews by hiding them in their home and providing them with passage out of the country. Because of their activities they were sent to prison, and Corrie is the lone survivor of the immediate family.

Public is invited to attend the showing, according to Rev. Eugene W. Enderlein, host pastor.

JEFF SUND, a member of the Thief River Falls recreational skating program and also a member of the Bemidji freestyle skating club, participated in the recent 12th annual Fantasy on Ice show at Bemidji entitled "America In Song." He skated with Patti Jo McClellan (right) and Kim Janski of Bemidji. Scott Sund and Bob Nelson of Thief River Falls also skated in the USFSA-sanctioned show.

NW Stockmen To Hold Carnival At McIntosh

Northwestern Stockmen's association will hold their Cattlemen's Carnival II Friday at 7:30 p.m. at the community center in McIntosh. All stockmen and their wives are invited to attend.

Carnival is a novel approach to an educational meeting, at which several knowledgeable people will man booths where they will be prepared to discuss a particular topic with those interested. This method allows those attending to spend as much or as little time with each speaker as they like, depending on their major interest.

After approximately an hour of the educational booths, they will be replaced by fun booths and those present will compete in a variety of games, designed with the stockmen in mind, for different prizes donated by area firms.

Last year's carnival was well attended and those present had a very enjoyable evening. All livestock producers and their spouse are invited to attend and participate.

County NFO To Take Part In Farm Power Day

Members of the National Farmers organization (NFO) in Pennington county will take part in "Farm Power Day" March 20, according to Merle Lundeen of Trail, Pennington county NFO chairman.

"Members of the Pennington NFO will be delivering livestock to Fergus Falls and grain to the St. Hilaire Cooperative elevator in Thief River Falls that day," Lundeen said. "Members across the nation will be delivering production to designated receiving points to demonstrate their ability to handle farm commodities on a nationwide basis. At the same time, they will be building toward the goal of $8 million in escrow to back the NFO with strong financial stability.

"We as members feel that the collective bargaining concept is too valuable to leave exposed to financial pressures and attacks, and this effort is intended to put an end to the idea that NFO can be destroyed or blocked if it starts a major economic action, by establishing visible proof that anyone who would consider such measures has a tough job on his hands," the county president said.

"We have the people and production in agriculture and we have the financial resources among us to build a 'farm power' block of strength in the marketplace. March 20 will be the day we producers begin to put that strength together for our own protection and to do it in meaningful volume."

TIRE MARKINGS left on the linoleum in the kitchen of a recently vacated rental unit, grease spots and tears in the floor covering witness the inconsideration of the former tenant who obviously used the area to work on his motorcycle. Selection of a responsible tenant is the most important and most difficult job of any landlord and can dictate his financial success or failure. With this in mind, potential renters should not be offended at having to furnish references before being accepted as a tenant in any housing unit.

Students Place In Moorhead Speech Contest

Several high school speech students from the area received placing at an invitational speech tournament held Saturday at Moorhead high school. Forty-three schools from Minnesota and North Dakota participated with more than 600 students in the contest.

Awarded superior ribbon for placing first in two of the three rounds in which he participated was Mike Cameron of Red Lake Falls in the discussion category.

For winning one of the three rounds or placing in the upper third of the category were Carla Wilson of Karlstad and Nancy Hanson of Newfolden in the prose division and Kevin Jackson of Red Lake Falls in the humorous interpretation category.

Youth Team At Redeemer, Black River

Lutheran youth encounter team from Moorhead state university will be at Redeemer Lutheran church in Thief River Falls Saturday and Sunday. The team, called "Eurika", is composed of six young people, including David Poole and Kim Waale of Thief River Falls. Other members are Elaine Ramstad, Lorilee Jordhiem, Bob Gustafson and Karen Nelson.

Team members will conduct a Youth Event Saturday at 5:30 p.m. at Redeemer Lutheran church, and will also participate in the Sunday worship services at both Redeemer and Black River Lutheran churches. Potluck congregational dinner will follow the 10:45 a.m. worship service at Redeemer, with team members and new members of the congregation as guests.

Faith To Host Singing Groups

Faith Lutheran Brethren church, located at sixth st. N. and Dewey avenue in Thief River Falls, will host two groups of singers Sunday. At the 11 a.m. worship service, the "Good News Singers", a group from the Lutheran Brethren Bible and seminary department in Fergus Falls, will be featured. "First Love", together with Steve Hjelle, will present a special service at 7:30 p.m. Sunday. Everyone is welcome at both services.

World Day Of Prayer Set For MR Churches

Landlords Tell Their Problems With Rentals

actions. Yet if the yard isn't maintained, if there is a party in the house of if someone from the house parks in front of a neighbor's house, the landlord can expect to get the blame.

After looking at the job of the landlord we tend to agree with Seglum; if they can stick it out for ten years they have earned their return. But a new headache for landlords is pushing itself onto the scene — housing codes. The city of Thief River Falls adopted the uniform housing code some years ago and, although to date it has been enforced only on a complaint basis, there is some support for its more strict and regular enforcement.

The code defines the standards any housing unit must meet to be considered fit for habitation. It is believed that the majority of the present facilities would not meet code requirements and that some would not even meet basic safety requirements.

What would code enforcement mean to the landlords who rent houses? "The day they start enforcing the codes 100 per cent, that's the day they eliminate your cheaper rentals," says Wetch," and when they eliminate them the welfare better get ready to subsidize rent."

"If the code was enforced," commented Kalinoski, "look at how many places would be closed up."

Steve says, "It would tickle me to death to go around and put in new carpeting, new siding, new shingles because that's going to upgrade my property. I'd have a lot less work. But you have to borrow the money to do that and you're going to have to pay it back. To pay it back, you have to raise rent and the people can't afford to pay their rent now.

"The renters want everything to be really nice, they want everything to function properly. Now that doesn't sound like an unreasonable request, but you must remember when you get into a $10,000 to $12,000 house things are not going to function properly. There is going to be a crack here or a crack there, the window is going to drift in a little cold air maybe or not open."

"It's tough for a kid that moves out of his family's house," says Jerry. "They live in maybe a $100,000 home and now they are moving into a $10,000 or $12,000 house and to them it's a shack."

"Improvements — if you want them made you are going to have to pay for them," states Seglum. "Can you imagine going into an older house and changing windows, enlarging rooms and building on? Let's say it took $15,000; hell, let's say it took $5,000. You have to borrow that $5,000. If your payment (on the loan) is $80 or $90 a month you are going to have to up the rent and, again, people can't pay the rent now."

"What older house has wiring that would meet codes?" was the rhetoric question of Wetch. "If you enforced the code to a T, there is not a new building built in the last ten years that would come up to code. If the type of person who rents a house (that doesn't meet standards) could afford to live in a better place, they would. So why not leave them alone."

There in lies the question: Should the city continue in its laissez faire policy allowing income limits to dictate the surroundings a person elects to live in, knowing that at least some of the renters will be forced to live in unsafe, unsanitary facilities? Or should they enforce or partially enforce the housing code, then risking yet higher rent rates and the possible elimination of facilities that are safe but not necessarily convenient, perhaps increasing the number of persons who will have to seek government subsidy for housing?

"If they eliminate all the older housing around town, where are these people supposed to go?" Seglem asks. "This is the problem with older people on social security for example. They can't afford to pay the higher rent so they take the cheaper place. Now if you eliminate the cheaper place, what are they supposed to do, go out and die?"

(Monday's paper will carry the third article in this series dealing with specifics about the code, code enforcement and avenues for renters complaints.)

PROPERTY DAMAGE to rental units may be done by a small percentage but the cost of repairs is born by every renter. Average damage deposit of $50 to $75 would not cover repair of this wall at which knives were thrown putting a hole in the sheetrock and marring the wood which is part of the outside wall. The house, vacated by a group of four young men, had several hundreds of dollars of additional damage and will not be ready for occupancy for some time which also results in loss of rent to the owner.

Grain Reserve Offers Farmer 3-Year Loans

Grain reserve program, administered by the agricultural stabilization and conservation service (ASCS), offers farmers three-year loans and storage payments for holding their crops off the market until prices reach an established level or the contract expires.

Wheat is eligible for release from the reserve when the national average market price received by farmers reaches 140 per cent of the current loan rate. Feed grains become eligible when this price reaches 125 per cent of the loan rate.

Harold Kalsnes, chairman of the Pennington county ASC committee, said that release of grain from the reserve is based on national average prices because of price differentials in various grain producing areas. "To allow certain amounts of particular classes of grain to enter the market while others are still locked into the reserve might dampen upward price movements," he explained.

ASCS used information provided by the economics statistics and cooperatives services (ESCS) and the agricultural marketing service (AMS) to determine market prices for announcing reserve release. If a release is announced at the end of a month, it will not be terminated within 30 days of the announcement, according to Kalsnes. If a release is announced during the month it will continue through the remainder of that month, plus one additional month.

Further information on grain reserve release levels and market prices is available upon request from the county ASCS office.

MORE THAN 240 Girl scouts and their adult leaders from Thief River Falls attended the annual Girl scout banquet Monday evening at Redeemer Lutheran church. With 216 girls enrolled in the local scout program, 210 purchased tickets to attend and more than 200 were in attendance for the banquet and program. The group is shown in preparation for group singing which was being done in unison with recorded music. Mrs. Jean Olson, scout leader who served as mistress of ceremonies for the program, is shown at the podium in the background of the photo.

Once Governor Rolvaag To Speak Sunday

Karl Rolvaag, former diplomat and Minnesota governor, will speak at the workshop on chemical dependency on Sunday, March 18, at Sts. Peter and Paul Catholic church in Warren at 7:30 p.m.

Continuing in the series on chemical dependency, Rolvaag will talk about his battle with alcoholism. Sober now for 15 months, Rolvaag has been in and out of treatment centers for the last three years. He suffers physically from his years of alcohol abuse with alcohol induced heart and lung conditions, but says the feelings of defeat, hopelessness and frustration are worse.

The son of a famous novelist, Rolvaag says that it was when he got into public life that his drinking really became a problem. Unsure of himself and afraid of public speaking, he found courage in a bottle. How much his drinking affected his work performance, even Rolvaag doesn't know.

Openly candid about his alcoholism for the last two years, Rolvaag finds speaking about his alcoholism "personally cleansing."

All interested persons are invited to attend the workshop to hear former Governor Rolvaag. Paul Erickson, chemical dependency program of Oklee, invited Rolvaag and encourages everyone who is interested to attend. There is no charge for admission.

Winter Weather Brings Drop In Egg Production

Chickens haven't been any happier about the winter weather than the average family confronted with ceaseless snow to shovel and record heating bills, reports the Minnesota department of agriculture.

Although Minnesota poultry farmers had 9.2 million laying hens on the egg production line this January, 25,000 more hens than a year ago, egg output dropped to 15.5 million dozen, down nearly three per cent or 400,000 dozen below last year.

Robert Moehrle, state poultry industry supervisor, said that bitter cold temperatures and snowstorms have had an adverse effect on egg-laying chickens.

This February 1, according to the monthly survey by the state-federal crop and livestock reporting service, Minnesota production per 100 laying chickens was 65 eggs, almost two eggs less per hen than for the same date last year.

During January, output per 100 layers was nearly five dozen eggs below that month last year.

Although the estimated gross farm value of Minnesota's January egg production was an impressive $8 million, the indicated gross income per laying chicken for the month was slightly over 87 cents. Average price received by Minnesota farmers for eggs during January was 51.8 cents a dozen.

Looking Ahead To 1979-80

While Roseau readies itself to lay in the 1979 Minnesota state high school hockey tournament this week at the St. Paul Civic Center, rest of the Section 8 teams are looking ahead to the 1979-80 season when they hope to challenge the Rams' remarkable three-year winning streak against Section 8 opposition.

It seems unlikely that winning streak will last another winter. However, ending the Rams' three-year Section 8 tournament championship reign won't be easy.

Roseau will be hard hit by graduation that will take away standout Aaron Broten, goalie Jim Pelowski and seven other seniors. But the Rams' blueline crops will return intact, headed by Mark Huglen who just might be the premiere high school hockey player in northwestern Minnesota next year. Losses in the forward lines will be heavy, the leading the returning skaters will be Billy Yon, a first line performer as a sophomore this winter.

Thief River Falls and Warroad will probably present the biggest challenge to Roseau.

There were six seniors on the 1978-79 Thief River Falls squad, including top notch forward Scott Sabo, Murray Dicken, Mark Huot, Joe Dee, Myles Lund and Todd Trickle. But this year's junior class is the best here in recent memory, headed by goalie Bill Jury, already a two-year starter and a first team all-section selection this winter. There will be lots of forwards but just two defensemen - Dave Geatz and Brian Ranum — with experience in next year's Thief River Falls line-up.

Warroad will graduate only four seniors, but that's still a big chunk out of the usually small numbers there. Goalie John Thunder and center LaRoy Moteberg will not be around next year, but Eddie Christian will be back to build upon his family's rich hockey tradition. It seems unlikely that anybody around here will exceed Christian's scoring feats in 1979-80.

Fergus Falls and Detroit Lakes have established themselves as strong Section 8 hockey schools, but they'll both be facing graduation deficits next winter. The Lakers lose 11 seniors off this year's talented squad, including goalie Rick Wallin and two-thirds of its featured top forward line of Andy Ogren, Jon Ahles and Bob Landry. The Otters graduate nine, including superb defenseman Steve Lundeen. However, Mark Hedstrom and Glen Oliphant will provide Fergus Falls with solid goaltending in 1979-80.

Bemidji will have the biggest number of players returning from this year's roster since the Lumberjacks' four seniors were nearly out-membered by three freshmen in the 1978-79 tournament squad. However, it remains to be seen if those Bemidji players, unable to win this winter, can turn it around the next year.

So, it does look like 1979-80 should feature a wide-open Section 8 hockey race. But then, that's what they said going into 1978-79 and nobody in these parts beat Roseau.

Miscellaneous

Wayne Horgen, head hockey coach at Fergus Falls high school, had this to say about his team's 5-1 Section 8 tournament semifinal loss to Thief River Falls: "They beat us because of fundamental mistakes that we made such as not taking the puck carriere in our zone, giving up the puck to their defensemen on our breakouts and not covering up on face-offs. Thief River Falls is a strong, physical team that moves the puck well, has good shooting power and excellent goaltending. It was difficult to find a weakness when compiling our scouting report on the Prowlers."

State Hockey Tournament To Start Thursday

Most of the power appears to rest in the upper bracket of the 1979 Minnesota state high school hockey tournament, scheduled to be played Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the St. Paul Civic Center.

Thursday afternoon's upper bracket pairings will feature Section 3 champion Hill-Murray (23-1-1) playing Section 6 and defending state champion Edina East (19-4) at 12:35 p.m., with number one-rated Section 7 winner Grand Rapids (22-0-1) meeting perennial Section 8 entry Roseau (21-2) at 2:45.

Completing the first round Thursday night will be first time Section 2 representative Irondale (19-4-1) squaring off with Section 5 titlist Minneapolis Washburn (17-6-1) at 7:05 p.m. while Section 1 winner and 1977 state champion Rochester John Marshall (19-4-1) taking on surprising Section 4 representative St. Paul Harding (15-8-1) at 9:15.

Semifinals will be played at 7:05 and 9:15 p.m. Friday. The championship game is slated Saturday night at 7:30.

LINCOLN HIGH school 400-yard freestyle relay team will compete in the 1979 Minnesota state high school swimming meet this week in the Cooke Hall pool on the University of Minnesota campus in Minneapolis. The Prowlers' foursome includes, left to right, Dave Beito, Bruce Storhaug, Kevin Murphy and Jon Pinkerton.

Storhaug, Pinkerton, Beito, Murphy . . .

Lincoln Relay Team Will Compete In State Meet

Owners of a new Lincoln high school record of 3:26.58 set in the finals of last week's Section 3 meet, Thief River Falls' 400-yard freestyle relay team of Bruce Storhaug, Jon Pinkerton, Dave Beito and Kevin Murphy will compete in the 1979 Minnesota state high school swimming meet, scheduled to be held Friday and Saturday in the Cooke Hall pool on the University of Minnesota campus in Minneapolis.

The state meet starts with diving prelims at 10 a.m. Friday. Swimming prelims get underway at 3 that afternoon. Swimming and diving finals will start at 1:30 p.m. Saturday.

Despite the new school mark, which represented a dramatic seven-second drop from the season's previous best time, Thief River Falls' state meet entry may be hard pressed to advance past Friday's preliminary competition.

"If they swim well Friday they could swim again on Saturday," said Thief River Falls coach John Kopari. "But they're going to have to swim faster. I'm hoping to milk another ½-second out of each kid. If they do that, they'll swim again Saturday. But that's what we have to do — milk it out of them, because they're working so hard already."

Pinkerton, a junior, is the only underclassman in the Thief River Falld relay line-up. It was his outstanding start on the second leg of the race in the Section 3 finals at Bemidji State University that played a big role in the Prowlers' second place finish behind Fergus Falls' 3:24.10. Alexandria was third in 3:27.05. Top two finishers earned state meet berths.

"They've obviously got to be doing something right to drop that much," pointed out Kopari. "In swimming, time speaks for itself. When they speed up you know they're working hard."

Outside of state champion Dave Borning, Thief River Falls has never had a place finisher in the finals (top 6) or consolation finals (top 12) at the state meet. Borning, sixth at the state meet in the 50-yard freestyle as a junior in 1974 WHEN HE AND Doug Williams were the first-ever Thief River Falls state meet qualifiers, came back the following year and was a double event winner as he swam the 50-yard freestyle in 22.178 and swam the 100-yard freestyle in 48.342.

Plummer Rally Nets Consolation Crown

Trailing 48-41 with 1:24 remaining, Plummer ran off 10 straight points over the final 84 seconds Monday to edge East Grand Forks Sacred Heart 51-48 in the District 31 girls high school basketball tournament consolation game.

Warren upset defending champion Fisher 51-38 in the District 31 championship game played Monday at Stephen.

Diane Fisher led the game-ending Plummer charge by scoring eight of her game-high 27 points during that stretch in which the Cardinals effectively utilized full court press.

Melanie Skjerven added 10 points to the Plummer attack as the Cardinals overcame Sacred Heart quarter leads of 19-13, 27-22 and 37-32.

Three Sacred Heart scorers reached double figures as Sandy Ripp collected 20 points, Julie Ripp 10 and Sharon O'Leary 10.

Plummer, beaten in the District 31 semifinals by Fisher 59-26, finished the 1978-79 season under coach Rich Koivisto with a 15-6 record.

Gene Mauch, dean of current big league managers with 19 years of service, ranks twelfth all-time in terms of seasons, and will move up two more sports spots this year

All-District Team Selected In District 32

District 32 tournament champion Hallock and runner-up Karlstad each placed two players on the 1978-79 all-district girls high school basketball team, selected by district coaches.

Senior Paula Novacek and junior Joy Beth Pearson were Hallock players named to the 10-member honor squad. Senior Jackie Helling and freshman Vickie Helling represented Karlstad.

Rest of the team, announced this week, included seniors Nola Muir, Hallock; Denise Stokke, Marshall County Central, and Coreena Dahl, Lake of the Woods; junior Rae Derry, Roseau; and sophomores Jill Saurdiff, Grygla; and Dawn Nelson, Middle River

First round games Thursday will match District 31 winner Warren against District 29 titlist Akeley at 7 p.m. and Fertile-Beltrami goes against District 32 representative Hallock at 8:30.

Consolation and championship games will be played Frida, at 7 and 8:30 p.m., respectively. The champion will move on to the 1979 Minnesota Class A state basketball touanament March 22-24 at Met Sports Center in Bloomington.

Fertile-Beltrami, carrying an 18-2 record, will be trying to supply District 30 with its fourth straight Region 8A crown. Roseau of District 32 won the inaugural event in 1975, succeeded by Mahnomen in 1976 and Fertile-Beltrami the past two years.

Averaging 58 points per game offensively and 37 on defense, Fertile-Beltrami owns victories over Class AA foes Bemidji, Thief River Falls, Crookston and East Grand Forks. One of the regular season losses came at the hands of Fisher, a surprise 51-38 loser to Warren in Monday's District 31 championship game.

Coach Dick Braun's Falcons are led by 5-11 Shelley Oistad, an all-state selection a year ago, who averages 15 points per game. Oistad, Renee Moos and Brenda Krogstad are all four-year letter winners.

Top challenger to Fertile-Beltrami's championship reign is Warren. The Ponies are riding the crest of athletic momentum at Warren that has already brought the school Region 8A titles in wrestling and boys basketball this winter.

The Kim Brekke-led Ponies are 19-2. Brekke, a 5-11 center, averages 14 points per game.

Coached by Rob Knutson, Warren was considered an underdog in the District 31 finals. Defending champion Fisher, with a trio of three-year starters in the line-up, brought a 19-1 record into the game that included only a loss to Class AA opponent Moorhead.

Most impressive Region 8A record comes from District 29 where both the varsity and junior varsity teams at Akeley posted 18-0 reocrds during the regular season.

Lacking height, the Lois Schauer-coached Anglers are led by the double figure scoring averages of seniors Suzanne Carlson and Roxanne Vredenburg, who also pulls down an average of 10 rebounds per game. It was Vredenburg's tip-in with three seconds left that produced Akeley's 35-34 District 29 championship game win over Clearbrook. She didn't start that game because of a sprained ankle suffered in a semifinal victory over Nevis, but came off the second quarter and scored 10 points.

Coach Carol Witt's Hallock Bears, physically the biggest team in the tournament, won its second straight District 32 crown and owns a 17-4 record.

Laura Nordling, only a sophomore, is already the Hallock career scoring leader with nearly 600 points. Junior JoyBeth Pearson joins Nordling for a strong one-two scoring punch.

Detroit Lakes Will Be Favorite In Region 8AA

Detroit Lakes carries the role of the favorite heading into the 1979 Region 8AA girls high school basketball tournament Thursday and Friday at St. Cloud Tech high school.

First round games Thursday will find Sub Region 1 champion Melrose playing Sub Region 3 winner Detroit Lakes at 7 p.m. and Sub Region 2 champion Little Falls facing Sub Region 4 winner Bemidji at 8:45.

Championship game will be played at 7:30 p.m. Friday. The winner advances to the 1979 Minnesota Class AA state basketball tournament scheduled March 22-24 at the St. Paul Civic Center and Met Sports Center in Bloomington.

Sub Region 1

Biggest surprise in Region 8AA was supplied in the Sub Region 1 championship game when Melrose stunned defending champion and number one-rated St. Cloud Apollo 42-40.

In first round matches, 18-2 Melrose knocked off Alexandria 43-34 and Apollo beat St. Cloud city rival Tech 64-39.

Sub Region 2

Little Falls needed only one win to take the three-team Sub Region 2 crown, beating Brainerd in surprisingly easy fashion, 65-38.

Brainerd opened with a 61-49 victory over Sauk Rapids.

Sub Region 3

Detroit Lakes, 18-2, overpowered Moorhead 67-39 and Fergus Falls 60-48 to win the Sub Region 3 crown.

Fergus Falls advanced into the championship game with a 66-42 victory over Park Rapids.

Sub Region 4

Bemidji claimed the Sub Region 4 title and improved its record to 17-4 with easy wins over Crookston 49-19 and Thief River Falls 43-23.

Thief River Falls edged East Grand Forks 41-39 in the first round.

Wildlife Group Has List Of "Best Sellers"

Self-help books may top national best-seller lists, but according to the National Wildlife Federation's 1978 list of "best-sellers," the public is also interested in aiding wildlife and improving the environment.

"Invite Wildlife to Your Backyard" was the most popular of the 120 publications NWF offered in 1978 — most of them free of charge. Of the 214,350 requests for its publications NWF received in 1978, 17,833 were for this reprint from the April, 1973, issue of National Wildlife magazine. The illustrated booklet explains how to develop a backyard, schoolyard, or community area into an inviting habitat for wildlife.

More than 1,200 national wildlife backyard habitats have been certified across the country, in Puerto Rico and in three Canadian provinces under the NWF program.

Number two on the NWF "best seller" list was "Bird-watching," which drew 9,674 requests. This 16-page reprint from Ranger Rick's Nature Magazine for children is by famed ornithologist Roger Tory Peterson. In it, with full-color illustrations, Peterson explains to youngsters what to look for and where to look when they go birding.

"Official Birds, Mammals, Trees, Flowers, Insects and Fish of the U.S., Territories and Possessions" finished third with 8,951 requests. The pamphlet reveals some interesting facts. For example, seven states — Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, North Carolina, Ohio, Virginia and West Virginia — have named the cardinal as their state bird. The rose, adopted by Georgia, Missouri, New York, North Dakota, and Iowa is the most popular state flower.

Another Ranger Rick reprint, "Recycling for the Birds" finished fourth with 6,964 requests. This publication describes how throwaways such as milk cartons and coffee cans can be recycled into bird feeders.

Fifth place (6,509 requests) went to "Wildlife of Lakes, Streams and Marshes," a 13-page booklet describing the animals commonly found in those areas. Close behind in sixth place was "Wildlife of Forests and Rangelands" and eighth place went to "Wildlife of Farm and Field."

While the popularity of these publications indicated interest in wildlife, the remainder of the "top ten" list pointed to the public's concern for our environment. Three Ranger Rick reprints, "Water — What Would We Do Without It?" (7th), "Recycling" (9th) and "Air Pollution" (10th) rounded out the list.

Most NWF publications are available free of charge for the first copy, with additional copies 10 to 30 cents each. A free listing of all publications offered can be obtained by writing Education Catalog, 1412 16th St., NW, Washington, D.C. 20036.
